BAR COMMITTEE REJECTS PLEA TO HALT DRY TEST

Convention May Get Referendum Fight.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The executive committee of the American Bar association, in a special meeting yesterday in preparation for the opening of the 53d annual convention at the Stevens hotel this morning, refused to rescind their action of last January when they ordered a post card questionnaire sent out to the 28,000 members on the question of a referendum on the 18th amendment.

Opposition to the referendum reached a point yesterday where a delegation waited on the executive committee and protested against any further action being taken involving the lawyers in this controversy. After considering the protest the committee sent out word that "we cannot see our way clear to rescinding our action in this matter."

Others Discuss Dry Law.

The plaguey question of prohibition and allied problems of crime in the United States came to the front on more than one sector of the preliminary sessions yesterday. The bootlegger has made a new prison problem, according to one report, while another presents the breakdown of police administration as a problem that must be solved before criminal legislation can be made effective.

George W. Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's commission on law observance and enforcement, is to address the delegates this afternoon on the program of the commission. Whether he will give them any light on the attitude of the commission or its researches into the results of the 18th amendment, remains to be seen, but the question promises to reach the floor of the convention soon.

Drys Oppose Vote.

The protestants against the association referendum yesterday were Judge Andrew A. Bruce of Northwestern university, one of the men behind the recent Illinois crime survey; Nathan William MacChesney, Chicago attorney who has served on many religious and philanthropic boards; George Wilson, Anti-Saloon league leader from Quincy, Ill.; Judge J. Weston Allen of Boston, former attorney general of Massachusetts while Calvin Coolidge was governor; Frederick F. Faville, Des Moines, and Judge William M. Hargist of Pennsylvania.

According to this array, and to the temper of the arguments which leaked out of the executive session, the opposition may be regarded as having a dry atmosphere. Their argument was that prohibition is a question now of national policy, and not a legal matter that should come before the association of lawyers. It was presented as unconstitutional to hold such a referendum. The executive board took the position that it was all in the field of legislation, that it was not a matter that could be dodged, and that the lawyers should take a stand on it.

The questionnaire is as follows:

1—Do you favor a referendum by the bar association on the question of the 18th amendment?

2—Do you favor repeal of the 18th amendment?

Provide Separate Envelopes.

There are separate envelopes sent out in which answers to these questions are to be returned. If the result of the first question is unfavorable to the referendum the second envelopes will be burned unopened. If it is favorable the envelopes will be opened and the results made known next fall. It was at first intended to have the returns made public in October, but when attention was drawn to the coming campaign and the possible effect on that it was suggested that the result be kept quiet until after the November elections.

Judge Bruce or Mr. MacChesney will seek to bring this matter to the convention today to get the action of the executive committee disapproved if possible, but it may be ruled out of discussion on a point of order. The report of the executive committee is due this morning, after the annual address by the president of the association, Henry Upson Sims of Birmingham.

Vote Unanimous, Report.

The members of the executive committee are Mr. Sims, John H. Voorhees, Sioux Falls, S. D.; William P. McCracken Jr., New York; Gurney E. Newlin, Los Angeles; Earle W. Evans, Wichita, Kas.; Edgar B. Tolman, Chicago; Charles A. Boston, New York; Province M. Pogue, Cincinnati; Ralph A. Van Orsdel, Omaha; Thomas W. Davis, Wilmington, N. C.; Bruce W.

The Cubs lost the first game to the Phils at Wrigley field yesterday, 9 to 8, and were in a 6-6 tie in the sixteenth inning of the second game when the game was called on account of darkness. Hack Wilson hit his 43d homer in the first game, tying the National league record for a season.

VAN LEAR BLACK, RICH PUBLISHER, MISSING AT SEA

Disappears from His Yacht at Night.

New York, Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Van Lear Black, publisher of the Baltimore Sun and Evening Sun, capitalist and one of the country's most famous aviation enthusiasts, was drowned at sea, it is believed, late last evening. It was discovered that he was missing from his yacht, the Sabalo, when it was steaming just outside the outer New York harbor, some eight miles southwest of the Shrewsbury Rock buoy off the Jersey coast. Mr. Black was 54 years old.

Tonight, after a day of intensive search, his body had not been found. His own boat had led a fleet of coast guard and other craft in slow circles about the spot where he disappeared. Overhead droned the motors of four planes flying low over the water as their pilots scanned the whitecaps. In midafternoon the navy dirigible Los Angeles joined the search, drifting slowly along over a ten mile course. But they found nothing.

Liked Dangerous Seat.

The man who had successfully flown some 125,000 miles over the jungles, deserts, and forests of four continents is believed to have perished through a boyish habit of sitting on the railing of his boat. A handkerchief was found on the afterdeck, and it was supposed he had dropped it as a sudden swell caused the vessels to lurch and rock him from his precarious seat. No clews to any other possibility were discovered.

Just at dusk this evening, when the Los Angeles could be seen in the distance continuing her search, the Sabalo put into Gravesend bay. Aboard her were Paul Patterson, president of the A. S. Abell Publishing company, of which the missing man was chairman of the board; Thomas W. Hogan, secretary to Mr. Black, and Capt. John W. Kelley of the Sabalo. Together they pieced out the story of what probably had happened.

The Sabalo, they said, left the New York club wharf Monday evening. Mr. Black had that day flown to Newport to see his grandchildren, the son and daughter of Lieut. and Mrs. Albert J. Bolton. Almost as soon as he returned the yacht got under way. It steamed out through the harbor, bound for the publisher's summer home on the Chesapeake.

Mr. Black ate a leisurely dinner in the cabin with Mrs. J. Walter Lord, a cousin who was a guest on the trip, and then, as was his custom, went on deck. Some one forward saw him a little later sitting on the railing at the rear, his feet caught in the guard rail and one hand on a stanchion to give additional support. He was smoking a cigaret.

Valet Spreads Alarm.

At a few minutes after 10 o'clock, when the Sabalo was sliding quietly about twelve miles south of the Scotland light, Percy Sellers, Mr. Black's valet, went to the after deck to consult him. He could not find him on his usual seat and became worried. Sellers looked through the cabin hastily and then reported to Capt. Kelley, who was on the bridge. The captain ordered the engines reversed, and while other officers went thoroughly through the vessel he turned the craft about.

Then started the search that was to last all today. The Sabalo went back over the course slowly. The big searchlight was turned from side to side, and all the members of the crew of fourteen who were not needed in the actual running of the ship took up their position in the bow. The yacht covered a six mile zone—the course for her last hour's travel—and then swung around again.

Coast Guard Joins Search.

Early in the morning a coast guard vessel, seeing the mysterious searchlight sweeping the black waters with low, wide circles, came alongside. Its officers hailed the Sabalo and learned of Mr. Black's disappearance. After flashing the word back to the headquarters the smaller vessel joined in the search. The two boats cruised in the six mile course until dawn.

When it became light Capt. Kelley ordered his ship into Gravesand bay. From there he telephoned to Baltimore, telling Mr. Black's associates on the Sun of his disappearance. Mr. Patterson and Mr. Rogan hired a plane and came to the anchorage. They boarded the yacht, and once again she set out toward Scotland light.

A new search started. The Sabal ied it, taking up her position beside

Parents Swap Mixed Babies and Call Quits

The Watkins-Bamberger baby controversy late yesterday reached a settlement that promised to be final when the mothers of the infant boys born June 30 in the Englewood hospital amicably exchanged babies, shook hands and promised each other they would bicker no more. Health Commissioner Kegel officiated as master of ceremonies.

A turn toward settlement of the case, which had entered the courts, came at 4 p. m., when Joseph P. Power, attorney for Charles Bamberger and his wife telephoned Commissioner Kegel that Bamberger was at last persuaded the findings of Dr. Kegel's board of experts were correct and that the infants were in the wrong homes.

Kegel Hastens to Home.

Aware that William Watkins and his wife were already of this view, Dr. Kegel hastened to the Bamberger home, 5523 South Paulina street, trusting that prompt action might finally settle the issue. Dr. Kegel's hopes were gratified.

Upon reflection, Bamberger said, he had reached the conclusion that, as the medical experts contended, the babies had been switched before leaving the hospital. He renounced his previous view that the baby Mrs. Bamberger took home looked exactly like him and that the infant in possession of the Watkins' resembled him not at all.

Nothing remained, therefore, but to go to the Watkins apartment, 1619 West 82d street, and effect the transfer. The Bambergers, their lawyer, and Dr. Kegel telephoned of their coming and Mrs. Watkins received them warmly. Her husband was not at home.

Both Families Satisfied.

A little tearful, the two mothers undressed the respective infants, exchanged them to each other's arms, and hugged each tightly after the transfer. Dr. Kegel smiled, Bamberger stroked his wife's shoulder and Mrs. Watkins cooed at the son she believed all along was her own.

The Bambergers remained half an hour at the Watkins apartment, awaiting Watkins' return and finally left when Mrs. Watkins assured them her husband would be satisfied at the transfer. Barratt O'Hara, who had represented the Watkins family in litigation revolving about the case, would not be reached for a statement.

TURN ON WORLD'S MOST POWERFUL SEARCHLIGHT

Lindbergh beacon, the world's most powerful searchlight, invented and given to Chicago by the late Elmer A. Sperry, was turned on for its first test at 2 o'clock this morning. Developing five million candlepower, the light, which stands on a tower atop the Palmolive building 600 feet above street level, casts a brilliant blue beam, powerful enough to pierce the clouds.

Government engineers, who certified the specifications of the beacon, have predicted its visibility would be limited only by the earth's curvature and have estimated that if thrown straight up its beam would pierce the night for 500 miles.

A unique feature of the beacon will be its ability to "point" a designated airport, the beam pausing momentarily to indicate the airport on each revolution about the sky.

Ship Captain Tells Story of Ocean Rescue

BULLETIN.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 19.—(AP)—The Marine exchange tonight received a radio report saying the steamship Ventura had arrived at Pago Pago, Tutuila, with the rescued passengers and crew of the steamship Tahiti, which foundered in the south seas.

A vivid description of the sinking of the British steamship Tahiti in the South Seas was wirelessed to the Associated Press in San Francisco by Capt. Will R. Meyer, master of the Ventura, which rescued the passengers and crew of the stricken liner.

BY CAPT. WILL R. MEYER.

PAGO PAGO, Aug. 19.—The Tahiti's port propeller shaft carried away in the shaft tunnel at 4:30 a. m., Friday, tearing a hole in the ship, rupturing the tunnel and allowing water to rush into numbers 3 and 4 holds besides the engine room.

The first concern of the engineers was to shut off steam from the racing engine. The second engineer was on watch. He was washed away from the shaft alley door by the rush of water. The engine room crew, through heroic efforts, managed to close the bulkhead door, but not before the engine room had been virtually flooded.

The Tahiti was in total darkness.

Used Pumps and Buckets.

With only their flashlights working and with eleven feet of water over the engine room floor plates, the crew immediately rigged up extra pumps and drew the water from the two flooded holds. Stewards were entrusted with pumps and buckets and it was by such heroic efforts that the ship was kept afloat.

The Ventura first heard of the Tahiti's plight at 5 p. m. Friday. A general call from Suva, Fiji islands, for all ships within range to report was picked up by our wireless operator. We immediately offered to sail to the Tahiti's assistance if wanted. Shortly afterward we received a request from the manager of the Union steamship line to proceed to the Tahiti's aid. We immediately directed our course to the disabled vessel.

Though we were traveling at maximum speed, a heavy swell and strong westerly wind retarded our progress. We drove the ship along, however, and sighted the Tahiti's smoke at 9:15 a. m. Sunday. The passengers were then trying to put on life jackets.

Passengers Take to Boats.

When we arrived alongside the Tahiti at 10:30 a. m. boats had been launched and were hovering around the Tahiti. The Penybryn was standing by to render assistance if necessary. She assisted with her lifeboats in the transfer of passengers to our vessel.

We immediately began to pick up passengers and crew and at 1:30 p. m. all hands were safely aboard the Ventura.

Passengers spoke in glowing terms of the coolness and fortitude of Capt. A. T. Toten of the Tahiti and of the heroic efforts of the engineer's staff and all the crew in keeping the ship afloat.

In fact, all hands were placed in boats and launched without the slightest mishap and this with the Tahiti rolling in long swells. This indicates splendid seamanship prevailed.

Radio Officers Heroes.

Radio officers of the Tahiti, with only auxiliary apparatus working because engine room dynamos were below water, added new laurels to their already splendid record.

The Tahiti was foundering rapidly when her captain and crew left her. At 3:40 p. m. and again at 4:42 p. m. her stern dipped beneath the water and she went down lifting her bow aloft. One-third of the ship stood perpendicularly above the water as she cove.

A Dollar Buys More at the Drug Stores

A druggist used to be a fellow who sold drugs. He mixed up the bitter concoctions which the doctor ordered for what ailed you. Now only one seventh of the drug store business of the country comes from prescriptions, drugs and chemicals. Six-sevenths of the total comes from toilet goods, ice cream sodas, candy and what not.

That's fortunate for more reasons than one. The nation's health must be better, or the doctors aren't ordering so many bad tasting compounds. It's especially fortunate because general commodity prices are lower, and drug stores sell a general line of commodities. The drug stores are passing along to their customers the lower wholesale prices on numerous articles in the form of lower retail prices. A dollar buys more at Chicago drug stores right now than at any time since the war.

SECRET VAULT TO REVEAL MORE HOODLUM DEALS

State Senator Starr Explains Checks.

Another safe deposit box of Jack Zuta, slain vice lord and financial wizard of the Zuta-Moran-Aiello gang, was raided late yesterday by Pat Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson.

The contents of this new Zuta vault, the fourth to be opened by the state's attorney's office since the murder of Zuta, were kept secret by Assistant State's Attorneys Charles F. Rathbun and James E. McShane.

It was reported, however, that the box contained new evidence involving public officials and politicians, and that additional disclosures concerning those to whom Zuta paid tribute may be expected.

Obtain Search Warrant.

The box seized yesterday was taken upon the authority of a search warrant issued by Judge John H. Lyle, who personally accompanied the detectives to the Capitol building vaults, where the box had been located. Another Zuta box in the same vault had yielded most of the evidence thus far presented to the public. Both boxes, it was learned, were rented by Zuta under assumed names.

The prosecutors yesterday made public further evidence, in which the names of the following were added to those named in papers found in the Zuta strong boxes:

Harry W. Starr, lawyer, state senator, former city prosecutor and former election commissioner.

Henry Finkelstein, gambler and former pal of Zuta.

W. R. [Billy] Skidmore, political fixer.

Joseph [Diamond Joe] Esposito, west side political leader who was murdered two years ago.

Tony Lombardo, once the overlord of Little Italy, killed by gangsters at Dearborn and Madison streets two years ago.

Martin Mulvihill, a retired policeman, now dead.

The Craig Investigation.

Meanwhile investigators were looking into the explanation given by John Craig, city editor of the Chicago Daily News, concerning a check he had written for $50 which was found in Zuta's safe deposit box. Zuta never banked the check for payment, but preserved it with similar mementos in his secret cache.

Craig admitted that he had written the check and that Zuta had cashed it for him. The check was written on a blank of the West Town State bank, which is Zuta's bank, and the name of the bank had been scratched out and that of the Wilmette State bank inserted.

Investigators had learned that the Daily News executive had never had an account at the Wilmette bank, and when Craig was questioned on this point, he declared that the account was in the name of his wife and that the bank on several occasions had honored checks he had signed himself.

Account Held by Wife.

W. D. Leary, vice president of the bank, interviewed yesterday, acknowledged that Frances Craig, wife of the News' city editor, had an account at the bank until 1929, when the family moved from Wilmette to Evanston.

Mr. Leary said that Mrs. Craig had informed the bank that checks signed by her husband could be honored provided she was given a telephone notice of this, and approved the payment.

Craig stated that he had been in the Liberty inn, and that when he wanted to cash a check, he had presented it to Zuta, whom he described as the owner of the place.

The Liberty inn, which was located at Madison street and Ashland avenue, was a cabaret, one of a large number of cabarets, disorderly resorts, saloons and gambling houses in which Zuta owned an interest, the investigators reported.

Partners Are Notorious.

According to the investigators, Zuta's partners in the Liberty inn included a number of notorious police characters. One of these, Martin [Babe] Mullaney, a beer racketeer connected with the lawless "Red" Bolton gang of the west side, had been involved in several murders.

In one case, that of a youth who was shot to death in a brawl in another west side café, Mullaney was indicted for the murder. His criminal career ended last March 31, when Mullaney was shot to death in a room in the Alto hotel, 2347 West Madison street.

Two other of Zuta's partners in the Liberty inn were reported to be

Tommy Thomas, cabaret manager and hoodlum fight promoter, and Martin O'Leary. The latter has been involved many times with the police, including a time when he was charged with the kidnaping for ransom of a gambler-racketeer.

Craig asserted that when he noticed that the check he had given to Zuta did not clear through the Wilmette bank, he went to see the vice monger, and was informed by Zuta that "the matter was all right."

"I told Zuta I did not do business that way, and I gave him the $50 in cash," Craig said.

Two Checks to Senator.

Senator Starr, it was found, had received two checks from Zuta, each for $200, one dated Oct. 5, 1926, and the other Oct. 16, 1926. The senator's indorsement appeared, along with that of his law partner, Robert C. Hardy, on the back of both checks, which were drawn on Zuta's bank, the West Town State bank.

It was at first reported that Senator Starr, upon learning that two of his checks had turned up in Zuta's deposit box, had left the city on a vacation. This was found to be in error, and it was explained by the senator that he had learned of the checks last Saturday, had immediately conferred with Prosecutor McShane, and had offered to appear at any time to explain the transactions with Zuta to Prosecutor Rathbun.

Payment for Services.

"The checks were given to me by Zuta in payment for legal services which I rendered for him," Senator Starr said. "He came to me and stated that a judgment had been returned against him in connection with an automobile accident.

"He told me that he had not figured in the accident at all, but that Henry Finkelstein, who has been mentioned as sought in connection with Zuta's murder, had been in the accident and had given Zuta's name instead of his own.

"The judgment, for a sum that I have forgotten, had been levied against Zuta by default, and Zuta asserted the lawyer who had been retained to resist the suit had been at fault. He asked me to appear before Judge Robert Gentzel, to make a motion for vacation of the judgment.

Has Judgment Vacated.

"I made the motion and won the case. The judgment was vacated. Shortly afterward Zuta asked me to file a civil suit to remove the cloud which the previous suit had placed upon a property he wished to sell. I performed this service.

"As I recall, my fee was in the neighborhood of $1,000, and Zuta paid it in a number of checks."

Senator Starr was chairman of the legislative committee which conducted an investigation of the famous "whoopee" records showing extravagant parties staged under a previous régime of the sanitary district of Chicago.

He pointed out that he was holding no public office at the time of his service for Zuta. Between 1917 and 1920 Starr was an assistant city prosecutor, stationed part of the time in the Morals court. He was appointed an election commissioner, serving until 1922, when he retired to the practice of law. In 1927 he entered the state senate, and he is now a candidate for reëlection.

Five Finkelstein Checks.

Finkelstein, who was reported at one time to have been identified as one of the slayers of Zuta, was the recipient of five checks, as made public by the prosecutors, totaling $1,500.

One check made payable to cash, dated Feb. 4, 1927, for $200, was endorsed by Billy Skidmore. Diamond Joe Esposito had endorsed two checks, each for $500, one dated Sept. 11, 1922, and the other May 15, 1922. The latter check was also endorsed by "A. Volpe," which Investigator Roche said he believed was the notorious "Mops" Volpe.

Tony Lombardo had been credited with an affiliation with the gangster crew of Scarface Al Capone, but he appeared to have taken a check for $156.45 from Zuta. It was dated May 3, 1926.

A check for $160, dated May 3, 1926, had been made payable to Samuel Cohen, and it was endorsed by Dago Lawrence Mangano, vice resort keeper.

"M. K." Is Identified.

It was definitely revealed to the state's attorney's office yesterday that the mysterious "M. K.", repeatedly named in the accounts found in the Zuta box, is Matt Kolb, beer runner, politico-fixer and gambler.

The records of Zuta indicated that payments of large sums, disguised as "dividends," were made to "M. K.", and the reports of investigators indicated that "M. K." distributed bribes to various county and city officials in the pay of the Zuta gang. This protection money, according to report, ran into large sums, ranging as high as $100,000 a month.

Investigator Roche, it was reported, has been seeking Kolb, in an effort to question him concerning the Zuta records.

Freeman Makes Statement.

Chief of Police William Freeman of Evanston, who on Monday night was disclosed to have written a note to Zuta asking the gang leader for a loan of $400, yesterday issued the following statement:

"I wish to explain the whole deal in which I am accused of illegal action, according to certain authorities, when I made a legitimate loan from Jack Zuta of Chicago some two and one-half years ago.

"When I came to Evanston from Chicago I was forced to break my lease in Chicago, which still had six months to run, because it was impossible to live so far from Evanston and efficiently perform my duties as chief in Evanston.

"I was finally sued for the balance of the rent—some $400—and my case was handled by our city attorney, and a judgment entered against me, which I was unable to pay as I had no bank account. I knew of no one to whom to turn, when I chanced to meet Jack Zuta in the Sherman hotel.

Arranges for Messenger.

"At that time Zuta had no police record, and while we talked I asked him if he had $400 to spare for a year. He replied that he did not have that much with him but if I would send a man down two days later he would let me have it.

"I sent a messenger down two days later with a note, and he sent me $300 instead of $400, and I have since repaid in several payments all but $10 of the original loan.

"There is nothing irregular in this transaction, as I have said before, as I have seen Zuta many times in the offices of high elected officials, and, as far as I knew, he never was considered a criminal.

"I have not seen him in many months, and, of course, did not know of his recent activities.

"Any statement attributed to me regarding my resignation as chief of police is absolutely false."

Mayor Bartlett of Evanston, on whom Chief Freeman relies as a defender, was reached yesterday at the Hot Springs hotel, Idaho Springs, Colo., where he is on vacation. Informed of the developments concerning Freeman and Zuta, Bartlett said:

"This is a very great shock to me. I have had every confidence in Chief Freeman and I had never any reason to suspect that he was in any way affiliated with gangsters. I have not read any papers, and this is the first information I have had that Chief Freeman was involved in the Zuta investigation.

"I cannot express any opinion further until I return home and make a thorough investigation of the case. I will be home Sunday night. Of course, I can take no action until I return."

Reporter's Letter in Zuta Vault Tells How to Increase Profits of Fairview Dog Track

Among the papers found in one of the secret safe deposit boxes of Jack Zuta, murdered gangster, was a letter, signed "Hunter," in which the writer proposed to bolster up the press agent work for the Fairview Kennel club, the Zuta-Moran-Aiello gang's dog track.

"Hunter," according to Pat Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson, is Kent Allerton Hunter, a former Chicago newspaper man. The letter mentions that Hunter believed he could line up various officials in staging political affairs at the dog track, and explains how he proposed to make more satisfactory arrangements at various newspaper offices.

The letter is not dated, and it is not made clear whether it was written before, during or after the employment by the Zuta-Moran-Aiello gang of Ted Tod, reporter for the Herald and Examiner, as the press agent for the dog track. Tod, it has been revealed, was on the pay roll of the dog track at the same time he was covering the office of State's Attorney Swanson for the Herald and Examiner.

Text of the Letter.

The text of the Hunter letter follows:

"This isn't a squawk about anything. I've been treated mighty well by the club and I like the whole damned outfit. But I do think I could accomplish more than I have been and am outlining to you, for personal consumption, an outline of what was originally planned, what was done, and what may still be done if you approve of it.

"The original understanding was that I was to have an assistant. This assistant, on nights when I was at the track, would be in Chicago to take the returns from me and see that the results get to the Herald and Examiner in time for the morning, and the nights when I was in Chicago he was to phone the results to me from the track.

"As we stand now we are getting the same breaks the other tracks get. Our entries, selections and a short story are printed, and the Examiner prints results and a form chart in the early edition. But I think a publicity man should get more than that, if he has the material to work with.

Proposes Special Nights.

"I know that with a car, working through the suburban towns and the wards immediately contiguous to the track, I could work out a program of special nights to cover the entire meeting, one a night. The advertising program on it would not be expensive—an average of forty dollars a night in the neighborhood papers.

"Individuals, such as Weber, Judge McCarthy, Ald. Mose and the others who are now considering special nights, have organizations that will handle ticket distribution. Veteran organizations, and fraternal organizations such as the Elks, Moose, and so on are in another field. Then there is the question of pictures and cuts.

"Frequently, when a special night is on, it is worth advertising. For instance on Wednesday the match race between Bucks Hawks, Traffic Officer and Fell Chief can be built up to a big bet. A hundred line ad, with inset pictures of the three dogs, run in the five dailies Tuesday or Wednesday would set us back in line with the papers somewhat and still prove mighty good copy.

"The neighborhood papers will run cuts, and be tickled to death to get them, with our copy. I can get cuts made that would cost twenty or thirty bucks by slipping an engraver in the American plant a sawbuck. And if transportation were available to take the people concerned to and from the track, pictures featuring good looking women could be made with the dogs and a percentage of those pictures would get into print.

Tells Legion Plans.

"Then here are some things I'd like to get a ruling on:

"American Legion night is Saturday, July 16. Maj. Ridgway, chief deputy bailiff, has 5,000 tickets out through his assistants, and he will have 175 uniformed men at 63d and Woodlawn—the exact address is in a memorandum I gave you—on that night. That will probably mean five buses.

"The 175 uniformed men will include the Woodlawn post drill team and the Woodlawn post band. It gives us a parade from the south side all the way to Fairview, with the public seeing a regular crowd headed for Fairview. I think it's worth the cost. That night there should be a photographer on the ground. The buses should be ordered, I think, and the signs made.

"Then the regular bus that goes from 54 West Randolph street wants a sign 6 feet long and 2 feet wide to go across the back.

Fairview Kennel Club
Greyhound Racing.
Bus leaves 54 W. Randolph street 7:30 p. m.

"And in connection with buses, Ted Schreiber, ward secretary for Judge McCarthy in the 48th ward, says he can fill a bus every night from Wilson and Broadway if we put one there and start it regularly at a given time. That's a hot sport corner anyhow.

North Shore Campaign.

"In connection with the special nights I believe Evanston and the North Shore can be cultivated. The News Index in Evanston is thoroughly amenable to advertising influence. There are also newsy papers that bring results along the North Shore all the way to Waukegan.

"When we start advertising again in the dailies I believe the best system would be once a week in each paper, one paper every day, the standard ad being 100 lines. The rates run: Tribune, $1.25 per line daily; Herald and Examiner, 75 cents per line; Journal, 60 cents per line; News, 55 cents per line; American, 52 cents per line, and Post, 30 cents per line.

"You have a memorandum on the possibilities of having the radio broadcast results or such other announcements as we want and the rate.

"You have the memorandum on the program form chart. Frankly, though I like Norman Ross and like the idea of his form sheet, it gets a lot of mighty bad comment when the past performance charts are not up to date.

"You people who know the mechanics of dog racing know more about that than I ever will. But Cuffels says he will guarantee a ten per cent increase in the betting action with the form chart-program like the Lawndale sample used. It should not affect Rivers in his handling and the present printer undoubtedly can turn out the type on it.

"A memorandum was submitted some time ago about the advisability of shooting an ad in the magazine of the Chicago Motor club. It reaches 65,000 automobile owners in each monthly issue. Then there is the magazine of the North Shore Motor club, going to all members.

Weekly Auto Gift Proposed.

"You undoubtedly know the system used by either Laramie or Hawthorne, of giving a car on Saturday nights. When the time comes to cut down the pass lists and build up paid admissions it might be worth while to number all paid admission tickets for the week serially and draw for the car on Saturday night.

"It ought to be possible to get the car for such drawing at better than the list price, and to use a different make car each Saturday, reserving the night for the type of car used, Ford, Chev., Study, Buick, etc.

"Some of our road marker signs, too, are pretty punk. They call attention to the Derby on July 4, and tell the public to watch for the opening of the Fairview club. Sort of makes the public believe we're not paying attention to business.

"A final avenue of promotion is through the mails. A form letter, samples of which I can get, can be put out for about five cents per letter, for use on a high class mailing list as we get it together, calling attention to special events, special nights, match races and so on.

"Thanks for going through it.

"HUNTER."

Hunter's Newspaper Record.

Kent Hunter was discharged from THE TRIBUNE staff on Oct. 11, 1919. Following this he was employed by the Herald and Examiner. That newspaper yesterday made a statement through the City News bureau that Hunter had been discharged from its employ also. Later Hunter was employed by the Chicago Daily News, and then by the Chicago Evening American. The American stated yesterday that he resigned from the American staff on July 19, 1929.

JURY TO CONDUCT NORTH RIVERSIDE SPEED TRAP QUIZ

Seize Records of Police and Magistrate.

Records of the police department and of the police magistrate of North Riverside were seized yesterday by the state's attorney's office after complaint was made by Attorney Joseph H. Braun of the Chicago Motor club that a speed trap is operated by the officials. It is charged that citizens arrested for supposed violations of the automobile laws were not accorded an open court trial, but were fined in a "kangaroo court" session held in an ante room of the police station.

Assistant State's Attorney William A. Rittenhouse, who ordered the village records taken for grand jury investigation, said that he will issue subpoenaes for the appearance of Alonzo T. Ulrich, police magistrate; Chief of Police Otto Martinek, and Lieut. Edward Emons.

Charge Many Arrests.

The attorneys for the motor club, who have been investigating conditions in the western suburb for several weeks because of complaints made by motorists, said that 900 supposed motor violation arrests have been made in the last few months.

The victims of arrests are to be sent questionnaires by the prosecutors asking for a detailed statement of the circumstances of the arrests as well as to the kind of trial afforded them by the police magistrate. It is charged that the officials refused to accept real estate bonds for motor violations and always insisted on cash.

Cite One Complaint.

One example cited by the prosecutors is the case of Donald McGrath, son of Martin McGrath, justice of the peace of Oak Park. He said he left his automobile parked on the highway where there is no anti-parking law, and that when he returned it had disappeared.

The police of the suburb at first denied that they had touched the automobile, but later admitted towing it to a garage. The next day McGrath says he found he was charged with two motor law violations and was given the alternative of paying a $17 garage bill or being fined $25. He paid the garage bill, he said.

NEGRO COUPLE SEEK TO ADOPT A WHITE BABY

First Case of Kind in Cook County.

A petition to adopt a seven months' old baby boy, white and red haired, was filed in the County court yesterday by a Negro couple, who declare the baby's parents have consented to the adoption. A ruling on the petition, which will be heard by County Judge Jarecki, will set a precedent, according to court officials, who said the case is the first of its kind ever begun in Cook county.

The petition was filed by Attorney Carlyle S. Guibor on behalf of William Linder, a contractor, and his wife, Mary. The Linders live at 5222 South La Salle street. Both Mr. and Mrs. Linder are Negroes, the attorney said, although this is not stated in the petition. Neither does the petition reveal that the baby is of white parentage. A statement of these facts is not required, court officials said, because the Illinois adoption statute contains no reference to the interchange of races.

Baby Born On Jan. 7.

The petition says the baby, named Joseph Julian, is the illegitimate son of Joseph A. Murphy and Mrs. Rose Julian, a widow, both of 5120 South La Salle street. The baby was born last Jan. 7, the Linders' attorney said.

Mrs. Linder was the only attendant present when the baby was born and she and her husband have cared for the boy continuously since then, the petition states.

According to the petition the mother does not want the baby and the father has disclaimed any responsibility for the child's support. Mr. and Mrs. Linder assert they are well able to bring up the boy and provide him with suitable care and education.

Officials of the court pointed out that the judge may deny the petition by ruling that the adoption is not for the best interests of the baby. However, if the attorney can prove that the adoption is for the best interests of the boy and the judge still refuses to approve the petition, the attorney may go to another court and obtain a writ of mandamus to compel Judge Jarecki to sign the adoption decree.

Efforts to Amend Laws.

Attempts to amend the statutes to prevent such cases as this have been made by state legislators the last few years, but have failed.

The present case came to the attention of juvenile authorities when a policewoman, investigating delinquents, found Mrs. Linder caring for the white baby. The authorities are trying to take the baby from the custody of Mrs. Linder, Attorney Guibor said, and the petition for adoption is intended to halt this action.

BOY OF 11 ADMITS HE SOLD LIQUOR WHICH CAUSED MAN'S DEATH

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—An 11 year old boy was being held by police last night as the alleged dispenser of moonshine believed to have caused the death of Charles Richards, 45. Walter Kruhles, a pupil in the sixth grade public school, police say, admitted selling Richards the liquor.

His stepfather, Stanley Smith, 46, and his 21 year old sister, Mary Kruhles, said to be a partner with Smith in ownership of the store where Richards purchased the fatal drinks, also were under arrest tonight.

The boy told police that he had been instructed to sell liquor in the absence of his sister and stepfather.

TRY MILK RING GANG; POLICE EYE FOOD "RACKET"

New York, Aug. 19.—[Special.]—While a picked squad of Police Commissioner Mulrooney's men went on duty today to prevent any violence by food racketeers, District Attorney Crain moved to bring to trial Larry Fay and 149 others indicted nearly a year ago as members of a milk ring.

Mr. Crain's action followed testimony by witnesses appearing at the two inquiries of the attorney general into food profiteering here, indicating that the Fay ring had been revived and had raised prices of loose milk to new high levels.

A force of detectives has been assigned to duty in the Washington market district where it was revealed at the inquiry dealers found by racketeers to be underselling or in any way opposing the will of "the gang" had been threatened with violence.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The golden voice of John Burdette, until a week or so ago an unknown Negro baritone, captivated thousands at the Oriental theater last night in the semi-finals for the great Chicagoland Music Festival to be held next Saturday night at Soldiers' field.

By day John Burdette is an elevator operator in a building on Wabash avenue, and quite apparently an efficient and well mannered one. By night he ties a red bandanna around his neck, dusts a little powder over his head, steps upon the stage, and becomes the aged boatman of Ol' Man River.

Steps Into Character.

He really steps into the character. For the few minutes that he was on the Oriental stage last night he was as completely a native of the Mississippi as though he had never strayed ten miles away from its bank. From Chicago to Louisiana is as long a trip spiritually as it is in miles, but he made it without the slightest slip.

His voice is something to grow rather rhapsodic about, a richly toned, effortless organ of heart-touching quality and expressiveness that conveyed every syllable of every word to the most remote corners of the theater.

Enters Finals on Friday.

He is Chicago's choice of baritones, selected to meet the choice of other cities of Chicagoland in the finals next Friday night, and it is quite safe to say now that the one who wins over him is going to be worth going many miles to hear. At that the choice was none too easy for the judges, since Herbert Peterson presented such forcible claims for attention through his own voice that the judges retired, debated, considered again, and finally sent for Burdette to sing another song for them. This time he sang "Sylvia" so exquisitely that he clinched the matter at once.

In the tenor contest earlier in the evening Peter Maltese was the unanimous choice of the judges after he had sung "Una Furtiva Lagrima" from Donizetti's opera "The Elixir of Love." The judges were Mrs. Edmund J. Tyler, Miss Louise Gilbert, Franklin Earl Hathaway, and Hugh Aspinwall.

Papi Will Be Judge.

For Friday's contest, when the finalists of all Chicagoland will be selected, the festival management has been lucky enough to secure the services of the eminent operatic conductor Gennaro Papi as one of the judges. Mr. Papi is now in the last two weeks of another brilliant season at Ravinia, conducting all the Italian operas of that fine company's repertoire with a fervor and dash that have won enthusiastic and unanimous acclaim.

Everything about the Chicagoland Music Festival promises to be spectacular. Now comes a spectacle for the eye as well as the ear. The season of air races is starting simultaneously with the festival, and so the air organization is lending a spectacular feature to the festival. This feature will take place at 9 o'clock, at which time that startling trio known as the Three Fireflies will take the air over Soldiers' field and do evolutions while the music is halted for a few minutes.

Planes Decorate Sky.

The three planes, flying in echelon formation, are brilliantly lighted, and are able to change the colors of their lights. Thus, the trio at one time will be red, white, and blue, at another, blue, white, and red, at a third, white, red, and blue, or all white, or all red, or all blue. Thus decorating the sky they perform their maneuvers, which in less technical language are known as stunts.

A cannon will be fired to signal the opening of the program. As the booming echoes die away, the United States flag will be raised on the pole at the north end of the field, the Chicagoland Festival concert band, directed by Victor J. Grabel, will play "The Star Spangled Banner," and the program will be officially under way.

The oldest active drummer, the next oldest, and the youngest are to become acquainted in Chicago on Saturday. W. T. Kimsey, 91 years old, is being escorted from Douglas, Mich., to meet in friendly rivalry and competition with Capt. W. H. Baker, 81 years old, who is being sent here by the Freeport Journal-Standard, and Jimmie Rice, 7 years old, who is coming under the auspices of the Dixon Telegraph. All three rank as experts of the drumsticks.

It has been a matter of keen gratification to the sponsors of the Chicagoland music festival to observe how much interest has been shown in the formation of a huge group to sing the magnificent Hallelujah chors from "The Messiah." Swarms of replies have come in—in fact, are continuing to come in by every mail—since the plan was first announced, and the performance, directed by Noble Cain, promises to be one of the great thrills in an evening filled with thrills.

1,000 Negroes to Sing.

One unit of the chorus will be the Negro chorus of 1,000, which will also have its individual place on the program by singing a group of three spirituals. This group plans a distinctive dress for the evening, the sopranos and contraltos in white, the tenors and basses in dark suits. This promises to be the greatest chorus of its kind ever gathered together in America. J. Wesley Jones, James A. Mundy, and Edward H. Boatner will direct the spirituals.

$16,075 REWARDS POSTED IN THREE CIGARET THEFTS

A reward of $16,075 for the return of 643 cases of cigarets stolen in three robberies in or near Chicago recently, was posted yesterday by the Insurance Company of North America. The reward amounts to half the value of the stolen property and will be paid for the return of the cigarets or information leading to their return.

The cigarets are valued at $50 per case. The first robbery took place April 30, when a truck from Louisville was hijacked in Harvey and 309 cases taken. The second followed on July 7, a 300 case load being taken from the driver at 79th street and Greenwood avenue. The truck and 271 cases were found later in the day and Robert Boyce, 7317 South Peoria street, was arrested for the hijacking and later indicted.

The third robbery occurred Aug. 12, a 305 case load being diverted north of Dyer, Ind. No trace of the trucks nor contents taken in the first and third robberies has been found.

DEMOCRATS PUT WET PLANK UP TO SECRET SIX

Chicagoans for Repeal of All Liquor Laws.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—With one exception Democratic leaders from Cook county and those from down state found it easy tonight when they tackled the outlining of the platform for their state convention here tomorrow.

Preliminary discussions of all other subjects were conducted in open caucus with outsiders listening in, but when it came time to determine what the exact nature of the wet plank should be, the drafting committee of six members went into executive session in a secret meeting place where they still were laboring until a late hour.

The trouble seemed to arise on the question whether the Illinois branch of the party should declare flatly, unqualifiedly for the repeal of the federal prohibition amendment.

State Rights and Liquor.

James Hamilton Lewis, nominee for United States senator, has taken the position that under the wording of the eighteenth amendment state rights over liquor regulation may be established by the repeal of the Volstead act and the additional penalties prescribed by the Jones 5 and 10 law. There are many downstaters who would go no further than that in the platform.

"But there are many downstaters who hope sincerely that the convention will take no backward step," said State Chairman Thomas F. Donovan of Joliet.

Thereby it was believed he lined himself up with the Cook county delegation, including Chairman A. J. Cermak and National Committeeman M. L. Igoe, who are insisting that the party must go the whole distance and urge the repeal of the eighteenth amendment as well as the Volstead act and the state prohibition law.

Downstaters May Yield.

Hotel lobby predictions were that the downstate conservatives would be forced to yield under the pressure of numbers and that tomorrow's platform will be a "blanket repealer."

Tonight's caucus was centered around the platform drafting committee consisting of Bruce A. Campbell, East St. Louis; E. P. Allen, Quincy; John P. Devine, Dixon, and Cermak, Igoe, and Clayton F. Smith of Chicago. In open session these six agreed on several planks. The first was an indorsement of the women juror bills which go to referendum in the November election.

The second, approved with little discussion, was a pledge of reapportionment, both legislative and congressional. These two caused little debate, but when Cermak proposed opposition to the so-called income tax amendment to the state constitution the talk grew lively. State Representative Devine predicted that the next legislature will pass an income tax even if the amendment is beaten on the referendum and that the constitutionality of the act then will be up to the courts.

"Well," commented Cermak, "Gov. Emmerson can't be reëlected if he passes anything like that."

Caucus action consisted of leaving the wording of this plank to the drafting committee with a probability that it will declare opposition to the amendement giving the legislature unrestricted powers in taxation until that body is reapportioned in conformity with the constitution.

At Campbell's suggestion the caucus decided that the platform should demand that the state's share of the 3 cents gas tax be reduced to 1 cent and that the remaining 2 cents be divided by the legislature among the cities and the counties.

Campbell, chosen last April, will continue to act as temporary chairman tomorrow. State Representative Sarah Bond Hanley of Monmouth is slated for permanent chairman. Igoe will head the resolutions committee.

VISITS FRANCE AFTER 58 YEARS IN U. S. AND IS ARRESTED AS SPY

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Aug. 19.—Conviction as a spy and condemnation to death by a court martial resulted from usurpation of his identity will be set aside tomorrow with the apologies of a special French military tribunal to Charles Leopold Hartmann, 75 year old Alsatian. He was arrested while revisiting his native village after living fifty-eight years in California.

Hartmann left Nordheim in Bas Rhein at the age of 17 immediately following Germany's annexation of Alsace in 1872. He settled in Baskens Field, Cal. When he returned moderately wealthy to Nordheim last month for the first time he was greatly perplexed by the cold reception of all his boyhood friends who were still living.

He sought the town's mayor for an explanation and was astonished when he was informed of his conviction as a traitor and spy during the war. Hartmann's ability to prove he had never left California during the last 58 years started an official investigation of the charges against him. It was revealed that a German spy, arrested in London at the beginning of the war, managed to obtain freedom by adopting Hartmann's identity and showing forged papers to establish that he had adopted French nationality in 1872. This impersonator proceeded to Geneva and continued to make use of Hartmann's name while engaged in spreading subversive anti-French propaganda in Alsace.

AT 101 AURORA'S OLDEST RESIDENT GOES ON A PICNIC

W. W. Church, oldest resident of Aurora, left yesterday on a train ride to his boyhood home, Brimfield, a hamlet near Peoria, to attend an old settlers' picnic. Mr. Church is 101 years old.

"I'm not quite as spry as I used to be," he said, excusing his use of crutches. "I determined years ago not to use them until I reached 100, but now that I'm more than a year past that, I suppose it's all right. I can still get along with a cane in the house, though."

The centenarian's daughter, Mrs. J. S. Leath, accompanied him to the depot, but he would not permit her to stay with him until train time.

"Dad always insists on taking his journeys alone for fear people might think him less spry than he used to be," Mrs. Leath explained.

BOY, 5, KILLED IN ATTEMPT TO RIDE ON TRUCK

Falling from a truck on which he was attempting to "hitch" a ride yesterday with three other boys, Edward Pierce, 5 years old, 4637 South Union avenue, received a fractured skull and died while being taken to a hospital. The accident occurred at Wallace and 47th streets. The driver, William Ayres, 32 years old, 2540 South Trumbull avenue, was held for the inquest.

Andrew Moore, 74 years old, 2218 South Wabash avenue, died at the Peoples hospital from injuries received Monday night when struck by a machine driven by George Schultz, 1417 West 17th street, while crossing Wabash avenue and 22d street.

Adam Vukovich, 47 years old, 4524 South Sawyer avenue, was killed, and his wife, Mary, seriously injured when their car was struck by one driven by John Trescott, 4447 South Sawyer avenue, as they were parking it in front of their home. Trescott was held for the inquest today.

These three deaths raised Cook county's motor toll for the year to 620.

Five year old Edmund Piper was struck and killed on Rand road two miles south of Lake Zurich in Lake county. Hugo Piper, his wife and their two children had stopped to pick wild flowers. Edmund started across the road to gather some blooms he saw there. He was struck by an auto driven by L. Milton Husak, 2144 Estes avenue.

BAR COMMITTEE REFUSES TO HALT DRY REFERENDUM

Protest Will Be Carried to Convention.

Sanborn, St. Paul; Guy A. Thompson, St. Louis, William B. Greenough, Providence, R. I.; Clarence E. Martin, Martinsburg, W. Va.; Orie L. Phillips, Albuquerque, N. M. It is understood that the executive committee was unanimous in ordering the referendum and in refusing to withdraw.

Advocates of the referendum are said to have selected Francis X. Busch, James G. Condon, and others to lead the fight for this position if it reaches the point of debate.

Prohibition and Prisons.

A new type of prisoner has come about since prohibition, according to William W. Grant Jr., who investigated the Canon City mutiny for the governor of Colorado.

"The average convict in a penitentiary for the first time finds all his preconceived standards upside down," he said. "The trustworthy men are the murderers. The bootleggers are the prison politicians. The liquor laws have put within our penitentiaries a new type of offender who knows no law, and who has money and organization outside at his command in many instances. It stands to reason that he is not ready to take his medicine as the old time criminal did.

"This new type infects the rest of the prison population with discontent, resentment against any kind of discipline, and an unscrupulous disregard for the rights, feelings, and obligations of the rest of the world, that, so far as I know, has never been duplicated in prison history."

Attack Police "Roundups."

"Lawless enforcement of law," a report made to the section on criminal law, attracted attention and debate. This was signed by Edgar W. Camp, Andrew A. Bruce and Oscar Hallam and states that the "third degree" is in use almost everywhere in the United States, declaring that the boldness with which sheriffs, police and state's attorneys practice this lawlessness is astonishing. Cases of whipping, beating, confinement in sweat boxes, dark cells, the use of the electric chair, and various forms of torture are cited.

"Raids or roundups, such as recently were made in Chicago and have been made in other cities, find no warrant in law," it is stated. "Hundreds even thousands of men are haled to the police stations, looked over, quizzed, and after a few hours turned loose. Out of a thousand arrested 60 or 70 may be held for minor offenses in no wise connected with the ostensible purpose for which the raid was made.

Extra Laws "Burden Police."

"We are a lawless people. Crime exists among us to an extent unknown in Great Britain, Scandinavia, Holland, Belgium, France, or Germany. And our lawlessness is not an acute but a chronic disease.

"While we are a lawless people, we prohibit by law acts not elsewhere forbidden. For example, our laws and ordinances against gambling, narcotics, lewd conduct, selling or possessing alcoholic beverages, put burdens upon the police which those of England do not have to carry, and this state of things is likely to continue indefinitely.

"Our criminal procedure in the courts is cumbersome, slow, lax, uncertain. Our police, and particularly the detectives, are too often ill trained or untrained."

The committee recommended that the association declare that examination of persons under arrest except in the presence of the prisoners' attorneys are contrary to sound practice and an obstacle to law and order, that laws and rules be changed to permit the prosecution to comment on the fact that the defendant did not take the stand as a witness.

Recent legislation concerning crime was reported upon by Prof. James J. Robinson of the University of Indiana. Legislatures, he said, have difficulty in drawing the line between criminal law and personal liberty, and this is left to the courts to define.

Refers to Chicago Study.

"Until some legislative relief is provided for American police systems," he said, "all other criminal legislation is doomed to failure."

He referred to August Vollmer's comment on the Chicago police department, which was to the effect that for years the Chicago department had been dominated and controlled by corrupt political influence. He suggested legislation along these lines; a standard for executives, a police institute for the training of officials and for research, recruit training schools, coordination of police units, a state-wide communication system. Police work should be placed beside education as a public service, he declared.

This committee also reported that while the states everywhere were increasing the prison population and making laws more severe, they were failing to deal adequately with prison conditions. Present trends indicate, it was said, wide support of a program for abandonment of the death penalty.

Another committee reported that there is urgent need for a survey of the present state of psychiatric service as an aid to courts and to penal and correctional institutions.

Consider Crime Laboratories.

The medico-legal committee suggested many improvements in the aid of police and coroners in the way of medico-legal and criminological institutes, but recommended further study of this field before action was taken.

Calvin Goddard, head of the crime prevention bureau, told of the work of that body, which is affiliated with Northwestern university and the first of its kind to be established in this country.

Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk Law school, Boston, presented a report and an argument on the resolution that the association go on record as recommending that in every approved law school at least half of all law teaching therein be conducted by lawyers in active practice, or by men who have had at least ten years of experience in active practice. He deplored the present tendency to put "mere theorists" on the staffs of law schools.

Bar Association Convention Notes

Who's who in the law profession in America is well represented in the lawyers attending the fifty-third annual convention of the American Bar association in the Stevens hotel. There's John W. Davis, who has been practicing law in New York since 1924, when he ran for the presidency on the Democratic ticket. Mr. Davis arrived yesterday to attend some of the sessions, on his way home from California. He is 57, gray haired and rosy cheeked.

Gurney Newlin of Los Angeles, last year's president of the association, in addition to being an outstanding lawyer on the Pacific coast, has another badge of distinction. He is considered, according to veteran members of the association, as the best dressed bachelor at the convention. Yesterday he wore a double breasted suit of dark blue, a stiff collar and a tie of irreproachable sobriety.

Charlie C. McCall, attorney general of Alabama, is president of the national association of attorneys general now in session in connection with the bar association proceedings. He has his office, when at home, in the old statehouse which was once the capital of the confederacy and looks out upon gardens where Jefferson Davis once paced in agony. He came into national prominence a few years ago when he started a fight against the klan whippings in his state.

Col. Blanton Winship, former military aid to President Coolidge, and now on the adjutant general's staff in Washington, has been one of the observers at the preliminary sessions of the bar association. He represented the Philippine islands by order of the war department at the session on uniform laws. He has the clipped gray mustache, and the hard blue eye of the soldier, but there is a friendly twinkle in his eyes.

Josiah Marvel, Bloomington, Del., who, it is rumored, may be the next president of the association, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States senator. Mr. Marvel is the author of a law book on Delaware corporations, which exist in such numbers because, he says, Delaware has the best courts in the United States. He lives on a farm and raises most of his own foodstuffs—at great expense, he admits.

F. Dument Smith of Hutchinson, Kas., chairman of the American citizenship committee of the association, is a picturesque figure. In 1900 he was elected to the Kansas legislature as a representative of 19 counties, which then were largely cattle ranges, although he wore spats and a monocle. He was born in Kewanee, Ill.

Miss Leona Marie Esch, a member of the association, and operating director of the Cleveland Association for Criminal Justice for the last four years, is going to take time out from the criminal law sessions tonight to ride with Chicago police in a squad car. Miss Esch installed the radio system in squad cars in Cleveland and to do so was sent to a radio school by the crime commission.

William P. MacCracken Jr., Washington, secretary of the association, and assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, who is attending the convention, has not let a recent crackup dim his enthusiasm for flying.

John H. Voorhees, treasurer of the association, is from Sioux Falls, S. D. Mrs. Voorhees is with him. Mr. Voorhees wears tweeds and looks as if he belongs in a vigorous state like South Dakota.

VAN LEAR BLACK, RICH PUBLISHER, MISSING AT SEA

Disappears from Deck of His Yacht.

the coast guard vessel, which had been with her throughout the night. Then four 75 foot patrol boats went out into the roughened waters from St. George, S. I. Two more went out from Sandy Hook.

Then four amphibian planes were pressed into service. They sped about seeking some trace of the missing man. Equipped with radio, the planes kept in touch with the airport as they continued the fruitless search until darkness fell.

In the middle of the afternoon the navy department sent the Los Angeles to take part. When it reached the position of the searching vessels it slowed down, barely drifting along, while the officers in the gondola scanned the sea with their glasses.

Governor Aids Search.

At the request of Gov. Roosevelt, state troopers in New Jersey and coast guardsmen were tonight watching the beach from Sandy Hook as far as the Delaware in an effort to locate Mr. Black's body.

"I have not given up hope that Mr. Black has been picked up by a passing boat," Gov. Roosevelt said in a telegram to the New York World. "He is one of my oldest and best friends."

The Baltimore publisher came to New York on his most recent trip on Aug. 1. The Sabalo was anchored at the city island property of the New York Yacht club. And from there Mr. Black went on a number of short cruises along the sound. Gov. Roosevelt visited the yacht from Aug. 5 to 7, and Commander Richard E. Byrd was entertained at dinner there last Thursday night.

Widely Known for Flights.

Mr. Black was widely known for his series of flights, which began in 1927 and took him around the world, to the Dutch East Indies and to South America—a total mileage that has been estimated at about 125,000. In the first year of his aviation enthusiasm he toured Europe, saying that he was interested chiefly in demonstrating the possibilities of commercial aviation.

Later he went from Amsterdam to Batavia, Dutch East Indies, and then he started a flight from London to Cape Town, South Africa, — a trip which was interrupted by an accident. The African tour was continued later. His best known flight was that made around the world this year. He flew from London to Tokyo in some 113 hours' flying time. Crossed the Pacific on a ship and then continued by plane from San Francisco to Baltimore. He arrived there May 19, and said that the next event on his program would be a tour of South America.

Started Career as Clerk.

Mr. Black was born in Cumberland, Md., in 1875. His parents moved to Baltimore when he was a child. There as a young man he started as a clerk in the Fidelity Trust and Deposit company of which, in a later reorganization, he rose to be the head.

In 1899 Mr. Black married Miss Jessie Gary, daughter of the late Postmaster General James A. Gary. They had six children, H. Crawford, James Gary, Van Lear Jr., Jessie Gary, Ida Perry Gary, and Madeleine. All except the first named are living. There are three grandchildren. Mr. Black also has a brother, Harry C. Black.

Mr. Black was made chairman of the board of the A. S. Abell company, publishers of the Baltimore Sun and Evening Sun, in 1915, and is listed as director of a number of banking and industrial concerns in both Baltimore and New York.

RETAIL FOOD PRICES DOWN 2½ PER CENT FOR MONTH OF JULY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Retail food prices declined 2½ per cent during July by comparison with the preceding month, Twenty-six food articles brought down the price level, which was nine per cent lower than a year ago.

Department of labor computations for the last month showed potatoes and cabbage leading with a 21 per cent drop, plate beef next with 7 per cent, and many other meats, vegetables, fresh and canned, fruits and staples following with declines ranging from 5 to less than half of one per cent. Eggs, butter and canned salmon alone increased in price, while 13 staples showed no change.

Among the articles showing a one per cent drop was canned corn, for which a rise was anticipated in view of drought damage to the crop.

New Lincoln Statue for Dixon Site Is Completed

FINDS WOMEN DO LITTLE TO PURIFY POLITICS

Lawyer Says Her Working Sisters Weaken Mates

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Women, since they obtained the vote, have failed to do much toward cleansing politics, Miss Katherine Pike, lawyer from Washington and New York, said in an interview last night. She is attending the convention of the American Bar association and that of the National Association of Women Lawyers. The latter met last night and will meet again today in the Congress hotel.

"A great deal has been expected of women, but I see no reason why they should be expected to go right in and immediately purify politics," said Miss Pike, who recently resigned from the bureau of customs in Washington to enter private practice.

Follow Political Rules of Men.

"When a woman goes into politics, in order to succeed she must go in for practical politics, or the method men politicians have been using for so long."

Miss Pike believes that the suffrage movement, followed by the economic independence or large numbers of women, as a whole has resulted in women living broader, fuller lives. She has no sympathy, however, for women who do not have to work for their living but who become file clerks or work in shops for the added luxury of a pay check.

"I think it wrong for women like that to work. They are taking the jobs from those who need to work."

Makes "Men Weaker."

"Most women, however, work from necessity," she said, "and it is fine that they can. But the danger lies in robbing men of their responsibilities. I believe that in congested localities such as cities, where girls and women hold jobs and in addition do housework after marriage, that it is tending to cause men to become weaker and weaker."

Chief Justice Harry Olson addressed the women at last night's meeting. After explaining that the Domestic Relations court idea, which originated here in Chicago, was conceived by his wife, he continued to tell the women lawyers how important women were in the scheme of things.

"When it is realized what an advantage women lawyers have in the courts before judges and juries, all the leading law firms will have one woman lawyer in court with every case," he said.

Mrs. Olive Scott Gabriel, New York, president of the association, introduced Miss Frances E. Spooner, Chicago attorney, vice president of the association for Illinois, who presided.

Hunt Unknown Owners of "L" Debentures for Car Merger

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The committee for the adjustment of debenture bonds of the Chicago Rapid Transit company, which is to aid in the consolidation of the "L" with the surface lines, does not know the names of the holders of many of these securities.

These debentures total $13,563,000. They bear 6 per cent interest, but the interest may be cumulative at only 4 per cent when payments are missed. The interest has not been paid for several years.

Edwin L. Lobdell & Co., investment bankers, in their last analysis of local transportation securities, said that the accrued interest from July 1, 1924, to the first of this year totals $4,082,860. That is the equivalent of 22 per cent. Because this interest has not been paid, there is no complete list of the security holders.

Members Are Listed.

R. Floyd Clinch, president of the Crerar Clinch Coal company, is chairman of the debenture committee. Among the other members are Philip R. Clarke, president of the Central Trust company; Harold E. Foreman of the Foreman State bank; Stanley A. Russell, vice president of the National City company, and George Woodruff of the National Bank of the Republic.

"The prompt deposit of your securities," reads the appeal of the committee to the owners of the debentures, "is absolutely essential to a successful completion of the unification and consolidation of these properties.

"The Chicago Rapid Transit company for many years has been unable to earn an adequate return on its investment due to the excess[illegible] of financing improvements [illegible] sions and to the competi[illegible] surface lines for both long [illegible] haul business.

"In the opinion of the [illegible] the proposed consolidation [illegible] for a better and more economic division of this business and will enable both the elevated and the surface lines to supply improved service.

Hope For More Earnings.

"If there can be worked out an equitable exchange of the adjustment debenture bonds for securities of a new corporation, your position will be much improved through the great probability of increased earnings as a result from the unified operation of all of the transportation properties."

A hearing was held yesterday on the application for extensions of the south side surface lines. It is expected that the Illinois commerce commission will announce its decision in Springfield on these applications tomorrow.

The hearing on the proposed extensions by means of feeder buses were deferred until Sept. 24. The commission desires to give every person and organization an opportunity to be heard.

SURFACE LINE DEFICIT

For the second time in eight years the Chicago Surface lines yesterday reported a deficit in its divisible receipts, meaning that portion of the earnings of which the city takes 55 per cent and the company 45 per cent.

The deficit was incurred in the month of July and amounts to $111,672, as compared with divisible receipts of $229,314 earned in July, 1929. Company officials attribute the deficit to business and industrial depression as reflected in a decrease of [illegible] rides as compared with July, 1929.

FORECASTS NEW AIRPLANE SPEED RECORD AT RACES

290 Mi. an Hour Reported on Test Flight.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

News reports of the first test performance of Capt. Arthur H. Page's marine plane over Curtiss field, L. I., yesterday brought forth a prediction from Maj. R. W. Schroeder, contest director for the national air races, that a new world's speed record for land planes will be established at the annual race meet which opens here Saturday.

Capt. Page, who has entered the specially built Curtiss Hawk in the Thompson trophy free for all race, flew his plane four times over the measured speed course, looped, dived, and cautiously experimented with the machine's structural strength while the huge motor developed more than 750 horse power in the small plane, reports from New York stated.

Estimate 290 Miles an Hour.

Mechanics at the field estimated from Capt. Page's time over the course that the plane established a speed of more than 290 miles an hour, but the marine pilot refused to comment. The world's record to date for land planes is 266 miles an hour, held by Lieut. Al Williams, former navy speed flyer, who is unofficially credited with land plane speeds up to 300 miles an hour.

On each of his landings yesterday Capt. Page used most of the airport's landing area because of the terrific landing speed of the plane, which has but little more than half the wing area of a standard Curtiss Hawk.

An additional starter for the Thompson trophy race was among the belated entries received yesterday by the contest committee of the air meet. The entrant is Lieut. Paul T. Adams of Coronado, Cal., a naval flyer, and the second service entrant in the sweepstakes race. He will fly a Travelair biplane equipped with a Wright J-6-9 motor.

Aces Arrive Tomorrow.

The vanguard of famous flyers bound for Chicago to take part in the air races will arrive here tomorrow morning. They are the five noted European airmen who have formed an international flying team to perform each day of the ten day race meet.

Consuls of the five nations represented by the European aces will head delegations of their own national groups to greet their heroes with bands and speeches of welcome when they step from the advance section of the Twentieth Century at the La Salle street station at 9:45 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Lieut. Williams has the foreign flyers in tow and will act as their host and fly with them in their exhibitions at Curtiss field. They are Marcel Doret, France; Capt. Fritz Loose, Germany; Marshal Pietro Colombo, Italy; Flight Lieutenant R. L. Atcherley, and Lieut. Preston, Great Britain. Mme. Doret will accompany her husband to the races.

Will Ride Through Loop.

After the reception at the station the flyers will ride through the loop along Lake Shore drive to Lincoln park, where they will pause to place a wreath at the foot of Lincoln's statue. Later they will be entertained at luncheon in the Sherman hotel.

Two Canadian flyers were added yesterday to the list of foreign flyers who will fly in the races. They are F. G. M. Sparks of Montreal, who entered three low powered speed events with a De Havilland Puss Moth, and M. M. Foss, carrying the colors of the Montreal Light Aeroplane club, who entered an equal number of events with a De Havilland Moth.

Rumors that a mysterious Polish flyer had been sent by the Polish government to take part in the Chicago races and ordered not to disclose his identity until he stepped from the Bremen when it docked at New York yesterday, could not be verified. Ships news reporters in New York were unable to find any trace of a Polish pilot.

Lieut. Erick Nelson, around-the-world flyer, who will be the first of the celebrated American airmen to arrive for the races, is due to fly into Curtiss airport this morning, piloting the latest type of mail plane, a Hornet-powered Boeing monomail, which in recent flight tests carried a ton of mail at 140 miles an hour. The plane will compete in the races.

Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, president of the National Aeronautical association, will be the first member of the large delegation of Washington officials to arrive. He will fly here from Cleveland tomorrow morning, accompanied by Porter Adams of Boston, his predecessor as head of the N. A. A.

Yesterday at Curtiss field Maj. Schroeder made ready for the reception of hundreds of racing planes. The planes at the Curtiss base were taken from their hangars and parked in a neraby field and the hangers were converted into clubrooms and restaurants.

NEW YORK SEA SCOUTS HERE

Cruises 1,200 Miles

The good ship Pinta, the largest Sea Scout ship in this country, is at anchor in Monroe street harbor after a 1,200 mile cruise of the great lakes—her maiden voyage manned by Sea Scouts.

The Pinta was purchased by the regional Sea Scout committee headed by Thorne Donnelley and converted into a training ship for Sea Scouts after she had been seized by revenue officers for rum running. After being overhauled she will be ready for a fall cruise. Next summer she will sail the lakes on two week cruises with her crew from Sea Scouts of region 7, which includes Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Indiana. It has accommodations for 48 men and 4 officers.

Lithuania's Secret Police Chief Shot While Asleep

KOENIGSBERG, Germany, Aug. 19 —(AP)—Dispatches from Kovno, Lithuania, tonight reported an attempt to assassinate the chief of the Lithuanian secret police, Col. Rustelka. He was shot in the head and stabbed in the body while sleeping. His assailants are believed to have been two followers of Augustine Waldemaras, ex-premier of Lithuania, who recently was exiled to the provinces.

FLYERS HOP OFF TODAY TO TOUR STATE AIRPORTS

Air Caravan Will Return for Races Saturday.

A fleet of 30 airplanes will take off at Curtiss airport this morning on the second annual air tour of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce to inspect progress in airport development and other aeronautical achievements throughout the state during the last year.

The voyage will take the 30 aircraft on a 1,000 mile journey around the state, visiting 22 cities on the four day tour. Overnight stops are planned at Moline tonight; Decatur, tomorrow night, and Mattoon, Friday night. The aerial caravan will return to Chicago Saturday afternoon, arriving at Curtiss airport in the midst of the opening day program at the National Air races.

Start at 9 A. M.

M. C. Meigs, chairman of the Chicago Aero commission and vice chairman of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce aviation committee, will direct the tour. At 9 a. m. the trimotored cruiser of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana will take off as flagship of the air fleet, followed at brief intervals by each of the other craft carrying business and industrial leaders interested in the progress of aviation.

Schedule of Stops.

The first day's schedule provides for inspection stops at Elgin, DeKalb, Rockford, where the flyers will have luncheon; Dixon, Sterling, Kewanee and Moline. On Thursday the airmen will visit Monmouth, La Salle, Streator, Peoria, Bloomington and Decatur. Friday's log will include Springfield, East St. Louis, Marion, Centralia and Mattoon. The last day will take the travelers to Champaign, Danville, Kankakee, Aurora and back to the air races.

A party of 30 from Peoria flew here yesterday in a large cabin plane and will join the air caravan this morning. After the tour, the Peorians plan to remain in Chicago for the air races.

Drunken Bandits Raid Hospital; Terrorize Women

Two drunken bandits, one armed with a sawed off shotgun, yesterday invaded the lobby of the Chicago Lying-In hospital at 426 East 51st street, terrorizing three women and three men, and robbing Clifford Hughes, the clerk, of $100. They fired once into the floor, but did not try to molest anybody.

ALLEGED BANK SWINDLER HELD.

MANY AIR FANS HIT SKY TRAILS TO CHICAGO MEET

200,000 Outsiders Due to Attend Races.

Dispatches from all over the country yesterday brought word of crowds of aviation leaders and flying enthusiasts who are coming to Chicago to attend the 1930 national air races which open at Curtiss airport Saturday. Most of the visitors, especially those from distant points, are traveling here by air, while many from downstate and nearby cities are coming by train and automobile.

News reports on Monday told of a large delegation of Washington officials who will arrive here late this week for the races and of a crowd of flyers and sportsmen who are journeying here from New York for the air meet. Yesterday brought word of the crowds coming from Los Angeles, Cincinnati, St. Paul, Cleveland, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Louis, Peoria, Rockford and many other cities.

The Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday estimated that 200,000 of the million people expected at the races will come from points outside of Chicago.

Californians on Way.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Fifty southern California aviation leaders today are either flying to Chicago for the national air races or are preparing to leave.

Besides the fifty, who include presidents of aircraft and motor companies, women pilots, movie stunt flyers, writers, and directors of commercial flying organizations, several hundred others—wives, daughters, and sons and ordinary air fans—will attend the aerial spectacle.

Eighteen private planes are transporting local aviation leaders. Boeing Air Transport, Western Air Express, and Transcontinental Air Transport all report heavy middle west bookings for the last four days of the week. The accelerated passenger traffic is attributed to the Chicago races.

Flying to Races.

Among those flying east are W. E. "Tommy" Thomas, Dudley Steele, Grover Rucksbell, G. C. Garden, Roy Miner, H. C. Lippiatt, Woodruff de Silva, and Roy Harding, all officials of west coast aviation companies; Pat Fleming, holder of a world speed record for tri-motored planes; Robert J. Pritchard, aviation writer; Frank Clarke and Roy Wilson, motion picture stunt flyers, and L. C. Thornton, armless pilot.

Mrs. Florence Lowe Barnes and Mrs. Claire Fahy, two of the original entrants in the women's air Derby, which started from Long Beach on Sunday, may beat their southern California sisters to Chicago. Mrs. Fahy, who is widow of the star flyer, Herb Fahy, will fly her new Waco to the races, if her surgeon can be convinced that she is sufficiently recovered from injuries incurred in the crash in which her husband was killed last year.

Wants Race With Amelia.

Mrs. Barnes wants to race Amelia Earhart in a dual speed dash over a closed course, but has not heard if such arrangements can be made for the Chicago air meet.

In one of the planes accompanying the woman's derby are Frank M. Gorey and Leo Root, who are flying east on a $2,000 bet with a Long Beach capitalist. They bet $2,000 that they could make a tour of the United States without spending a cent for plane, fuel, rooms or food.

Waldo Waterman, veteran flyer, is taking his new hinged-wing monoplane from Los Angeles to Chicago.

Movie Men May Fly Here.

Clarence Brown, well known as a movie director and before that a flying instructor in the United States army during the war, probably will be in the eastbound sky flotilla with his Stearman. Brown said that he and Wallace Beery, film star, hoped to see some of the Chicago events if their picture arrangements would fit this plan. Beery has flown his own plane for three years.

To Fly from Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Air travel will supersede train travel when several hundred Clevelanders, representing the air transport and manufacturing interests of the city, attend the 1930 national air races at Chicago.

Cincinnati to Send Crowd.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—A delegation of more than 75 Cincinnati men and women will attend the national air races in Chicago, according to information obtained by Howard Wilson, secretary of the chamber of commerce aviation committee. Wilson said about half of the group will go to the races by plane, the others journeying by rail.

100 Coming from Rockford.

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Approximately 100 Rockford persons will attend the national air races at Chicago, it was estimated today. Although most of them plan to drive to Curtiss field, a score will travel the air route. Fred Machesney, manager of the Rockford airport, said tonight that he had had several inquiries about air transportation and indicated that he would make several trips with passengers.

200 Peorians to Attend.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—More than two hundred Peorians plan to attend the national air races in Chicago, according to aviation leaders here. A few expect to fly while the majority will make the trip by auto. Few are planning on a trip by rail.

700 Coming from Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—At least 700 people are planning to leave from here to attend the air races at Chicago, according to Frank Fogarty of the Omaha chamber of commerce. Dean Noyes, director of the municipal airport, estimates hat 25 planes, carrying 100 passengers, will leave his airport. Reports from private fields stated that at least 100 others will make the trip in private planes and over the Boeing air line.

Estimate from St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Officials at the St. Louis flying field estimate that between 150 and 200 persons from St. Louis will attend the Chicago air races. The estimated total includes virtually all of the executives connected with local aviation concerns.

St. Paul Fans to Attend.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—About 50 St. Paul aviation enthusiasts were completing plans today to attend the national air races in Chicago.

BOY BURNED TO DEATH.

Valparaiso, Ind., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Walking into a burning barn set on fire while his father was repairing his automobile, Robert Stoner, 6 year old son of Kenneth Stoner, was burned to death. The father was severely burned recovering the body.

GLADYS O'DONNELL INCREASES HER LEAD IN RACE TO CHICAGO

Douglas, Ariz., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, Long Beach, Cal., won the fourth and fifth laps of the women's national air Derby today to increased her elapsed time lead to more than 16 minutes over Marjorie Doig, Danbury, Conn., who was in second place.

The six women who took off Sunday at Long Beach on the nine day jaunt to Chicago, made the morning flight from Phoenix to Tucson and the afternoon trip from Tucson here without serious mishap.

Mrs. Mildred Morgan, Beverly Hills, Cal., crowded Jean La Rene, Kansas City, out of third place by finishing ahead of her in both of today's flights.

Illinoisan First Into San Antonio.

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 19.—(AP)—John Livingston of Aurora, Ill., arrived at Winburn field, San Antonio, at 4:47:30 p. m. on the first leg of the Brownsville-Chicago air Derby. W. G. Moore of Kansas City, his only competitor, arrived at 4:50 p. m.

DROUGHT GIVES LOWLANDS THEIR YEAR TO EXULT

Illinois Farm Story Not All One of Gloom.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Edwardsville, Ill., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Many farmers are putting in their hardest work these days at the old pumphandle while others are carrying water for miles in tanks for their live stock. Rivermen looking at the sand flats where once the Illinois and Mississippi flowed are trying to figure when the increased diversion from Lake Michigan will reach their towns and hoist the level—the extra flow of 6,000 cubic feet is expected to reach Hardin about Wednesday night—while road builders also are up against the lowered water table.

With creeks and springs dried up, water in some cases is being carried four to six miles for the concrete workers. On one project near Godfrey, near Alton, where sixty farmers applied yesterday for work on the roads, two springs were dammed up, yet water had to be piped in, and the water supply is becoming a problem in connection with some of the suggested construction work to help the farmers.

Driest in Sixty-Seven Years.

At Alton the river is so low that federal mud suckers are pumping out the harbor. The steamer Bald Eagle was recently stuck on a bar right in front of town and remained stranded two days while passengers were taken off in motor boats and sent on to St. Louis. Barges moving up and down the river carry light cargoes to keep from bumping, and the river is reported at its driest in sixty-seven years.

From Quincy to Edwardsville, the traveler hears one story—the lowlanders have the advantage over the highlanders in the drought period. In the triangle between the Illinois and Mississippi rivers, the corn on the bottoms is comparatively in good shape. Through New Canton, Pleasant Hill, and Mozier to Hardin, the traveler passes over a succession of creeks, dusty and dry almost at their mouth.

Following the road "under the bluffs" the bottom land farmers, many of them, say they expect to find this year more profitable than last. Wheat was good, although most of it went for 75 cents as the growers needed the money. The pastures are not so hard hit as on the higher land, where the water was drained away, and with a 60 per cent corn yield at the advanced prices, the black bottom farmers seem tolerably content.

Real Damage in "Next County."

At Atlas, oldest settlement in Pike county and once the county seat, the Sunday night convocation of farmers at the grocery store gave testimony. "The drought year is the time we've got the edge on the highland farmers," said the spokesman. "Prospects are for a fair corn crop, and at the increased price we'll get more than if the country had a bumper crop. But you ought to see conditions over to the east in some of the counties that were burned."

So far on the trip along the dusty river courses, that's been a sort of keynote—"the real damage is in the next county."

Midnight at Hardin found the ferryman worrying when the increased flow from Chicago would raise the river level. In the regular channel, a tug with some difficulty was bunting a gasoline tank barge into its moorings. "If he misses it a foot," said the ferryman, "he'll be stuck in three feet of water. Never saw the river so low, man and boy. But Wednesday night the extra water from Lake Michigan ought to come by to help traffic. Nothing looks so foolish to me as a river without water enough to keep it running. And the old Illinois sure looks worn out these days; needs some of those Kansas goat glands I read about, I reckon."

Calhoun county, which never had a railroad, is a great apple country and also boasts it "never has a bug." If an apple knocker doesn't spray, they will do it for him. This year the county expects to ship nearly 500,000 barrels of apples at an estimated value of more than $2,000,000.

Madison county, which seems less hard hit by the drought than some other counties, expects a 50 per cent corn yield, according to the figures T. W. May, farm advisor, sent to President Hoover. It had a fair wheat crop, most of which went for 75 or 80 cents, as many of the farmers had two or three poor years and needed the money.

Rotor Driven Aircraft in Near Debut in East

New York, Aug. 19.—[Special.]—A wingless aircraft, an aeronautical adaption of the Flettner rotor, the thoeretical claims for which promise the eclipse of any aerial vehicle thus far if proven practical, is being secretly developed on Long Island sound off Mamaroneck, it was revealed today.

Backed by a group of New York financiers, three inventors have lived in secret, built their new type all-metal craft and conducted their experiments from a barge moored near Hen Island. Success in making several flights with the machine has been reported.

Report Chrysler Backing Project.

One of the financiers was revealed as Harold E. Talbott Jr., of 230 Park avenue and on good authority it was learned that Walter P. Chrysler, auto manufacturer, is also associated with the project.

Despite the reticence of those connected with the inventors and backers the machine has been seen by several persons who have sufficient knowledge of aircraft to analyze its principles of operation.

Aside from the elimination of the wing and the alterations of several other details it is similar in appearance to a conventional seaplane. A motor in the nose supplies traction through a large three-bladed steel propeller. An auxiliary aircooled gypsy motor supplies power to rotate the cylinders which supplant the wings.

Will Lift Heavier Load.

These rotors, in which the underlying principle of the new theory of flight is housed, are in four sections, two on each side of the center longitudinal line of the craft. Forward is an outrigged rudder and behind is a small pair of tandem cockpits, together with a set of tail surfaces similar to those in use on conventional airplanes.

It has been declared that the machine will lift nearly ten times the load of an airplane of equal weight or lift area and at the same time reduce the resistance to a point where hitherto unknown speed will be possible when structural details for strength have been carried out.

HOOVER NAMES 8 ON U. S. DROUGHT RELIEF BOARD

Finds Distress Is Acute in 300 Counties.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—President Hoovers' drought relief plans reached the organization stage today as the President appointed the federal relief committee and reported the selection of state committees by the governors of Illinois, Virginia and Kansas.

The President at the same time expressed gratification over the progress already made and the recent rains which have broken the drought in some of the driest districts. He warned however, that continuing reports confirm the severity of the situation and that "the burden of the problem in the acute area will show very much more vividly over the winter than at the present moment."

Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, named chairman of the national committee, announced that he would call it togsther at once to undertake its task of coördinating the relief activity. Other members of the committee are Chairmen Alexander Legge of the federal farm board, Paul Bestor, chairman of the federal farm loan board; Roy Young, chairman of the federal reserve board; John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross; Under-secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills; Henry M. Robinson, president of the First National bank of Los Angeles, and R. H. Aishton of Evanston, Ill., president of the American Railway association.

Undertake Special Problems.

"These members from the different national organizations," said Mr. Hoover, "will appoint alternates or additional members from these agencies from time to time to undertake the special problems before the committee. Mr. Robinson has consented to serve on the committee for purposes of coordinating federal with state and private credit activities. The headquarters of the national drought relief committee are being set up in the department of agriculture.

"The governors of the various states are moving rapidly in the creation of their organizations. The governors of Illinois and Virginia have reported their committees, comprising men of high leadership in their states. These committees are already actively creating their county organizations.

"Continuing reports confirm the severity of the situation and the inevitability of distress over the winter in the actually affected counties, which now apparently number something over 300. The rains of the last few days have stemmed the spread of the drought and greatly improved the situation outside of the acutely affected area. In these areas the destruction of crops has proceeded to a point that is beyond any great degree of recovery, although pasturage should improve.

Warns of Distress in Winter.

"It must be borne in mind that from a relief point of view the burden of the problem in the acute area will show very much more vividly over the winter than at the present moment.

"I have received from all sections of the drought area high appreciation of the railways for their prompt and constructive action. It is a notable act of courageous coöperation that has been undertaken in the face of seriously reduced income due to the depression. It emphasizes the public interest of maintaining the strength and financial stability of our railways, that they shall be able to coöperate in times of national difficulty.

"In order that there may be no failure to cover any case of distress pending the time when the states have completed their detailed organization, the Red Cross has given instructions to all their county agencies to take care of the situation."

Under the organization plans formed at the President's conference with the governors and spokesmen of thirteen states last Thursday, the state committees, in turn, will organize county committees and the network of local and regional groups will be coördinated through the federal committee.

DROUGHT RELIEF FOR INDIANA IS BLOCKED BY LAW

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 19.—Plans of Gov. Harry G. Leslie to borrow $2,000,000 to use on Indiana's highway system this year were blocked this afternoon when the state auditor's office warned the governor any further borrowing above the previously determined budget maximum would be illegal.

By offering four per cent interest the governor had planned to get $1,000,000 from Indiana bankers, match it with $1,000,000 available from the federal highway fund if the first $1,000,000 was spent in approved fashion, and then continue the Indinia road building program, offering employment to southern Indiana farmers hard hit by the drought.

The governor's drought relief committee include as heads Elmer Stout, Indianapolis banker; Dean J. H. Skinner of Purdue university; William Fortune, Indianapolis director of the Red Cross; William H. Settle, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau federation, and Albert J. Weteking, state highway commission chairman.

Lightning Bolt Strips Woman of Her Clothing

Tabor, Ia., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Struck by lightning as she stood at the porch door of her home today, Mrs. William Kimsely, 25, was completely divested of her clothing and suffered a burn four inches wide the entire length of her spine. The bolt also burned the hand of her husband, sitting nearby, and in a freak wave entered the kitchen and stripped a large portion of the paper from the wall.

ADAMS DEFENDS NAVY'S RIGHT TO LAND AIR BASES

Replies to Hurley's Letter on Torpedo Planes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—The right of the navy to a limited number of land air bases for its use in protecting American coastal air lanes and national possessions outside continental United States is upheld by Secretary of the Navy Adams in a letter prepared today for transmission to President Hoover.

This communication, which was a reply to the war department's contention that all land based tactical air units should be controlled by the army, marked the latest development in the long standing dispute between the army and navy over control of coastal air defense. Four communications on this subject have been placed in the President's hands by Secretary of War Hurley and navy officials since Mr. Hoover took up the task of settling the "row."

At present both the army and navy maintain tactical fighting units at land bases. The coastal air defense, however, has been jeopardized by the inability of the two services to agree on a division of the work. The result will be that agitation for a united land air force will be revived when congress meets next winter.

Function to Protect Sea Lanes.

At present the navy operates patrol and scouting aircraft from shore in its function of protecting sea lanes. The army operates aircraft from shore bases for all other purposes. The heart of the dispute is over which service shall provide and control the bombing and pursuit aircraft that will operate from land bases and fly over the sea to their flying radius.

The navy maintains air training stations at San Diego and Hampton Roads. It has torpedo units at Panama and Honolulu and is seeking more torpedo and patrol planes for use at these outlying bases. The army charges that the navy is duplicating army work and violating the joint board air agreement when it utilizes bombing planes from Panama and Honolulu, and Secretary Hurley has urged that the navy be given no more funds for torpedo planes for these points.

Cites 1927 Agreement.

In his latest communication Secretary Adams calls attention to the 1927 agreement for joint air action by the army and navy along the coast line which was prepared by the joint board of the army and navy and urges that the army be directed to conform to its provision.

"To avoid duplication in peacetime procurement," says Secretary Adams, "the navy's land based aircraft will be limited to those primarily designed and ordinarily used for scouting and patrolling over the sea. The army will not provide such aircraft at points within the normal operating radius of a place where the navy has provided them in numbers sufficient to meet army peacetime requirements or where the navy will so provide them at the request of the secretary of war."

HOOVER WON'T TAKE HIS VACATION TRIP BEFORE OCTOBER

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—President Hoover will not take an extended vacation from the national capital before early in October it was said at the White House today. His plans for the autumn stil are in the formative stage, but it is understood he may go to Mexico or take a Caribbean trip.

For the present the President will spend two or three nights a week at the Rapidan camp and the rest of the time in Washington.

Selection of the five members of the tariff commission and the completion of the 1932 budget now being formulated are two of the tasks that will engros Mr. Hoover's attention during the next six weeks.

Hunt Owner of $7,000 Gems Taken from Woman

Chief of Detectives John Norton yesterday began trying to find the owner of $7,000 worth of jewelry recovered when Gladys Payne, colored, of 4715 South Michigan avenue tried to obtain a loan on it in a pawnshop. Sergt. Fred Wirsing happended to be there and took her to the detective bureau. The jewelry consists of a $4,000 platinum bracelet, a $2,000 flower basket brooch, and a ring engraved with the initials L. L. A. P., which, jewelers say, once belonged to a member of the German nobility. The Payne woman's uncle, Harry Rose, car cleaner for the Michigan Central railroad, said he found the jewelry while cleaning out an observation car.

CARDINAL RAPS MACHINE GUN AS GUIDE TO VIRTUE

Deplores Fanaticism in Legislation.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Criticism of the enforcement of virtue by statute and machine gun and a plea for the settlement of the unemployment problem were addressed to the 48th annual supreme convention of the Knights of Columbus here today by Catholic leaders in the church and in public life.

Spirit of Old Testament.

Cardinal William O'Connell, speaking of Puritanism, said:

"Puritanism was an extreme, which, unchecked, was bound to lead to fanaticism. We wish we could say that there was nothing of this unsocial, uncongenial spirit left in America. But alas, from time to time, we are made only too conscious of it by the enactment of laws and statutes which still indicate the spirit of the Old Testament and not that of the new.

"History proves that goodness and virtue and righteousness cannot be forced on a people by statutes or by machine guns. But, while we shudder at the fierce austerity of Puritan life, we would do well not to forget that luxury and wealth may lead to the corruption even of the best and destroy the very foundation of this nation, founded by sturdy men in poverty and privation."

Asks Three Questions.

Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston, who followed the cardinal, asked the Knights three questions:

"Did you ever stop to consider how it is possible for a man to be a good citizen and a good Catholic if he travels in adversity?

"Is it not time that the intellect of America was applied to some character of solution of the age old problem of banishing poverty from the richest nation in this world?

"I wonder if this land is incapable of settling the problem of unemployment, the breeding spot of poverty, disease, crime and ignorance?"

And Mayor Curley closed with the hope that the convention would give some thought to the subject.

This afternoon, following a business meeting, the delegates, numbering several thousand, made an historical pilgrimage to Bunker Hill and to Lexington and Concord, where the American revolution started. Tonight they saw the opera "Priscilla," given by the K. of C. Dramatic society.

Catholic Women Meet.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Members of the National Catholic Women's union were urged today in resolutions adopted at the annual convention to assist in electing candidates for the national house of representatives and state legislatures this fall with "sound ethical, moral, and Christian principles."

Resolutions against birth control, inordinate love of luxuries, and jury service for women also were adopted at the convention, held in connection with that of the Catholic Central Verein of America.

A. FUCHS, RICH CHICAGOAN, WEDS IN LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Albert Fuchs, 65, wealthy Chicago widower, and Miss Johanna Stengel, 28, of Pasadena, were married by Superior Judge Walter Hanby of Los Angeles on July 28, according to records here. Fuchs formerly was married to Fanny Richter, international concert pianist, who died here in February, 1928.

In March, 1930, Fuchs was sued here for $500,000 by his former secretary, Miss Martha Marie Gullickson of Chicago. She alleged her employer had induced her to come to California under promise of marriage. When she arrived in Los Angeles he asked her to live as his common law wife, Miss Gullickson alleged. She asked $500,000 for breach of promise.

DRY LAW INFLUX MOVES 1,600 AT FEDERAL PRISON

Drug Addicts Are Sent to Military Jail.

Leavenworth, Kas., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—More than 1,600 federal prisoners, all narcotic addicts, have been transferred from the United States penitentiary here to the former military prison at Fort Leavenworth, to make room for the steadily growing influx of men convicted of violation of the prohibition laws.

The prison records of the last four years disclosed an amazing increase in the number of dry law convicts.

Four Year Comparison.

In the fiscal year ending in June, 1927, 2,212 convicts were received by court commitment at the penitentiary, of whom 362 were liquor law violators. In 1928, the prison received 2,471 convicts, of whom 544 were liquor cases.

Last year, 2,398 men were committed of whom 636 were dry law convicts, and in the fiscal year, ended last June, 3,094 convicts were received, of whom 1,469, or nearly half, were dry law violators.

In the first six months of 1930 the prison received 863 liquor law violators, which exceeds the total for the fiscal years of 1927 and 1928.

Prison Still Overcrowded.

A majority of the liquor law offenders were still operators, brewers, liquor runners, and retailers of whiskey and beer. They do not include thousands of other cases for petty violations for which fines were assessed and jail sentences given by federal judges.

The penitentiary, which comfortably houses 2,000 men, now has a population in excess of 3,500. The military prison, built to accommodate 1,700, has 1,600 drug addicts.

DRY AGENTS SEEKING SUPPLY SOURCES FOR CAPITAL BOOZE RING

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Special prohibition agents, charged with ferreting out the major liquor conspiracies, today sought in Pennsylvania and Maryland the financial sponsors of a huge alcohol running ring recently exposed here.

Seven persons, including two women all arrested in Washington, were being held for preliminary hearings before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

The group is believed by prohibition officers to have disposed of 24,000 gallons of alcohol within two months. This, the officials said, was brought to Washington in the form of perfumery and other legitimate merchandise, redistilled and sold to local bootleggers.

The source of this supply, believed to have originated in Pennsylvania and Maryland, is now the objective of the authorities. The Washington unit of special prohibition agents, under W. A. Heddens, is in charge of the investigation.

Heddens said today that in addition to bringing criminal prosecutions he intends to turn his evidence over Dr. James M. Doran, chief of the bureau of industrial alcohol, for investigation and cancellation of any legitimate industrial alcohol permits that may be found to have been abused.

Eugene Silvain, 79 Yrs. Old, Loses Power of Speech

MARSEILLES, France, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Eugene Silvain, dean of the actors of the Comedie Française, was considered by his doctors tonight to be in a desperate condition. He has been stricken with partial paralysis while in his villa at St. Cyre les Seques, department of war, and temporarily deprived of speech. A contemporary of Sarah Bernhardt, he is 79 years old.

FAKE FUND COLLECTOR FINED.

CAPITAL STIRRED BY STORY MABEL HAS WINE CLIENT

Her Office Denies She's Fruit Juice Lawyer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—A stir was caused in official Washington circles today by the report that Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, militant dry firebrand during her term as assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition prosecutions, now is lending her legal talents to Fruit Industries, Inc., an amalgamation of California grape concerns which handles medicinal wines, among other products.

Despite denials from Mrs. Willebrandt that she had been employed as general counsel for Fruit Industries, Inc., all indications in Washington pointed to the fact that she had been active in taking care of its interests before the federal farm board and before the treasury department. It was disclosed today that within the last few weeks Mrs. Willebrandt appeared at the bureau of industrial alcohol in behalf of the grape products concern.

Handles Medicinal Wines.

Fruit Industries, Inc., handles medicinal wines, fortified brandies for cooking purposes, concentrated fruit juices, and other alcoholic products in addition to its normal business of handling the grape crop. A permit allowing it to manufacture alcoholic products for the legal trade is utilized by the corporation.

There have been no recent changes in the fruit juice regulations and none now is contemplated so far as can be foretold at this time. Indications are that Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of prohibition, will not pay too much attention at first to the distribution of grape juice concentrates, even if they later are turned into wine for home consumption.

Grape interests who have borrowed funds amounting to more than a million dollars from the farm loan board to aid them in disposing of an annual surplus have given thought to expanding their fruit juice business as a remedy.

Entertains Dry Administrators.

The opinion here is that the corporation has employed Mrs. Willebrandt because of her knowledge of the prohibition law gained from her years as dry prosecutor. Mrs. Willebrandt recently entertained several of the prohibition administrators as well as Mr. Woodcock at a dinner in her home.

Rumors that Mrs. Willebrandt has been employed by grape interests have been prevalent for some time. Officials generally denied knowledge of her activities and at her offices denial was made as late as last week that she was employed by the California companies.

FOUND DEAD; PISTOL NEAR.

Edwin H. Crook, 65 years old, 5526 Harper avenue, died last night at the Illinois Central hospital after shooting himself in the head with his revolver while lying on the grass in Jackson park, near 56th street and the outer drive, earlier in evening.

U. S. TRAVEL BUREAU PROPOSED TO URGE 'SEE AMERICA FIRST'

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Legislation authorizing the creation of a travel division in the department of commerce has been prepared for submission to congress at the December session, it was learned today. The function of the division would be both to promote foreign travel in this country and to induce more Americans to "see America first." At the present time American tourists are spending more money in foreign countries than the total value of all American exports to many of those nations, partly because of advertising campaigns and other inducements of the foreign governments. There is no official agency now handling such activities in this country.

Five hundred and seventy-five official mechanical service stations render free mechanical first aid and towing service to members of the Chicago Motor Club, outside of Cook County; in Cook County the Club operates its own equipment.

A Break-down 100 Miles From Home

Car trouble may find you far from a garage; it may come as you start out in the morning, or it may come late at night when you are a hundred miles from home.

One hundred thousand motorists have protected themselves and their families in just such emergencies by means of membership in the Chicago Motor Club. When they are in need of help they call the club. In 1929 members sent in 120,000 calls for free mechanical first aid and towing service. Eighty-six per cent of the trouble cases were remedied by club mechanics on the spot; the remainder of the calls were tow jobs. No charge is made for mechanical first aid or towing service. Like all other services of the club, this service is free to members.

You are as close to help as the nearest telephone. The service is available at any hour of the day or night.

In Cook county members call the club and the service is rendered by club mechanics. In the sixty-one other counties of the club territory in Illinois and northern Indiana the service is rendered by approved service stations.

In addition to mechanical first aid and towing service, the club provides members with such services as these:

Travel service, which provides you with maps, logs and the most complete and up to the minute advice on road conditions.

Bail bond service, which guarantees your appearance in traffic violation cases where a bond not in excess of $100 is demanded.

Accident prevention work, which seeks to cut accidents, especially among school children, by means of safety posters and schoolboy patrols.

Home district service, which attends to special conditions around your home, such as seeing to it that refuse is promptly removed.

Insurance service, which provides the following features: The valued form policy, which in the event of total loss pays the face value of the policy. Accessories are covered without additional charge. Last year the "exchange" returned cash savings to subscribers amounting to $711,332.11. Automobile insurance sales amounted to $3,894,706.04.

GEORGE E. COLE, A COMBATANT CITIZEN.

George E. Cole is dead at the age of 85. Forty years ago his sturdy figure and resolute face were to be found wherever ideas of honest and competent government had first line contact with corruption and corruptibility. As his physical strength lessened his combatant contacts decreased but his interest did not, and only six months ago he was urging the calling of a constitutional convention to make some desirable structural changes in government.

Mr. Cole was a determined fighter. The Chicago of his younger activities had much of the conduct of a riproaring frontier town. Its moral sense was tolerant. Gambling house cappers barked on the sidewalks. The red light district spotted the business section and pressed in on it from all sides. The traffic jam in Michigan avenue was one of bicycles. On the sidewalk it was one of street walkers. Local government came out of basement dives and corporation offices. It was a merry life and the average citizen, doing largely as he pleased, didn't seem to care much about the jovialities of political corruption and unchecked vice. Most legislation could have been marked "sold" and the only regret of the Chicago council was that its opportunities were fewer than were offered at Springfield. Charles T. Yerkes was trying to get the Chicago streets by purchase—for an improved street car system, it is true—Carter Harrison was trying to stop him and both legislature and council and the state administration were trying to oblige him.

It was in these gay days of roaring rascality that George E. Cole stepped forward with other determined citizens to change the map of political action and to create a community conscience. They had ropes hanging from the gallery of the council chamber before they began to make real headway with the Municipal Voters' league against the Gray Wolves.

It was unpleasant and even dangerous work to oppose the corruptionists. It is true that there wasn't then a murder instinct in the bad lands, but the customers were rough and Mr. Cole and his associates often had to expose themselves to the possibility of violence when they went to Springfield and imperturbably faced down the angry grafters who threatened them. It was such an exhibition of combatant citizenship as a community needs when its public affairs have been permitted to fall into corruption and which it must have or decay itself. The days into which George Cole's old age carried him are looking for his successors.

INFLUENCE OF THE LEGAL PROFESSION.

A speaker at a preliminary gathering of lawyers attending the convention of the American Bar association told his hearers that his profession had never been held in such low esteem as it now is. This seems to us a rather pessimistic opinion, but, without making comparison with other times, it may be said with due respect to the learned fraternity which it is Chicago's privilege to receive this week that its influence in public affairs is less than it should be.

It may very well be less than it has been in past generations in our country and for reasons that seem to us fairly clear. The lawyer of the past was naturally a leader in the new communities and in the larger community which was the nation, because our legal and political fabric was in the making, the laws of property and of social relations were in process of formation or, when they were derived, as they generally were, from the ancient laws of the mother country were in need of new interpretation, application and extension. In this period the lawyer and the judge were the most conspicuous figures in every community. We were in those days a very litigious people and a law suit was less a necessary evil than a form of entertainment.

We need not say how American life has changed even in our time, but the outstanding fact so far as the lawyer is concerned is that he has become a business man. With the huge and rapid growth of wealth, the lawyer of the old school has passed away and legal adjustment has become chiefly a function of business. The largest rewards, the greatest professional success, lie in this field. One illustration of this phenomenon is the deterioration, in too many cases the degradation, of criminal practice. Yet some of the greatest lawyers of the past were famous for their skill in criminal cases. Webster, and Choate, and Lincoln took criminal cases, as virtually all lawyers did. It is not necessary to point the contrast with criminal practice today.

This retreat from the forum of public affairs was natural in our American development and indeed inevitable. In some aspects it represents progress, but with a price. The lawyer is a powerful agent in affairs though less conspicuous. He uses more preventive medicine, so to speak, than his forerunners and though he is less heard in public affairs he is, we believe, as good a citizen and perhaps on the whole as useful a member of society. But with the change that has come the lawyer has lost a good deal of his own interest in and close acquaintance with public affairs, even with those high affairs upon which he is or ought to be especially prepared to direct the public mind and to bring about appropriate action. The lawyers of a past generation would never have allowed such a change in American constitutional law and principle as the 18th amendment represents to have been accomplished without vigorous challenge and prolonged debate. Nor would any of the important tendencies in the recent evolution of our law have failed to meet the public consideration of the profession.

This, we think, is an unnecessary and deplorable abdication of the special duty of the bar and is largely responsible for the frequent failure of our judiciary to discern constitutional issues and protect constitutional principles through a period of insidious or open infringement and attack. If the average lawyer of today, preoccupied with business affairs and material success, lacks, as many do, a sufficient knowledge of our constitutional law and its history, or if he lacks interest in the great issues presented in the evolution of our law, there is surely no greater duty before the leaders of the profession, represented and organized in our bar associations, than to inform and arouse him. If the profession is to have the influence it once exercised and ought to exercise in the development of law and government in our country it must begin with this.

AMERICAN REWARDS IN INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS.

Frank B. Kellogg, former secretary of state, has been given a foreign ribbon as a decoration recognizing his gift of the peace pact to the world. Foreign governments assume that American statesmen are not unsusceptible to the compliment carried by a decoration or to the distinction it implies. They may also assume that the value of it will add a motive at times influential in the United States, and they may be right.

Ambitions seek rewards, naturally, and the source of the rewards will affect the intentions. Europe makes a great deal of the ribbon and the United States very little. Decorations are visible and easily displayed marks of a person's advancement and in the manners of Europe they are important. Other than in recognition of military achievement the United States has virtually no place for them. If an American is to obtain decorations the foreign source is about the only one available.

Since the world war there has been a notable heightening of the feeling in the United States that commanding distinction must be international. It requires a world figure perceived in the direction of world events. President Wilson's first appearance in Europe was a stupendous event. No American before him ever had wreaths laid at his feet in such reverence or was given such triumphs. The spell did not endure for the hero of it, but a new imponderable apparently entered American public life.

Since then it has been impossible to mistake the desire of distinguished men of public affairs in the United States to write their names in the European skies. Their purpose may be defined to themselves as wholly admirable, the more admirable the more consistent with ambition to be of international service. It has been possible for a British statesman, for instance, to become a world figure by an achievement for the British empire. Within the requirements of his country he could become a commanding figure. Mussolini, as another instance, took the front of the world's stage with a purely Italian program. Stalin is entirely Red and Russian. Poincare talks nothing but France. Our men apparently find that national interest is a limited field, with the smaller rewards. Consequently they so readily attach themselves to international arrangements, Mr. Root to recast the organization of the world court, Mr. Harding, Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hoover to obtain American adherence, Mr. Kellogg to write the outlawry of war, Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hoover to make naval limitation agreements.

With men of smaller part in public affairs there is a wistful inclination toward the rewards which may come from recognition of worth and effectiveness in the affairs of the world. Recognition of merit acquired in American nationa. interest has lost much of its charm. Evidently it is regarded as parochial, marking possibly the beginning but not the end of true greatness. This affects the psychology of the American attitude toward the rest of the world and it offers an advantage which foreign negotiators are quick to perceive and act upon.

Editorial of the Day

THE THIRD EMIGRATION.

[New York Evening Post.]

The Russian government is considerably worried over what has been designated as the "third emigration." The first emigration was that of the Socialists and anarchists in czarist days. The second was that of the one or two million Russians who fled to all parts of the world from the bolshevist terror. The third is that of the "nonreturners," soviet citizens appointed to diplomatic or other posts abroad who refuse to go back home when so ordered. The penalty for such refusal is death and confiscation of goods.

The most prominent and one of the earliest of the "nonreturners" was the counselor of the soviet embassy in Paris. When he refused to obey instructions to go back to Moscow agents of the OGPU were sent out to get him. Rather than return, he escaped over the embassy wall and demanded protection of the French police for himself and his wife and children. Of the minor officials who have become convinced that the soviet utopia is a good place to stay away from the number is said to run into the hundreds.

One reason for these lamentable defections is the development of a preference, incomprehensible, of course, to the true communist, for the amenities of a society which derives its manners and customs from capitalism. Another is the strong suspicion which must enter the mind of any soviet official who has been ordered home that he is to be shot for some real or fancied infraction of soviet doctrine, or perhaps simply because his friends at court have been beaten by his enemies.

The third emigration is a striking indication of the conditions of tyranny prevailing in soviet Russia. When government officials, presumably selected for their special zeal in the cause, desert the ship of state in considerable numbers there is reason to believe that the soviet system ought to be confined to Russia.

DECLINE OF MANKIND.

A CERTAIN school of philosophers hold that the European, American and Australian races were at their peak about the year 1900 and since then have been on the decline. They get some support from students of population, who tell us that some of the European nations are numerically on the decline, others are stationary in population, while some others are due to start down shortly because of the small proportion of child bearing women among them.

The Eugenic Review recently printed a report on the relation of birth rates in nineteen countries. This report showed that France, Austria and Sweden are almost at a standstill from the population standpoint. In 1927 the country with the greatest excess of births over deaths was Russia. The Russian peoples show no tendency to commit race suicide. The nations reported on follow Russia in the order they are given: Egypt, Poland, Japan, Netherlands, Australia, Italy, Spain, Denmark, United States, Czecho-Slovakia, Hungary, Norway, Germany, Switzerland, England, Sweden, Austria and France.

It is in the cities that the birth rate tends to fall below the death rate. In some of the cities reported on there is a natural decrease of population. The death rate is higher than the birth rate. These are Turin, Italy; Sydney, Australia; Berlin, Oslo, and Vienna. The rank of fifty-five cities, beginning with the one having the greatest excess of births over deaths, is: Alexandria and Cairo in Egypt; Detroit, Moscow, Tokio, Newark, Cleveland, Milwaukee, Buffalo, Rome, Pittsburgh, New York, Amsterdam, Boston, Liverpool, Leningrad, Naples, Chicago, Cincinnati, Palermo, Osaka, Birmingham, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Madrid, St. Louis, Cologne, Prague, London, Warsaw, Bristol, Sheffield, Washington, Leipsic, Frankfurt, Leeds, Manchester, Copenhagen, Geneva, Zurich, Milan, Breslau, San Francisco, Hamburg, Budapest, Munich, Dresden, Stockholm, Turin, Sydney, Berlin, Oslo, and Vienna.

The census of 1930 shows that several states of the United States lost population in the last ten years. However, most of this is due to migration from the country to the city. In some districts the birth rate is about equal to the death rate. In most American cities the average age of the population falls near the child bearing period age and, in consequence, the births still exceed the deaths and will do so for more than another ten years.

The rank of certain American cities in gain of population by excess of births over deaths is as follows: Detroit, Newark, Cleveland, Milwaukee, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, New York, Chicago, Cincinnati, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, St. Louis, Washington and San Francisco.

AFTERNOON TEMPERATURE.

M. F. writes:

I am a woman of 27 years, suffering from tuberculosis. At times my afternoon temperature is 99 or 99.2.

1. Can this be my normal temperature?
2. Can I go down on the porch and lie on the chair, or must I lie in bed?
3. On what side is it best to lie, on the sick side or flat on the back?

REPLY.

1. It may be, though probably it is not.
2. If that is the limit of your fever you can move around at least as much as you suggest.
3. In a mild case it does not matter.

ON SPARING THE ROD.

F. R. writes: 1. Should a child be punished? 2. If a child is punished, should he be allowed to cry it out, or should he be compelled to refrain?

REPLY.

1. Some do not think children should be punished. I am not among the number.
2. A general answer is not possible. Crying is for a purpose. If the purpose is unwholesome, the crying should be controlled. It may be an index meaning that the child's self-respect has been damaged by the punishment. In that case the indications are to stop the punishment rather than the crying.

WHY GIRLS LEAVE HOME.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Can parents collect the wages of a child close to seventeen years of age that has graduated from high school and now desires to leave home?

The said child makes enough to support itself, and, because of certain conditions, wishes to leave home. The parents threaten that they can make it so that the child shall not be able to receive a single cent wages, or, to make it worse, will not be able to get a job anywhere.

Can this be done? L. R.

Technically, yes, but as a practical matter a child who is determined would be able to evade them.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NO GAME!

Chicago, Aug. 15.—[Friend of the People.]—The ball games in our alley and in the vacant lots in this neighborhood are so numerous and prolonged as to be dangerous to passersby, to say nothing of window breakages. Also the boys make an awful lot of noise about it and we neighbors would like it stopped. Mrs. H.

A report from the captain of the Fifteenth district states that this complaint was investigated by day watch and middle watch officers who made numerous visits to this location and found several young men playing ball at this address. The officers informed them of the complaint and warned them about playing in vacant lots and they promised they would discontinue playing ball there. JOHN H. ALCOCK,
Acting Commissioner of Police.

PRE-NUPTIAL DEBTS.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is a man who marries a widow responsible for a lease on an apartment signed by the widow previous to her marriage to him?

2. Are they both liable for the lease after they are married?

3. Can the lease be canceled by the widow on the grounds that she is going to get married again? H. P.

1. No, but if they continue to occupy it as a family he would be liable for the accruing rent as a family expense.
2. See No. 1.
3. No.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

OR SOMETHING LIKE THAT.

Eddie Guest, the w. k. poet, has been excused from service on a grand jury to investigate vice in Detroit, which is just too bad, because if Eddie had been on the grand jury he would probably have reported to the judge in this manner:

In re case 265, the State of Michigan
Versus William Wicks; charge, murder.
I do not think that Bill should hang,
Why, naught could be absurder.

Mr. Wicks admits he killed five men,
And took three for a ride;
But I'm sure that when he did these things,
He blushed and no doubt sighed.

A true bill, judge, I cannot vote,
'Gainst said defendant at the bar;
Though the State of Michigan prove his crimes
Are as black and thick as tar.

For ah, dear judge, to the prisoner
We must be meek and mild;
For though his hands are steeped in crime,
He was once a little child.

So of course he is not guilty,
No man could be bad and wild,
And do rude, horrid things,
Had he ever been a child.

I carefully sought out the facts,
I wanted you to know;
And 'tis true the prisoner was a babe,
Scarce fifty years ago.

So let us turn the poor man loose,
And this murder case dismiss;
And, judge, I think it would be nice
If you gave him a little kiss.

NOW WE KNOW whom we're like. We're like the woman this week's New Yorker tells about. She had run her car a few feet beyond the line before she stopped it for the red light and the cop waved his arm at her majestically. "Back up there!" he yelled. "I don't back," said the lady firmly. "What's 'at?" demanded the cop, walking belligerently over to the car. "What's 'at you say?" "I said I don't back," repeated the lady. "I can go forward and make right and left turns and stop, but I don't back." The cop pondered that one silently. The lights went green again. The cop sighed. Then he walked sadly back to his post and whistled her on.

GET READY for the airplane races. Take your daily dozen three times a day, throw your head back until you get a pain in the neck, look straight up at the sky and say, "Ah-h-h-h." Now, all ready; one—two—three, one—two—three; one—two—three—rest!

AND THE TROUBLE is that while we are all gaping up in the sky watching the air races we may forget to look down at the ground now and then to see if anybody has started digging the subway. Oh, perhaps not; but, anyhow, we ought to take a look now just as a sort of a hint.

It Just Doesn't Seem There's Anything Safe Any More!

THEY ARE PROBABLY most excellent young people; oh, without a doubt; and we're very sorry, but, really, there has been so much in the newspapers about Mrs. Dudley Coats marrying Marshall Field III. that, honestly, we really wouldn't care a bit if we never met Mrs. Dudley Coats or Marshall Field III.

TOTALITY.

Bring her myrtle, bring her rue,
Heap them on her breast;
In the shadow of the yew
Quiet let her rest.

Lay rosemary on her eyes,
Memories to keep;
Plant red roses where she lies
Smiling in her sleep.

Bring her to the sun-drenched shore
In the full o' moon,
Where the tides forevermore
Tell a secret rune.

Softly fold her hands above
The heart that wildly beat
A sacrifice she made to love,
Turbulent and sweet.

Love that laughed at wisdom's brew;
Love that reft her so;
Loving taught her all it knew—
Is there more to know?

"FIFTEEN MEN ON THE DEAD MAN'S CHEST"

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 20, 1914.

ROME.—Pope Pius X. died this morning. The passing of the supreme pontiff of the Roman Catholic church was not unexpected. Death was due to bronchial catarrh which became acute on Aug. 16. Grief inspired by the great European war aggravated his illness, which began almost coincidentally with the breaking out of hostilities. His last message urged prayers for world peace. Pope Pius was 79 years old. He was born Giuseppe Sarto, son of a poor letter carrier of Riese, in the province of Venice. He was elevated to the pontificate eleven years ago at the death of Pope Leo XIII.

PARIS.—There is a persistent rumor that the Germans have occupied Brussels, but it cannot be confirmed.

LONDON.—The Germans have captured Louvain, headquarters of the Belgian army, only 15 miles from Brussels. This was confirmed by a message from the Central News correspondent who arrived in Brussels from Louvain. He says the defenders of Louvain were determined to hold their positions until the Germans brought their heavy guns into play, then they evacuated to save the beautiful old place from destruction. They took a old position farther down the road towards Brussels. The German losses were terrible. Reuter dispatches from Antwerp say the German troops have advanced around and above Brussels and even into what are practically the suburbs of Antwerp. German cavalry has been encountered near Herenthals, 15 miles east of Antwerp.

CHICAGO.—William Lorimer, president of the liquidated La Salle Street National bank, and of its successor, the La Salle Street Trust and Savings bank; Charles B. Munday, vice president of the bank; Joseph P. Gallagher, secretary of the Lorimer-Gallagher Construction company, and Henry B. Huttig, president of the Rosehill Cemetery company, were reported to have been indicted by the federal grand jury in connection with the bank failure last June.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 20, 1900.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The allied forces, according to dispatches from Taku and Tientsin, bombarded the Forbidden City in Peking and part of the town is reported to be burning. Prince Yung prevented the departure of the empress dowager, and she is in the bombarded section of the city.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The United States will propose an international congress to adjust the present difficulties in China and make that country safe for foreigners.

PRETORIA.—Lord Roberts issued a proclamation warning that all burghers who break their oath of neutrality in the future will be punished by death, imprisonment or fine.

CHICAGO.—Warrants were sworn out for the arrest of Father John McCann, late pastor of the Roman Catholic church at Oregon, Ill., on charges of embezzling funds raised to pay the interest on the church debt. He is also accused of giving away cemetery lots in the Byron parish which belonged to the church.

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 20, 1865.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Mosby, the noted guerrilla and horse thief, has been appointed one of the judges of a tournament at Leesburg, Va., on Sept. 1.

NEW YORK.—A detailed statement of the loss of the Atlantic cable which the steamer Great Eastern was laying gives a clearer account of how the cable parted. It appears that the packing apparatus brought the cable so near to the bows of the ship that every lurch of the vessel chafed and cut it so that when laid out it could not stand the strain.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Telegrams were received from Maj. Gen. Pope at the Indian bureau stating that Gen. Sully, conducting the military expedition in Dakota, announces there is no doubt that permanent peace can now be secured by the government with the Sioux and Cheyennes.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

CONFUSING POLITICAL ISSUES.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—I am sending you a copy of a reply which was requested of me by the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform:

Chicago, Aug. 16.

"Your letter of Aug. 14 received. There can be no doubt that the state of things in Chicago and the country in so far as the liquor traffic is concerned requires honest attention such as your organization proposes to give. But the question has been twice submitted to the people in the last few years, and we knew fairly well what the verdict would be.

"The expected result of your plan to get both parties to take the same stand on the subject at the coming Springfield conventions is apt to be disconcerting to the voters and not to further the cause you wish to serve. The besetting sin of American politics the last half century has been the confusion of issues, which defeats democracy everywhere. It was so on a large scale in 1920; it was so again in 1928.

"We have now before us two candidates for the United States senate. One of them is a known and a professed dry; the other a known and professed wet. If you were to succeed in having the two parties make identical professions on the subject, the immediate effect would be to confuse the issue of prohibition more than it is already confused, and make personal attitudes on this subject of no avail, and personal attitudes and character are more important in politics than the most solemn resolutions."

WILLIAM E. DODD.
Professor of History, University of Chicago.

CONSTITUTIONAL LIMITATIONS.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—Holding the opinions that you do, why do you not commend F. Dumont Smith, writer of a letter in today's Voice of the People?

As chairman of the committee on American citizenship of the American Bar association he reports in the advance program of that association (page 47) that his committee has circulated 40,000 information pamphlets instructing lawyers how to make attractive speeches on the constitution, and that the "constitution," as they are bringing it to guileless youth and foreigner, is expurgated by omitting the last nine amendments. Hurrah for the idea that every man may make his own constitution or at least may eliminate the parts that he dislikes!

FRANK H. MCCULLOCH.

THE FISH INQUIRY.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—The sheet in Sunday's rotogravure section on communist activities and literature was very enlightening. It makes one realize that Congressman Fish's committee can, if it chooses, bring to light the hidden corners of communism in this country, which may not succeed in actually overthrowing our government but do create serious disturbances that accomplish nothing but grief.

Let us hope that this investigation will result in a recommendation to congress that will define communism and place it in its proper place among the enemies of our government.

ADELAIDE H. SISSON.

SCOTS' HISTORY.

River Forest, Ill., Aug. 11.—Answering J. C. Clarke's letter I quote from the "History of Scotland," by P. Hume Brown.

"James V., king of Scotland [illegible] 1542, had as his greatest enemy Henry VIII. of England, who never gave up trying to get power over Scotland. At this time there was constant quarreling and there was often fighting on the borders. At last in the year 1543 the two kings did go to open war with each other, and it was Henry who began it. He sent the earl of Surrey, now the duke of Norfolk, into Scotland with an army which burned Roxburgh and Kelso and about twenty villages. James was determined to pay England back for Norfolk's invasion, and raised an army. When he wished to follow the duke of Norfolk into England, however, his nobles told him they would not allow their followers to accompany him. It is very strange is that up till this moment the Scots had no leader. However just when the enemy appeared before them a great favorite of James, Sir Oliver Sinclair, announced that he had been appointed leader, but the nobles who were present were indignant that a man of lower birth than themselves should be put over them, and they refused to obey him. Then, while the Scots were quarreling among themselves the English came on, and though they had few men compared with the Scots they descended upon them when they were on ground where they had no room to move. The Scots were driven across a ford of the River Esk into Solway Moss. Never had Scotsmen been so disgracefully beaten by the English, and all owing to the quarreling of the leaders."

There are no figures given as to the size of the armies, but one defeat is overshadowed by the glow of so many victories this staunch little country can boast of, and don't forget the battle of Bannockburn when the Scots won a great victory, though they were outnumbered two to one.

WHERE ARE THE GIFTS OF YESTERYEAR!

Gary, Ind., Aug. 13.—When all our foreign visitors arrive again in 1933 I wonder if they will ask to see the gifts presented to us by them back in 1833. We'd better have a good story ready about what happened to the little Viking ship that made the perilous trip across the Atlantic and the three Spanish caravels that likewise made the journey. Perhaps some of the brave men who manned those ships will be here. There must be any number of gifts which some well informed old timer could recall or even by some miracle learn the whereabouts of. I wonder how the New York Statue of Liberty would have fared here in our harbor? M. V.

RELIGION PLAYED ... FACTOR IN MY ... WEDDING—FIELD

"Free to Marry Any Way I Saw Fit."

[By Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Although Marshall Field III, heir to the Chicago department store millions, was born in the Catholic faith he does not profess that religion and is not bound by the restrictions of the church governing the remarriage of divorced communicants, he declared today. Therefore, while the formulas of the Episcopal church were observed in his wedding to Mrs. Dudley Coats, widow of a member of the British thread family, yesterday, he explained.

Mr. Field and his bride did not depart on their African aerial hunting honeymoon after their marriage, as it had been announced, but instead quietly slipped away to a tiny seaside village at Sandwich where they were to rest this afternoon.

The Chicago bridegroom and his bride have made their home in a tiny, white-washed building, where they plan to stay until Thursday or Friday, when they will fly to the continent, probably on their way to Africa.

Religion Made No Difference.

When asked whether his religion interfered in any way with the marriage, Mr. Field replied:

"None whatever. I was born in the Catholic faith and am a great admirer of the church, but do not profess that religion or any other. Consequently I was free to marry any way I saw fit."

Mrs. Field was a member of the church of England and that necessitated the double ceremony. The church denies the sacrament of marriage to any one divorced, guilty or innocent, but a special law, passed by parliament in the reign of Queen Victoria, permits anybody married at the registry office to receive the benediction and formal service of the church. The church ceremony was performed today Mrs. Field's desire for a church wedding.

The vicar of St. Ethelburg's, where the second ceremony was performed, admitted today his services did not recognize them in wedlock, but that it was legal under the laws passed nearly a half a century ago. Only that ceremony at the registry office is binding under the dual relationship of the British church and state, he explained.

"We are very happy here," Mr. Field said. "We plan to stay a short time and then visit my sister in Scotland for a while."

But it was learned that Mr. Field's amphibian airplane, with two pilots, is ready at Hamsden airdrome a short distance away. The beach near the cottage has already been measured for its possibilities as a landing field, and it is likely they will leave at low tide Friday. The cottage they are occupying is scheduled for new tenants Saturday.

Plane Near Cottage.

The couple tried to throw off pursuit by announcing that they were leaving Croyden, where the plane was housed. Last Friday the plane was flown to Hamsden with luggage which was taken by automobile to the house by the seaside.

The cottage is situated on a stretch on Sandwich bay with other fashionable seaside resorts a short distance away. There is no building within a half mile of the honeymoon cottage and there is not even a road leading to it.

LINCOLN CHILDREN'S BODIES MOVED; TOMB BEING RECONSTRUCTED

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Reconstruction of the tomb of Abraham Lincoln here has necessitated moving the bodies of Mrs. Lincoln and three of the Lincoln children.

The bodies of Mrs. Lincoln and her sons have been placed in a mausoleum at the Oak Ridge cemetery until the remodeling of the tomb is completed. State officials expect to finish the work by the latter part of November.

Lincoln's body has not been moved and State Architect Hammond has announced that the reconstruction work probably can be accomplished without disturbing the great emancipator's grave.

AIMEE BLINDED BY NERVES; MA'S NOSE IN SPLINTS

Face Lifting Rumor Adds to Flock's Dismay.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—The Rev. Aimee McPherson is partly blind as the result of a nervous breakdown, but "the condition is only temporary," according to statements given out at the evangelist's seaside cottage at Malibu beach, north of Santa Monica, where she is under care of surgeons.

Miss Emma Schaefer and Miss Mae Waldron, secretaries to the woman pastor, heatedly denied reports published in a Los Angeles daily newspaper, which attributed Mrs. McPherson's condition to results of a face lifting operation.

Breakdown Follows Quarrel.

"It is a nervous breakdown," the secretaries said, and added that a recent breach between the evangelist and her mother, Mrs. Minnie ["Ma"] Kennedy, probably precipitated it."

Dr. Edward Huntington Williams, who is treating the evangelist, issued the following statement tonight:

"Mrs. McPherson is not blind, but her breakdown causes recurring dizzy spells during which things blur before her eyes and she cannot see clearly. She is now better and may be up in a few days."

Flock Greatly Upset.

Meanwhile hundreds of Mrs. McPherson's flock milled about the bulletin boards and dim lit circular corridors of Angelus temple, praying, weeping, and fasting all day.

Among the causes which added to the excitement were reports of sensational developments involving "Ma" Kennedy. "Ma," who has been known as her daughter's business agent, was discovered in a Brentwood sanitarium, her face swathed in bandages.

Admitting that she had undergone a surgical operation on her nose and that the member still is in splints, Mrs. Kennedy said she had been struck during an attempted settlement of differences with her daughter in the temple parsonage.

"Aimee was wild," she said. "We had a few words and then she came right out and accused me of talking about her and Mae Waldron. I said, 'Honey, I haven't been talking about you, but I have said some things about your associates.'

Right on the Nose.

"When I came to my senses I was on the floor and my nose was almost dashed water on my wrists.

"But my poor nose kept getting worse. I turned blue and green. I had received a face lift and so had Aimee. Sure, my face was lifted, what of it? So was Aimee's.

"But let me tell you something—Aimee Semple McPherson or no one else would never have knocked me down if I hadn't been so weak from my face lifting operation. No wonder she floored me.

"I want to say I'm not mad at Aimee. She is my own precious baby."

Miss Waldron said that Mrs. McPherson had been hysterical for portions of the last five days.

"Her collapse occurred," Miss Waldron said, "when after a heated conference in rooms at the temple, some time ago, somebody threw a live snake into Sister McPherson's room."

Two Aged Men, Long in Ill Health, End Lives

Two elderly men committed suicide last night. Martin Bradger, 77 years old, 1924 North Harding avenue, wrote his son, George, a note saying he was despondent over ill health, turned on the bathroom gas jet and was asphyxiated. Emil Seiffert, 73 years old, after a chat with his son, Emil Jr., on the porch of the home, 4038 North St. Louis avenue, went to the attic and shot himself in the head with a pistol.

MONTHS BEFORE WORK BEGINS ON NEW POSTOFFICE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Postoffice and treasury officials held out little prospect today for an early beginning of construction work on the new $21,000,000 postoffice at Chicago. According to federal officials it will take another six weeks at least to acquire the air rights site over the railroad and probably another three months to whip the building plans into shape so construction can begin.

Unless the unforeseen develops, the new building will be erected on the Van Buren street site near the parcel post building. The building will be at least seven stories in height and may go as high as ten stories.

Postoffice officials said today that it is possible eight stories will be reserved for postoffice work. The offices for other government departments would be erected on top of the eight stories in that case.

As the building is now planned, forty-eight acres, six acres to a floor, will be devoted to postal work. A total of 2,000,000 feet is desired.

BROOKLYN G. O. P. O.K.'S WET PLANK FOR PLATFORM

Would Give States Right to Dispense Liquor.

New York, Aug. 19.— [Special.] — Under the direction of Meier Steinbrink, Brooklyn Republican leader, the Kings county Republican executive committee adopted today a proposed plank for the state party platform recommending a change in the 18th amendment to give each state the right to sell liquor under a dispensary system.

This proposed plank which differs little in principle from the position taken by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith as Democratic candidate for president in 1928, was adopted after a motion for the repeal of the amendment had been beaten by a vote of 18 to 22.

Prohibition Referendum.

Mr. Steinbrink before succeeding Jacob A. Livingston as leader through pressure from the Hoover administration was a director of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment and soon after becoming leader he directed a prohibition referendum among the members of the Kings county Republican committee which resulted in a vote for repeal of about 5 to 1.

Mr. Steinbrink's insistence in preventing a declaration for repeal, despite his own former personal position and the position taken by the county committee, was attributed to pressure from the Hoover administration at Washington and a desire to work with William M. Maier, chairman of the Republican state committee, to prevent the adoption of a repeal plank.

Insist on No Sidestepping.

Meanwhile Gen. James Harbord, chairman of the advisory committee of the New York county Republican committee, issued a statement reiterating the declaration of his committee for repeal and declaring that there must be no sidestepping on this issue at the state convention.

BRITISH PLAN AIR HARBOR BENEATH SOIL FOR PLANES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 19.—A great underground air harbor is the suggestion advanced by experts studying the recent Royal Air force maneuvers. They point out that the outstanding lesson of last week's air "war" was the vulnerability of airdromes to an attack from the air.

Time and again the day bombers at a speed of 190 miles an hour penetrated the defenses and theoretically destroyed the enemy airplanes before they could leave the hangars, while fast single seater fighters carried out successful low flying attacks, raking the airdromes with machine gun fire.

Aviation experts declare the only safeguard against these attacks is the construction of concrete sheds for housing the machines underground, using large lifts protected by concrete to bring the planes to the airdrome level.

SHOTGUN ROBBER CONFESSES.

Martin Boland, 23 years old, 825 West 52d street, confessed yesterday to the Stockyards police that he was the bandit who held up four gasoline filling stations and two garages with a sawed-off shotgun last Thursday.

ROOSEVELT TAKES EWALD CASE AWAY FROM GOTHAM JURY

New York, Aug. 19.— [Special.] — Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt took the Ewald case out of the hands of local officials today after studying the minutes of the New York county grand jury which failed to find an indictment and then reconsidered its action.

The governor in Albany ordered Attorney General Hamilton Ward to supersede the Tammany district attorney, Thomas C. Crain, in the investigation into charges that George F. Ewald paid more than $10,000 to Tammany politicians for his appointment to a city magistracy three years ago.

Then, asserting that he was satisfied that the "public interest requires it," Gov. Roosevelt designed Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook to convene an extraordinary term of Supreme court in New York City on Sept. 15 and to draw a special grand jury to serve at such term.

Gov. Roosevelt's intervention came as the local grand jury still was trying to make up its mind whether to follow District Attorney Crain's advice to indict Ewald, his wife, Mrs. Bertha E. Ewald, Martin J. Healy, Tammany district leader and suspended first deputy commissioner of the department of plant and structures, and Thomas T. Tommaney, chief clerk in the office of Sheriff Farley.

These four, all involved in the charges centering about a $10,000 loan from Mrs. Ewald to Healy through Tammaney a few days before Mayor Walker elevated Ewald to the bench, are to appear tomorrow before a federal grand jury seeking evidence of income tax evasions in connection with the transaction.

District Attorney Crain showed no surprise when informed of Gov. Roosevelt's action. His first move after receiving formal notice from the governor that he had been superseded, he said, would be to inform the grand jurors and communicate with the attorney general. His future course, he said, would be decided by their wishes.

EX-WIFE ACCUSES BUSINESS MAN IN NEW $50,000 SUIT

Herbert L. Greaves, an executive of Stromberg Allen & Co., printers, at 430 South Clark street, yesterday was made defendant in the second of two damage suits for $50,000 each, now pending against him. His former wife, Mrs. Betty Greaves, 1295 North State street, is the complaint in both cases. Her first suit charged breach of promise. Her second, filed in Circuit court yesterday by Attorney Hugh R. Porter, alleges false arrest.

Three years ago Mrs. Greaves, who as Betty Elkins was a light opera star, obtained divorce from Greaves and a cash settlement of $17,000. Custody of their only child, Herbert Jr., then 8 years old, was divided between them. Five weeks ago, Mrs. Greaves charges in her latest suit, she permitted Greaves to take the boy overnight, and he was not returned to her. Then she called at the home at 293 Scottwood avenue, Riverside, where her former husband lives with his second wife

"Instead of giving up the boy," she related yesterday, "my former husband refused to admit me to the house, used vile language toward me, and had me arrested and thrown into jail. But when I came before a jury I was acquitted."

In her suit for breach of promise, Mrs. Greaves alleges that Greaves persuaded her to return to him and promised to remarry her. Then, he suddenly married Miss Irene Nelson, a dentist's assistant, instead. The first wife declares Greaves' income is $15,000 a year.

HIGH WAGES WILL END DEPRESSION, JOHNSON AVERS

Confers with Hoover on Business Conditions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—President Hoover's reelection in 1932 was predicted today by Eldridge R. Johnson, former president of the Victor company, following a White House call. Mr. Johnson termed the President the best business man who has ever occupied the White House.

"High wages will bring business out of its present period of depression," Mr. Johnson said. "It is far easier to resume on a high wage basis than it is on a low wage basis because on a high wage basis everything begins where it left off. To start on a low wage basis would be postponing the return to status quo."

Business on Up Grade, He Says.

Mr. Johnson, who just returned from abroad, called at the White House to discuss business conditions in Europe with the President. He reported business depression to be general throughout the continent except in France and Holland.

Mr. Johnson said there was evidence that business generally is on the up grade. For proof he pointed to plans of the R. C. A. Victor company to enlarge its force by 5,000 men to a total of 17,500 before Sept. 15. He also said the Campbell Soup company expects to have more employés by that date than ever before, and that the Pennsylvania railroad has contracted for electric locomotive equipment running into millions.

The stock market is readjusting itself gradually, and security prices have about reached the bottom, he said. The more the public spends now, he added, the sooner full prosperity will return.

"Mr. Hoover is the best business man who ever has occupied the White House," Mr. Johnson said. "Every move he has made has been intelligent and constructive. He is building up in the minds of the people a confidence that will remain with him."

Act to Exempt Foreign Autos from Touring Taxes

THE HAGUE, Holland, Aug. 19.—(AP)—A draft convention, exempting foreign touring cars from taxation while traveling through European countries, was approved at today's meeting of the league of nations' subcommittee on fiscal and road traffic questions. The convention will now be submitted to the council of the league, which will probably call a general conference to rule on the question.

350 INDUSTRIES FIND HOMES IN CHICAGO AREA

Many Advantages Offered To All Types of Business

Chicago is the pre-eminent city of diversified industry. From official records at least 250 distinctly different industries find homes in Chicago, and 350 in the Chicago Area. Chicago's enviable position is due principally to the many natural advantages available, and to other factors equally important to economical manufacture and distribution.

Important Facilities

Every facility considered important by manufacturers and distributors is available in the Chicago Area. Superior geographical location cannot be denied. Raw materials, ores, coal, gas, produce and grains are close at hand. Transportation facilities are equalled nowhere else in the country. 38 railroads enter Chicago. 13 boat lines bear the water commerce. Power is developed cheaper for industrial use than anywhere else in the country except at Niagara Falls. Skilled labor is available for any operation. With few exceptions, any business that can operate elsewhere, can do so to better advantage in the Chicago Area.

Valuable Sites Available

Even though 10,000 manufacturing concerns are located in Chicago, a vast area for industrial expansion has been set aside. In addition, thousands of feet of floor space is available for offices, light manufacturing plants, warehouses and stock rooms. Rentals are comparatively low, and modern facilities, switching service, spurs, freight and express service, postal service, fire and police protection, sprinkler systems, good light, clean air, and fireproof construction are always available.

Want Ads Helpful

The Tribune Want Ad Section is a gold mine of information, a veritable guide book, as an aid in finding desirable factory sites and office space. Manufacturers and others looking for new quarters, and out-of-town industrialists facing competition that makes it imperative to give their customers better shipping service, or to bring themselves closer to their source of raw materials and labor, should consult the Tribune Want Ad Section daily for floor space and factory sites available.

WISCONSIN SUMMER home. Very desirable, on lake, 90 miles out; clear, for exchg. Blank, Graceland 0000.—From Summer Resorts—Miscellaneous.

Short, Short Story

As years slipped by, Elsie Carston longed more and more to find the brother from whom she had been separated when she was a little girl. Elsie had been adopted by a well-to-do family, and they had discouraged her keeping in touch with sixteen-year-old brother Sam. Then Sam went West, and Elsie lost all trace of him. Elsie married and raised a family. Even though her duties as wife and mother occupied most of her waking moments, she often found time to think about Sam.

Trys Want Ads

Finally she decided to try to find Sam through the "Personal" column in the Tribune Want Ad Section. She had heard of relatives being reunited by these little ads, and she waited anxiously for word from Sam. Of course the Chicago Tribune reaches people in all sections of the country, and Sam saw Elsie's note first thing. Today, Elsie writes Sam every week. Last summer he came back East, bringing his own family with him. A wonderful happy re-union, thanks to the Tribune Want Ads.

KEEPING PEOPLE HAPPY HIS LOT FOR TEN YEARS

Adjustment Bureau Head Says His Job Most Interesting

Naturally enough, Mrs. John Henry Blank is greatly disturbed when she finds her want ad, advertising her last winter's coat for sale, nestling snugly in the column under Arts and Antiques, but to Mr. F. W. Maass, manager of the Tribune adjustment Bureau, this misplacement is just a part of the day's routine, something to be given immediate attention to the satisfaction of Mrs. Blank.

F. W. Maass

Mistakes will happen, although the efficiency of the Tribune Ad-taking Department has reduced their number to a very small percent of the thousands of want ads inserted in the Tribune each year. Misplacement, misspelled names, wrong phone numbers or addresses, make up the bulk of the errors adjusted. Serious errors rarely occur, but humorous ones are more frequent. One or two of them are retold here that you might laugh also.

"Worried" Becomes "Married!"

One love-lorn young lady who had not heard from her sweetie for some time, inserted a "Personal" inquiring after him. In wording her little love note, she said, "I'm worried." The typesetter set it, "I'm married!" Her beloved saw the notice, and gallantly sent her a telegram of congratulations! The next day, a tearful and furious young lady stormed the adjustment bureau. The Tribune printed a "Beg Your Pardon" notice for her, the swain saw it, and hurried to his sweetie. Adjustment? We'd say a complete healing!

Bath for Every Day in Week

Here is another. An advertiser advertised a seven room apartment with two baths. Fate and type-setter put it, "Two rooms and seven baths!"

The Tribune Adjustment Bureau, which also handles cancellations on running copy which has already produced the desired results for the advertiser, is one of the most important and ably conducted departments in the entire organization. Twenty employees, including Mr. Maas and his Supervisor, Miss Dunbar, are required to handle the details and supervision of this service to Tribune advertisers. Besides, it is one of the most interesting jobs one could have.

In the words of Mr. Maass, "There is something new every day. That makes it interesting. I wouldn't trade jobs with anyone."

GANDHI HUSHES HIS "LIBERTY FOR INDIA" WAR CRY

Offers Peace in Exchange for Dominion Status.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, Aug. 19. — Mahatma Gandhi, imprisoned leader of India's Nationalist movement, has dropped his original demand for complete independence and is now ready to call off his civil disobedience campaign in exchange for dominion status. This startling revelation was made here today by one of the few influential Nationalist leaders still at large.

This offer of peace is also said to have been conveyed to Viceroy Lord Irwin in the "holy one's" famous prison letter, which the British government is expected to make public within the next three days.

Pledges Peace with An "If."

Gandhi, it is stated, pledges to end India's "revolt" if the Labor government and the viceroy promise to work for dominion status at the London round table conference in November, and grant amnesty to political prisoners.

The contentment of the Nationalists at dominion status is said to have been encouraged by recent statements by Gen. James Hertzog of South Africa that dominion status implies the right to secede.

India's Nationalist movement appears as strong and as widespread as at any time since Gandhi was put behind the bars. This was my first impression on reaching India from Europe, where the press of Britain, France, and Germany only ten days ago indicated that the civil disobedience campaign was dying out.

I traveled through the heart of India from Karachi to Bombay via Delhi, and everywhere I was impressed by the widespread campaign with its efficient organization in a land of many races, languages and quarreling creeds.

Spinning Wheels Await Delivery.

At every railroad station between Delhi and Bombay, most people were wearing the tiny Gandhi caps and homespun garments. Many carried the Nationalist tri-colored flag, waving it on the railroad platforms. Spinning wheels, with which Gandhi and his aides hope to ruin the British textile industry, lined the feight depots en route awaiting delivery.

The Nationalist "war council," in the larger cities such as Delhi and Bombay, operates its own buses to carry leaders to the many mass meetings, besides maintaining its own Red Cross ambulances to carry them home in case of a clash with the police. The Bombay organization has organized its own free emergency hospital to take care of its injured.

In Bombay, the Gandhi campaign has been the most successful. Boycott of British cloth has been so effecting that 16 of 24 European mills have closed down. The others are suing for peace, pledging not to import British materials if the boycott is removed. Rich Bombay merchants and manufacturers are backing the campaign almost unanimously despite the millions lost in the trade slump. Business is at a standstill everywhere.

MYSTERY SLUMP OF COIN SHAKES SPAIN'S CABINET

Finance Chief Gives Up His Post.

MADRID, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The steady slump of the peseta, which has puzzled government officials and financial experts for several months, resulted today in the resignation of Manuel Arguelles from the ministry of finance.

The cabinet accepted his resignation at a special meeting and appointed Julio Wais, hitherto minister of economy, to succeed him. Luis Rodriguez Viguera, a minister of agriculture in the conservative cabinet of 1922, succeeds Wais.

Insists on Quitting.

While the government did not blame Arguelles for the depression in the Spanish monetary unit, the minister was dissatisfied with the financial situation and insisted on getting out. This was the first resignation since the Berenguer ministry took office in January following the fall of the Primo de Rivera dictatorship.

While the peseta has fluctuated for several months, it fell to a record low of 9.75 to the dollar Saturday—a value of slightly more than 10 cents whereas nominally it is 19.3 cents. That brought Premier Berenguer and other members of the cabinet rushing back from their vacations, and a series of special cabinet meetings resulted. Others will be held in an attempt to solve the problem.

Peseta Makes Slight Climb.

On the bourse this morning the peseta ranged from 9.30 to 9.40 to the dollar, closing at 9.34 to the dollar. That was some improvement over recent figures, but since the bourse was closed when the cabinet adjourned, any reaction to the Arguelles resignation will not be reflected until it reopens Wednesday.

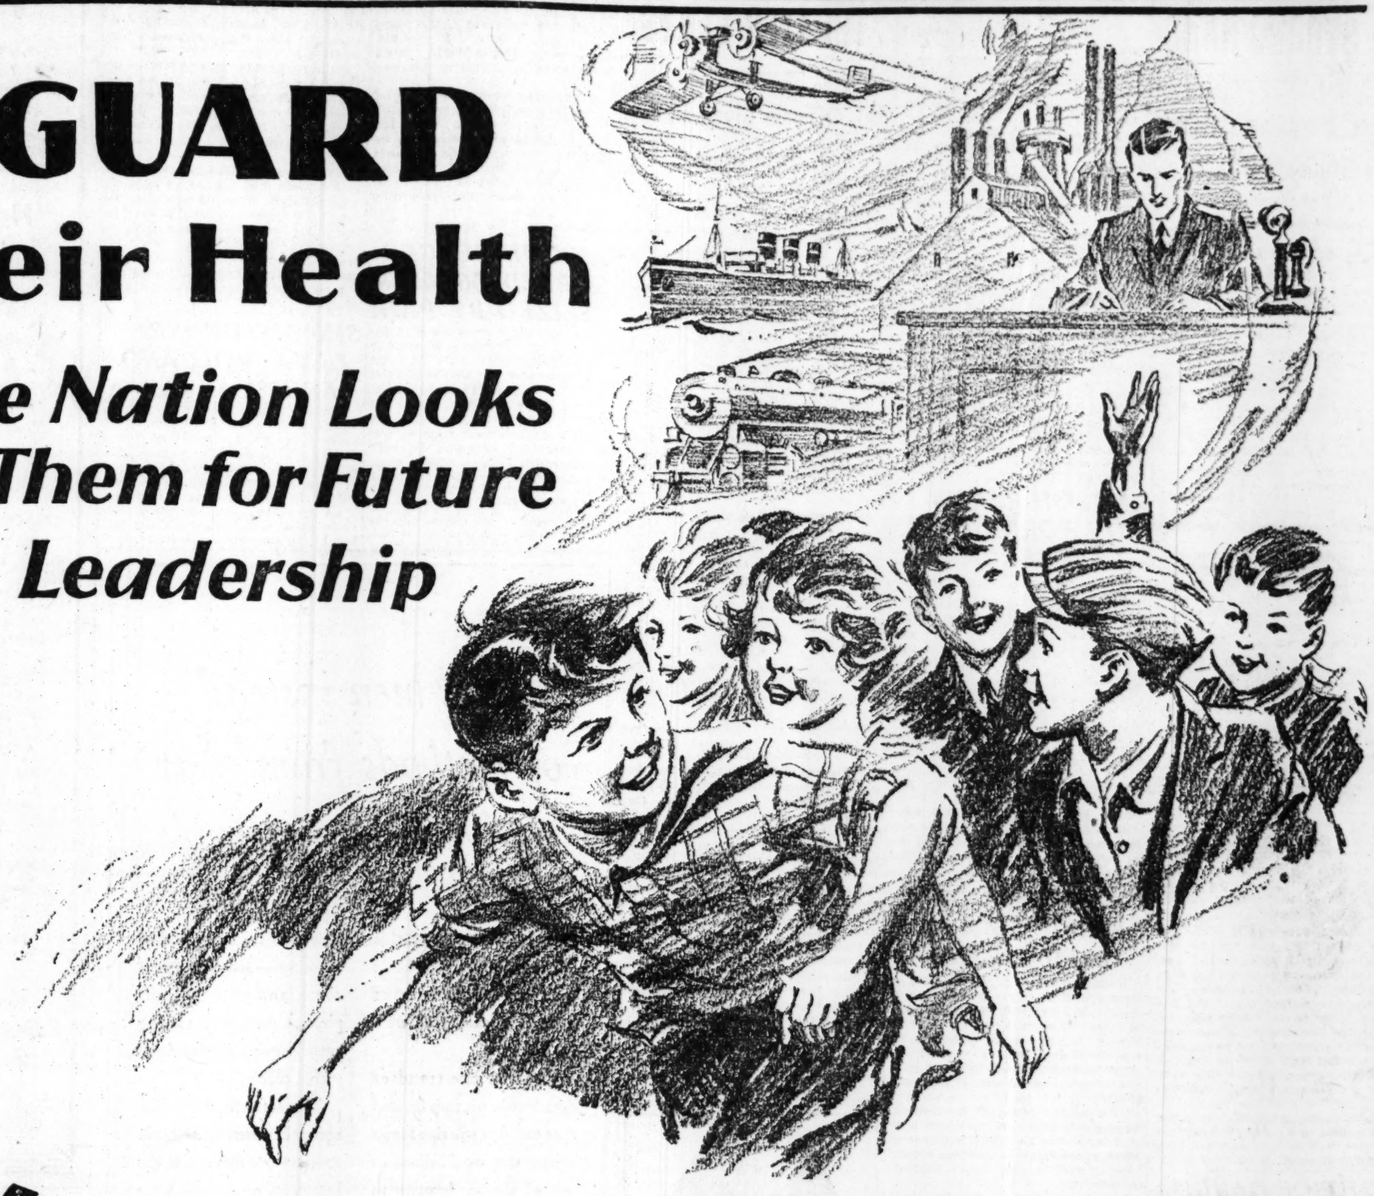
GUARD their Health

The Nation Looks to Them for Future Leadership



SWIFTLY moving events shorten the time from childhood to manhood and womanhood. Laughing, carefree children of today are the Country's leaders of tomorrow. Good health is an important factor in their future success and happiness.

But many children, who are potential leaders, are lost through diseases which can be cured by early and reliable treatment. Syphilis is the most dangerous of these diseases, as it is responsible for an important percentage of the deaths of children before, or soon after, birth. The infection is communicated to the child by the mother.

Physicians know that from 75% to 95% of the children of mothers with active syphilis die before, or soon after birth, or are seriously disabled. Not more than twenty-five in a hundred babies of infected mothers have any chance for life or health unless the expectant mother has received good medical treatment for several months before the baby's birth. Good medical treatment gives greater assurance of healthy babies with no taint of syphilis. And when a child is born infected, prompt medical attention greatly improves his chance in life.

Physicians who have studied thousands of cases of congenital syphilis (syphilis at birth) say, "Treatment has a great deal to offer in these cases, and the sooner it is started the better are the chances of success".

Syphilis often exists without the knowledge of the individual, and no health examination can be thorough and complete without Wassermann and Kahn blood and other laboratory tests for its presence.

Good medical treatment and care of syphilis can be secured within your means from an experienced family physician or from the Public Health Institute. Treatment is available, also, through the Institute and many free clinics for those without funds.

The Institute was organized more than ten years ago to combat "Social" diseases in Chicago. Physicians comprising its medical staff are experienced and are registered by the State. All treatments are given by these men and women physicians. The fees are within the reach of all. Treatment is available to those without immediate funds—no one is turned away because of inability to pay.

Announcement . . . This advertisement has been submitted to and been approved by the Medical Advisory Board which has been formed at the invitation of the Trustees. It is published by a health agency established for public service to inform the public of the dangers of "social diseases" of the importance of securing good medical care, and the facilities whereby this can be obtained.

DICTATOR TELLS CHILE IT NEEDS HIS STRONG HAND

Ibanez Revamps Cabinet as Students Revolt.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VALPARAISO, Chile, Aug. 19. — Stirred by the students' and workers' demonstration against his firm policies in governing Chile, President Carlos Ibanez is taking steps to prolong his dictatorship.

He said today that he is convinced that for several years to come it will be necessary to govern Chile with a strong hand. Meanwhile he has surprised friends and foes alike by the energetic attitude he has taken in reforming his ministry following the student troubles.

Accepts Premier's Resignation.

In replying to the resignation of David Hermosilla, premier and minister of the interior, whose differences with the president prompted him to quit the government, President Ibanez wrote:

"I have been obliged to accept your resignation because I am guided now as ever by the elemental necessity of foreseeing and facing the ignoble attempts of irreconcilable enemies of the established régime who have had the malign cleverness to form their vanguard with the section of our youth that, through inexperience, is most susceptible to the promises of false liberties.

"Disillusioned of my aspirations for peace, I have convinced myself that maybe for several years to come it will be necessary to govern Chile with the strong hand demanded by circumstances, and it is for this reason that I have asked of my oldest minister, Commander Frodden, the sacrifice of changing his post in order to accompany me in the gratuitous but unavoidable task of maintaining intact at whatever cost the principle of authority that I have taken as the banner of salvation of the country since I assumed the government."

Has Situation in Hand.

The government now has the student situation well under control, and, with the exception of occasional demonstrations, the streets are quiet. The students who walked out of the university, however, have been informed that unless they resume classes immediately the school will not be reopened until the fall term starts in October.

Chilean newspapers for the most part are congratulating President Ibanez for his measures against the activities of the students, attributing the disorders to a handful of fanatics who were fired by the example of their Bolivian colleagues.

EIGHT OF BANDIT GANG SENTENCED TO PRISON TERMS

Eight members of a bandit gang, which had committed more than 30 holdups and burglaries the past year in McHenry and Lake counties, Illinois, and Kenosha county, Wisconsin, pleaded guilty yesterday before Circuit Judge Edward D. Shurtleff at Woodstock and were sentenced to terms of one year to life in Joliet penitentiary.

They are Clifford, Lester and Harold Hironimous, Tony Jarasch, Arthur Bole, Frank Kutzler, Harold Regner, and Arthur Noble, all living in Highland Park or vicinity. They are known as the "green car bandits." Thirty-two indictments had been voted against them at a recall session of the grand jury.

Joe Hironimous alleged leader, Mrs. Roy Hironimous and Miss Marian Webster, will be tried at Kenosha.

Gary Labor Bank Closes; State to Make Inquiry

The Gary Labor bank, 6th street and Massachusetts avenue, Gary, Ind., voluntarily closed its doors yesterday to permit of an examination of its affairs by the Indiana bank examiner. It was the fourth Gary bank to close its doors within a week. State Senator J. J. Nejdl of Whiting, Ind., is president of the bank which has listed resources of $670,000. One of other banks closed recently, the American State bank, may reopen late this week under the name of the First Indiana State bank, according to a charter issued at Indianapolis yesterday.

Closing of the American State bank followed the suicide on Aug. 11 of Alfred De Freis, its president. Examiners announced the bank to be solvent.

DURANT MOTORS, INC., WILL BUILD 100,000 FRENCH 'BABY' AUTOS

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—William C. Durant, who has reassumed control of Durant Motors, Inc., after several years during which he allowed others to manage the company, announced today that the concern, which has its headquarters here, has been awarded a contract to build 100,000 small cars for American Mathis, Inc.

The Mathis, which has previously been built exclusively in Strasbourg, France, is one of Europe's most popular cars. It will be marketed here through the newly formed distribution organization which will be closely allied with the Durant organization. The contract stipulates deliveries from the Lansing plant by Dec. 1.

It was further announced that new officers have been chosen for Durant Motors, Inc., as follows:

W. C. Durant, president; Ralph A. Vail, vice president; Hal W. Alger, treasurer; H. F. Herberman, secretary; Robert C. Rueschaw, Lansing, Roy D. Kerby, Toronto; Edward Verlinden, Detroit; Norman Devaux, Oakland, Cal.; T. S. Johnson, New York, and E. C. C. Mathis, Paris, France, directors.

ENGLISH EARL'S SON WORKING AS LABORER IN U. S.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—George E. Ponsonby, grandson of the seventh early of Bessborough, English college graduate, world war officer, and ex-manager of a British oil company in the West Indies, today was discovered wielding a pick and shovel in an oil field.

"Yes, I'm Ponsonby, and I'm not working for a bet, either," he said. "I came to San Diego with my family, but found the economic situation there nearly as bad as London. I told an American friend I would take any kind of job. He offered me a pick and shovel, and now I make $22 a week instead of the $20 a day I made during my eight years as manager of the British Union Oil company at Barbados."

PAL OF HOOVER'S FATHER MARKS 80TH BIRTHDAY

Iowa City, Ia., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Frank Tanner of Iowa City, who worked side by side with President Hoover's father in their blacksmith shop at West Branch, Ia., before the nation's chief executive was born, celebrated his eightieth birthday here today.

A former postmaster and alderman of Iowa City and for 12 years a member of the county board of supervisors, Tanner still dwells on the occasion 30 years ago when he gave a barbecue to which all residents of Johnson county were invited. Approximately 6,500 attended.

Despite admiration for President Hoover, Tanner, a Democrat, predicts a "wet" president in 1932.

15 Year Old Girl Kills Woman Who Fired Her

Fulton, N. Y., Aug. 19.—(AP)—After being questioned for eight hours, Anna Dziegel, 15, confessed tonight, police said, that she shot and killed Mrs. Marjorie Brackett Gillispie, 30, in Recreation park here today. Mrs. Gillispie was found dead beside her husband's car with two bullet wounds in her body. Children who heard the shots reported seeing a girl running from the scene, and Miss Dziegel, who had been discharged as a domestic in the Gillispie home, was arrested. Police believe the girl's loss of her position was the motive for the shooting.

Boy Suspect Shot as He Flees Auto Theft Trap

Driving into a police trap set for a band of suspected automobile thieves in a garage at 1110 North Monticello avenue, Tony Coriglione, 16 years old, 1855 West Ohio street, was shot in the leg last night while trying to escape. He was captured with a companion, Peter Kovel, 18 years old, 2434 Mason avenue. A third youth escaped. Policeman William J. Gibbons and Thomas Durkin, who had found two stolen cars in the garage, were hiding there when the boys drove in.

SEEKS RECALL OF NEW LAW ON THEATER SEATS

Ald. O'Toole Gives Story of Ordinance.

Ald. William R. O'Toole [14th], chairman of the council buildings and zoning committee, yesterday laid plans to recall the building code amendment which passed at the last council meeting. The amendment requires theater owners to install automatic devices, which cause seats to rise when unoccupied, or to increase the distance between seat rows by fourteen inches.

The mystery surrounding passage of the amendment also was dispelled by Ald. O'Toole. He announced that he was its author, refuting reports that O. W. Rosenthal, chairman of the general committee which is revising the Chicago building code, had sought the change.

Plans to Ask Recall.

"If it is necessary I will write to Mayor Thompson and ask him not to sign the ordinance so that it cannot become effective before the council meeting on Nov. 5," said Ald. O'Toole. "Then I will ask that the amendment be recommitted to my committee for public hearings.

"The idea of having the Chicago theaters equipped with automatic 'flip up seats' is my own. Seats often are left down by patrons and those that come in afterwards sometimes stumble over the seats causing injuries.

Tells of Passage.

"The amendment was explained by me in the committee meeting. In the council session I asked that the amendment and other zoning ordinances be deferred for passage until the next council meeting which I thought would be held within two weeks. When I learned that the council was to adjourn for over two months I asked for unanimous consent to have the amendment and ordinances passed immediately."

Before Ald. O'Toole gave out his statement Building Commissioner Paschen had said that he would not enforce the amendment and Mr. Rosenthal had denied that the amendment ever had been discussed before his code revision committee.

Other amendments relating to theaters are pending in the building committee, according to Ald. O'Toole, and will be considered at public hearings.

ETTELSON RULES ON DISPUTE OVER STREET PAVING

Corporation Counsel Ettelson yesterday gave a ruling on the dispute over street resurfacing that has been waged intermittently for two years by Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, and Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe. In an opinion given to Faherty, Ettelson said:

"In all cases where the work of resurfacing constitutes mere repairs the department of public works has exclusive control and jurisdiction including the right to supervise and pass upon the specifications. In all cases where the resurfacing is and can be regarded as reconstruction, rebuilding or repaving the board of local improvements alone has jurisdiction."

BANK MESSENGER ROBBED; $6,000 IS SEIZED BY PAIR

Police last night were hunting for two armed Negroes who earlier in the day robbed Raymond Mills, 23 years old, a messenger for the Sixty-third and Halsted State Savings bank of $6,000 at State street and Garfield boulevard. The loot represented collections Mills had made from several branch insurances offices on the south side and which he was taking, alone and unarmed, for deposit in the bank.

DIES FROM STREET CAR INJURY.

Joseph Tomlinson, 46 years old, a laborer, 1911 West Grand avenue, died yesterday at the county hospital of injuries received Aug. 15 when he was struck by a surface car.

ROCKFORD POLICE NAB 2 AS BOGUS MONEY PASSERS

Two men wanted by the Chicago office of the federal secret service as members of a widespread counterfeiting band were arrested last night at Rockford on charges of passing spurious $10 bills, the Associated Press reported.

John R. Gordon, 22 years old, had five of the counterfeit bills in his possession when arrested and four were taken from his companion, P. J. Elmore, alias Belasick, 24 years old. Neither prisoner would reveal his address.

A bank book in Elmore's possession indicated he had opened an account with a deposit of $1,015 yesterday in the South Ashland National bank, 6905 South Ashland avenue. Rockford police seized the pair after they had aroused suspicion of merchants, visiting store after store and presenting $10 notes in payment for small purchases.

SIX DIE UNDER LAVA; VOLCANO ERUPTS IN JAPAN

TOKIO, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Six persons were killed in a violent eruption of the volcano Asama, northwest of Tokio, at 8:30 a. m. today. The victims were all Japanese mountain climbers, four of them men, two women. They were caught in the flow of lava 2,000 feet from the crater. Simultaneously with the eruption a strong earth shock was felt in the surrounding territory.

Get men instead of methods from your advertising agency

THE principals of this company had previously been principals in several of America's leading advertising agencies.

Against the trend of agency practice, they decided that the time was ripe for an agency that would divest itself of slavish devotion to methods and invest unstintedly in men.

They believed that certain experienced advertisers subscribed to the same kind of thinking — and that a welcome, and an important place, awaited the first strong agency equipped to institute such a change.

The accounts the Roche agency has attracted and held constitute, of themselves, the best proof of the soundness of such a program. You are dealing with men—not with standardized practices—when your advertising is done here.

The MURDER at the VICARAGE

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

SYNOPSIS.

Mr. Clement, vicar of a country village in England, at luncheon tells his wife, Griselda, and young nephew, Dennis, who lives with them, that any one who murdered Col. Protheroe would be doing the world at large a service. The colonel enjoys making life miserable for his daughter, Lettice, and his second wife, and fusses about the running of the parish. He suspects that there are defalcations in the church accounts and is coming over the next evening to go over them with the vicar. Griselda, nearly twenty years younger than her husband, refuses to take anything, including the parish, seriously. Four of the female parishioners call at the vicarage in the afternoon for tea and scandal.

INSTALLMENT III.

CHARITY THINKETH NO EVIL.

There was a silence. Evidently none of the four ladies agreed. Miss Marple broke the silence by patting Griselda on the arm.

"My dear," she said, "you are very young. The young have such innocent minds."

Griselda said indignantly that she hadn't got at all an innocent mind.

"Naturally," said Miss Marple, unheeding of the protest, "you think the best of every one."

"Do you really think she wants to marry that bald headed dull man?"

"I understand he is quite well off," said Miss Marple. "Rather a violent temper, I'm afraid. He had quite a serious quarrel with Col. Protheroe the other day."

Every one leaned forward interestedly.

"Col. Protheroe accused him of being an ignoramus."

"How like Col. Protheroe, and how absurd," said Mrs. Price Ridley.

"Very like Col. Protheroe, but I don't know about it being absurd," said Miss Marple. "You remember the woman who came down here and said she represented Welfare, and after taking subscriptions she was never heard of again and proved to have nothing whatever to do with Welfare. One is so inclined to be trusting and take people at their own valuation."

I should never have dreamed of describing Miss Marple as trusting.

"There's been some fuss about that young artist, Mr. Redding, hasn't there?" asked Miss Wetherby.

Miss Marple nodded.

"Col. Protheroe turned him out of the house. It appears he was painting Lettice in her bathing dress."

Suitable sensation!

"I always thought there was something between them," said Mrs. Price Ridley. "That young fellow is always mouching off up there. Pity the girl hasn't got a mother. A stepmother is never the same thing."

"I daresay Mrs. Protheroe does her best," said Miss Hartnell.

"Girls are so sly," deplored Mrs. Price Ridley.

"Quite a romance, isn't it?" said the softer hearted Miss Wetherby. "He's a very good looking young fellow."

"But loose," said Miss Hartnell. "Bound to be. An artist! Paris' Models!"

"Painting her in her bathing dress," said Mrs. Price Ridley. "Not quite nice."

"He's painting me, too," said Griselda.

"But not in your bathing dress, dear," said Miss Marple.

"It might be worse," said Griselda solemnly.

"Her husband was a missionary. Terrible storm. He was eaten, you know."

"Naughty girl," said Miss Hartnell taking the joke broad mindedly Everybody else looked slightly shocked.

"Did dear Lettice tell you of the trouble?" asked Miss Marple of me.

"Tell me?"

"Yes. I saw her pass through the garden and go round to the study window."

Miss Marple always sees everything. Gardening is as good as a smoke screen, and the habit of observing birds through powerful glasses can always be turned to account.

"She mentioned it, yes," I admitted.

"Mr. Hawes looked worried," said Miss Marple. "I hope he hasn't been working too hard."

"O," cried Miss Wetherby excitedly. "I quite forgot. I knew I had some news for you. I saw Dr. Haydock coming out of Mrs. Lestrange's cottage."

Every one looked at each other.

"Perhaps she's ill," suggested Mrs. Price Ridley.

"It must have been very sudden, if so," said Miss Hartnell. "For I saw her walking round her garden at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and she seemed in perfect health."

"She and Dr. Haydock must be old acquaintances," said Mrs. Price Ridley. "He's been very quiet about it."

"It's curious," said Miss Wetherby, "that he's never mentioned it."

"As a matter of fact," said Griselda in a low mysterious voice, and stopped.

Every one leaned forward excitedly.

"I happen to know," said Griselda impressively. "Her husband was a missionary. Terrible story. He was eaten, you know. Actually eaten And she was forced to become the chief's head wife. Dr. Haydock was with an expedition and rescued her."

For a moment excitement was rife, then Miss Marple said reproachfully but with a smile:

"Naughty girl!"

She tapped Griselda reprovingly on the arm.

"Very unwise thing to do, my dear. If you make up these things, people are quite likely to believe them. And sometimes that leads to complications.'

A distinct frost had come over the assembly. Two of the ladies rose to take their departure.

"I wonder if there is anything between young Lawrence Redding and Lettice Protheroe," said Miss Wetherby. "It certainly looks like it. What do you think, Miss Marple?"

Miss Marple seemed thoughtful.

"I shouldn't have said so myself. Not Lettice. Quite another person I should have said."

"But Col. Protheroe must have thought——"

"He has always struck me as rather a stupid man," said Miss Marple. "The kind of man who gets the wrong idea into his head and is obstinate about it. Do you remember Joe Bucknell who used to keep the Blue Boar? Such a to do about his daughter carrying on with young Bailey. And all the time it was that minx of a wife of his."

She was looking full at Griselda as she spoke, and I suddenly felt a wild surge of anger.

"Don't you think, Miss Marple," I said, "that we're all inclined to let our tongues run away with us too much. Charity thinketh no evil, you know. Inestimable harm may be done by the foolish wagging of tongues in ill natured gossip."

"Dear vicar," said Miss Marple, "you are so unworldly. I'm afraid that observing human nature for as long as I have done, one gets not to expect very much from it. I daresay idle tittle tattle is very wrong and unkind, but it is so often true, isn't it?"

That last Parthian shot went home.

. . . . . .

"Nasty old cat," said Griselda as soon as the door was closed.

She made a face in the direction of the departing visitors and then looked at me and laughed.

"Len, do you really suspect me of having an affair with Lawrence Redding?"

"My dear, of course not."

"But you thought Miss Marple was hinting at it. And you rose to my defense simply beautifully. Like—like an angry tiger."

"I felt the occasion could not pass without a protest," I said. "But Griselda, I wish you would be a little more careful in what you say."

"Do you mean the cannibal story?" she asked. "Or the suggestion that Lawrence was painting me in the nude! If they only knew that he was painting me in a thick cloak with a very high fur collar—not a bit of sinful flesh showing anywhere! In fact, it's all marvelously pure. Lawrence never even attempts to make love to me—I can't think why."

"Surely, knowing that you're a married woman——"

"Don't pretend to come out of the ark, Len. You knew very well that an attractive young woman with an elderly husband is a kind of gift from heaven to a young man. There must be some other reason—it's not that I'm unattractive—I'm not."

"Surely you don't want him to make love to you?"

"N-n-o," said Griselda with more hesitation than I thought becoming.

"If he's in love with Lettice Protheroe——"

"Miss Marple didn't seem to think he was."

"Miss Marple may be mistaken."

10 Buried Cities Hailed Proof of Bible Lore

American Traces Stories Among the Debris.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

JERUSALEM, Aug. 19.—Discoveries by the joint American expedition at Kiryath Sepher conclusively prove biblical stories and fix the date of Abraham's time, Dr. Melvin Grove Kyle, director of the joint expedition of the Xenia Theological seminary and the American School of Oriental Research of Jerusalem, asserted here tonight.

Assisted by a staff of ten archaeologists, including many Americans, and 110 native workmen, the expedition uncovered a mound containing ten distinct cities, one above the other, linking Abraham's arrival in Canaan from Chaldea to the period of Nebuchadnezzar, who raided Canaan.

"These excavations give the world, in a remarkable way, a history of the culture in Palestine that it is possible to read alongside biblical history, as the supreme test of its trustworthiness," Dr. Kyle said. "Only real events leave anything which can be dug out of the ground.

"The fortress at Tell Beit Mirsim, thirteen miles directly southeast of Hebron, which is the ancient Kirjath Sepyer, proves to be a mound of ten cities, each separated by burned levels. These ten cities represented only five civilizations."

Dr. Kyle said civil wars accounted for the destruction of the cities.

The first city dates from 2,000 B. C., perhaps earlier, which is Abraham's time in the scriptures," he continued.

"The same social and political conditions of the story of Lot and the angels are reflected in the ruins of this first city which approximates the civilization of that time and not the time of the kings of Judah in the eighth and seventh centuries B. C.

"There was only one city in the early bronze age, but in the middle bronze age, about 1900 to 1600 B. C., there were six different cities, one above the other, the first two representing the transition from the early to the middle bronze age, the next four being typically middle bronze. These were definitely distinguished by their pottery."

"The turmoil evidenced by these six burnings in the middle bronze age approximates the turmoil of the Hyksos period in western Asia. The Hyksos kings seemed against everybody, except the Israelites, who were royally favored in Egypt.

In the later bronze age, 1600 to 1200 B. C., there was a city destroyed by Othniel [Judges xv., 17]. At the time of the Israelites and the Cananite conquests in the early iron age there is efidence of terrific warfare, shown in a great layer of ashes.

"Naturally the Israelites in coming to Canaan after forty years of nomadic life in the wilderness, built a very poor city. This city in turn was destroyed about 900 B. C., undoubtedly by Pharoah Shishak, who smashed Judah's defense fortresses, according to the scriptural account and according to Shishak's inscription on the Karnak temple in Egypt.

"The last city on the mound was the city of the kings of Kudah, destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar, as is conclusively testified to by the discovery of stamped jar handles which served as tax receipts from King Kehoiahim, who reigned a few years before Nebuchadnezzar's destruction.

"In modern times Nebuchadnezzar stands as the symbol of military ruthlessness, although in fact his destruction was less terrible than any of the other of these ten burnings. The Israelites, for example, destroyed the city at the time of the conquest of Canaan so thoroughly that they destroyed all traces of it, but Nebuchadnezzar left walls four or five feet high.

Dr. Kyle said it was possible to confirm that the Lot story was true, because he found a house such as that described in the Scriptural narrative of Lot and the angels, with a strong door capable of resisting onslaught of a mob.

"This disproves the contentions," he added, "that the story of Lot and the angels was written in King Hezekiah's period in the kings of Judah city about 700 to 600 B. C., because the sociological and political conditions differ.

"In the last city on the mound there is evidence of adequate police arrangement in the fact that no doors were found, merely arches with curtains or light coverings, whereas in Lot's time many heavy doors were uncovered, proving the people took their own defense precautions. It is unlikely that a historian of the time of Hezekiah would appreciate such a subtle distinction in sociological conditions proving the Biblical narrative that Lot actually harbored celestial visitors from the fury of an attacking Sodom mob."

Austrians May Balk Sale of Gutenberg Bible to U. S. Congress

KLANGENFURT, Austria, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Objection by the Austrian government to the sale of the valuable "42 lined" Gutenberg Bible to Dr. Otto Vollbehr of New York City was reported in semi-official circles today.

Reports that the famous Bible, for 400 years in the possession of the St. Blasius monastery near here, had been transferred to Dr. Vollbehr at the American legation in Vienna Saturday were denied.

The Austrian government has demanded that a fresh export permit be obtained, because it has learned that the congressional library in Washington is the actual purchaser of the volume.

Several years ago this Bible was offered to Dr. Vollbehr by the monks of St. Blasius for $300,000.

About 20 Gutenberg Bibles are recognized by bibliophiles, and of these Austria possesses three of the most valuable. Her finest is in the national library in Vienna. Johannes Gutenberg, credited with the invention of the printing press, who printed the Bibles, was born at Mainz about 1400 and died about 1468.

Pres. Hutchins to Give Literature Course for Twenty Freshmen

President Robert Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago set a precedent yesterday when he announced that this fall he would conduct instruction for freshmen. It will be an honors course, consisting of readings in western European literature and discussions once a week for two hour periods.

The class will be limited to 20 students. They will be selected from the 750 freshmen enrolling at the fall semester on the basis of their high school records and their general intelligence as revealed in personal interviews with President Hutchins. He says the object of the course is to put the students on their own initiative. It is an experiment and if successful will be extended to other classes.

Dr. Mortimer Adler, associate professor of philosophy, will collaborate with President Hutchins.

2 American Prelates Attend Mass on Danube's Bank

BUDEPEST, Hungary, Aug. 19.—(AP)—An open air high mass in honor of St. Emery of Hungary was attended today by many eminent European prelates. Bishop John Noll of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Bishop Joseph Schrembs of Cleveland, O., joined in the ceremony. The mass was celebrated on the banks of the Danube in the presence of an enormous crowd. The papal legate, Cardinal Sincero, extended a blessing to the Hungarian people.

Veterans of '98 March, Planes Fly Overhead

Hold Preparedness Day in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The "Boys of '98," who fought against Spain in Cuba, marched again today in a colorful parade as part of the program of the 32d annual encampment of the United Spanish War Veterans.

Once more "the American army," they marched in Philadelphia's famous parkway to the reviewing stand at the city hall. Thousands lined the sidewalks and packed the stands, their cheers and applause supported by the roar of nine military airplanes.

After the parade the veterans saw a demonstration by army flyers. The parade was the feature of "prepared-ness day," the second day of the encampment, which is to continue until Thursday. Officers were nominated and will be elected tomorrow. Edward S. Matthias, formerly a judge of the Ohio Supreme court, and Robert Wankowski of Venice, Cal., were nominated for national commander. Dr. R. S. Ellsworth of Portland, Ore., was nominated for senior vice commander. For junior vice commander the following were nominated: Michael F. Kelly, Illinois; Otto Emmendorfer, St. Louis; William S. Seddinger, Norfolk, Va., and Henry A. Ingalls of Rosewell, N. M.

Next year's convention will be held in New Orleans.

Revival of Waltzes Predicted at Session of Dancing Masters

New York, Aug. 19.—[Special.]—It's going to be a "waltz me around again Willie" year, according to the prophecy of Fred W. Kehl, 68 year old dancing master attending the 37th annual convention of his profession at the Commodore.

It's not easy to be a Charleston stepper in floating chiffons, and the new trailing feminine fripperies are making a return to the graceful, indolent waltz imperative.

Despite Henry Ford's efforts to revive the square dances, however, Kehl is of the opinion that they are definately passé. "When a young man dances nowadays," he said, "he's used to having his arm around a girl."

French Visitors Study Chicago, Styles, Lights, All but Gangsters

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Even if he were not the hat king of France, M. Charles Sools of Paris still would be appalled at the hatless habit of American young men as observed during his first few days in this country. No longer a model for Jean Patou, Mlle. Germaine Briche of the same city finds the average American girl superior in smartness of costume to the girls in Paris.

As for M. Georges Prade, municipal councilor of Paris and general counsel for the "department de la Seine," who by virtue of his fairly fluent English is chief spokesman for the party of eighteen Parisians who arrived yesterday at the Palmer house—he is bent on studying almost everything about Chicago's civic accomplishments, except the gangs and gangsters. M. Prade is the youngest man ever to hold his present post, having only two days to spare beyond the required twenty-five years when he was elected.

"I come to study your traffic signals and all parking, divided roadways, fire alarm, and police," he explained. "Oh yes. And I also study your smoke ordinance. We have in Paris many factories and many boats on the Seine.

"Your Soldiers' Field stadium also is something I must see. Paris has bought much land outside the city and will build there a huge stadium. Everyone tells me Chicago has the largest and most wonderful in the world."

M. Sools commented in French that he had been astounded to see American boys wearing no hats escorting girls on the streets.

"In France you could not possibly accompany a lady without wearing a hat," he declared. "Why, it would not be respectful. It would be most rude. I was astonished to see young men doing it here."

M. Sools is an extremely wealthy young man and a patron of athletics of all kinds among French youth, especially rugby football, Prade revealed. He is a member of more than 200 French sporting clubs, and provides medals and prizes for a majority of the sporting events in that country.

County Orphans and Aged Have Their Picnic Today

There won't be any late sleepers this morning in Cook county's institutions for orphans and old folks. This is the day of the big picnic at Lincoln park. Every one will be dressed in their Sunday best bright and early to be ready when the volunteer automobile drivers call to take them to the park so they'll be there before Hack Wilson and others of the Cubs baseball team arrive at 10:30 o'clock. Picnic lunches will be served to 5,000 at noon.

THE STAGE

THE Chicago Civic Shakespeare society announces that Fritz Leiber's second session at the Civic theater in Shakespearean repertory will begin on Monday evening, Oct. 27. That also is the night on which the Civic opera season will open.

During the summer the promotion department of the society has made a survey of the study of Shakespeare's plays in the universities, colleges, and high schools of the Chicago region. It has found that 312,337 students have been reading plays by Shakespeare. "Hamlet" is first in the list; then, in the order named, come "Macbeth," "The Merchant of Venice," "Julius Cæsar," "Twelfth Night," "Richard III," and "King Lear." From this survey the society concludes that Chicago and its suburbs contain a potential audience of impressive size for Mr. Leiber's repertory.

This season's board of trustees for the Chicago Civic Shakespeare society is composed of Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago; Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university; the Rev. Robert M. Kelly, S. J., president of Loyola university; John Mathews Manley, F. R. Moulton, Rufus C. Dawes, Booth Tarkington, Meredith Nicholson, Frederick H. Rawson, Charles S. Stanton, Nathan William MacChesney, Charles W. Higley, Glenn Griswold, Henry Justin Smith, John C. Shaffer, J. P. Bickett, and, of course, Harley L. Clarke, founder and guarantor of the enterprise.

Here is another change for the much altered theatrical calendar: "Young Sinners" will not begin an engagement at the Apollo on or about Labor day. "Sisters of the Chorus," which has been Chicago's only summer show, will prolong its occupancy of the Apollo until Sept. 13. "Young Sinners" will appear there the next evening. . . . This postponement cuts the list of Labor day openings down to one. Therefore, on the day traditionally recognized as the great whoop-la opening of the playgoing year, the blood pressure of the Chicago stage will be seriously subnormal.

Eva Le Gallienne's New York Civic Repertory theater has added a new play, called "Siegfried," to its list of productions for the new season. It will be staged Oct. 13, with Jacob Ben-Ami in the title rôle and with Miss Le Gallienne and Egon Brecher prominent in the cast. This play was adapted from the French of Jean Giraudoux by Philip Carr. Paris theatrical correspondent for the New York Times.

The Le Gallienne season will open Sept. 29 in the Fourteenth Street theater, New York, with "Romeo and Juliet," which was added to the repertory last spring. "Siegfried" will follow. Other new plays scheduled for the season are: "The Nobel Prize," by Hjalmar Bergman; "Alice in Wonderland," dramatized by Miss Florida Friebus of the acting company; "Rosmersholm," by Ibsen, and "Gruach" and "Advorlich's Wife" [the latter in one act] by Gordon Bottomley.

The program also will include revivals from the productions of former seasons. Miss Le Gallienne's repertory now contains:

"The Cradle Song," by Sierra; "The Master Builder," "John Gabriel Forkman," and "Hedda Gabler," by Ibsen; "La Locandiera," by Goldoni; "The Cherry Orchard" and "The Three Sisters," by Tchekov; "Inheritors," by Susan Glaspell; "The Good Hope," by Heijermans; "The First Stone," by Ferris; "Improvisations in June," by Mohr; "Twelfth Night," by Shakespeare; "The Would-be Gentleman," by Molière; "Peter Pan," by Barrie; "The Lady from Alfaqueque," by the Quintero brothers, and "Katerina," by Andreyev.

Preacher Says Moderns Flee from Virtues

'Complexes Replace Hell'; Cites Chicago.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Modern victims of psychology fear complexes more than the punishments of a sinful life, so they bolt from virtues as their forefathers fled the thoughts of hell at least the Rev. J. C. Hardwick so declared at the modern churchmen's conference at Oxford today. He added that such persons are led by a group of scientists who are twentieth century Torquemadas.

The speaker took a rap at Chicago during the indictment of advanced thinkers. His talk was the second sensation, for yesterday at a meeting of the group, Dean Inge of St. Paul's, defended the suicide of condemned murderers and victims of painful or hopeless disease.

"When scientists get in the saddle we long for the old free days of Torquemada," the Rev. Mr. Hardwick said. "The inquisitor of the future will not burn us; he will experiment upon us; he will take a man's soul and turn it wrong side out. We must not forget that the first psychologist was the devil—the father of lies."

The modern scientist and inventor the speaker added, are persons to whom the world is indebted for poison gas and high explosives, while psychologists are no more to be trusted than are priests.

"Advanced thinkers advocate a sort of new Chicago—I will not speak of the new Jerusalem. If we came to believe that we could only exercise self control at the cost of ruining mental health and that traumata, neuroses and complexes were the price of morality, we should let ourselves drift," he declared, adding:

"It would not be an exaggeration to say that many people are as much afraid of psychological repressions as of bad drains and contaminated milk. Just as the fears of hell frightened our grandfathers from the paths of vice, so the fears of acquiring complexes scare us from the paths of virtue."

The Rev. Mr. Hardwick point out that most extremists are afraid of their own theories. He insisted that the bishops in their decisions at the Lambeth conference "are fighting a rearguard action. What we really are waiting for is postwar youths to tell what they want. I do not believe they know. They have just resolved for the present to not be too interested in anything."

George Bernard Shaw, noted dramatist, agrees with Dean Inge. "I do not see how you can prevent them from committing suicide," declared Mr. Shaw tonight.

"In China, for instance, where people are given some liberty in the matter, they starve themselves to death as the longest way of achievement," he said.

"I always feel deeply obliged to the murderer who commits suicide because he saves a great deal of trouble and expense. Every condemned man should have a collection of poisons and chemicals put in his way and if he chooses to use them—all well.

"I think a condemned man should be told that on a certain day he would be hanged; if on that day he was not dead, having been provided with every possible convenience for committing suicide, then he would have to suffer execution."

St. Olav Church Choir, in Berlin, Wins Critics' Praise

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—(AP)—All of Berlin's music critics today showered praises upon the St. Olav church choir of Northfield, Minn., which gave a concert last night in the Protestant cathedral. The reviewers used such phrases as "artistic top notchers," or "exceeding all expectations," or "comparable only to Rome's Sistine singers."

WOTTA LIFE! WOTTA LIFE!

CALL CASTLE 'GLARMS' WHEN ASKING ABOUT DUCHESS OF YORK

GLAMIS, Scotland, Aug. 19.—(AP)—There was little news today from Glamis castle, where the duchess of York is awaiting the birth of a royal baby, but some one discovered that most people have been mispronouncing the name of the castle.

The chances are that most people in the United States say "Glammiss," over here they have been asking:

"Has the happy event occurred yet at 'Glahms'?"

Now they find that they should say:

"Is there any news from 'Glarms'?"

The latter pronounciation is given by Debrett's Peerage, than which there is no higher authority on such matters.

Meanwhile the duchess continues the normal routine of quiet life in her ancestral home. The duke went shooting on the Moors near the castle today and has a tentative engagement for grouse hunting tomorrow.

Censure Is Poor Weapon to Use to Correct a Fault

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"Short Reading References for the Expectant Mother" will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

This is a serious warning—today's article. Without meaning to be unkind to their children—really only hoping to do some good by it—various mothers write me saying, "And I've spanked her for it," or "I've punished her and talked to her," or "I've tried to make him ashamed," or "I cried and showed how upset I was," or "I let him see I was horrified," and so on.

All this about some undesirable habit they were trying to break. For perfectly normal, nice children do often develop habits which are not desirable — some trivial, some more serious, like biting the fingernails, sucking the fingers, enuresis, stealing, etc.

And as these mothers have told me about their various sorts of punishment, or of constant reproof or nagging, or of being really shocked, or genuinely disgusted, or weeping, or creating a scene, it has been strikingly evident that they were doing the worst thing they could do to cure or help the child. And for this reason—that each thing they were doing was emphasizing the habit in their child's mind, was fixing his attention on the habit and making him identify himself with it.

The idea conveyed that way is, "You are bad," as if the child and the habit were one. This is no way to help a child throw off an undesirable habit He must not be led to think of himself as bad. That is a new thought to many people who are guiding children.

When a mother wants to root out a habit, the less emotional, the more matter of fact she is in her reaction to it, the better her results will be. I'm not trying to day to go into the way of replacing undesirable habits with desirable ones, but only to emphasize the importance of a mother having the right attitude toward a child with an undesirable habit, if she is to do him any good.

Be friendly. Be kind. Give your child the feeling that your one desire is to help him.

This may seem like a small point to make. But if you could know how many parents try to cure a "bad" habit by making a child feel he is bad [especially those where so-called moral issues are involved], and if you could see how flatly they fail, you would realize that it is not a small point, but a big one, and well worth a column.

When Triangle Rises Try Outdoing Rival at Her Own Game

BY DORIS BLAKE.

A woman writes that the old triangle theme came into her story. The other member of her sex has not yet succeeded in alienating the husband's affections entirely, but the wife sees signs of her man slipping away from her. And what shall she do? is her query.

Usually, when women are confronted with this menace to their happiness their first, second and last thought is to take stock of their personal selves; that is, if they are willing to admit at all that they may be responsible. If they have a small brood of youngsters, three or four, as in the case referred to, they see an injustice in a man expecting them to keep up their appearance as a woman not endowed with a family is permitted by both time and money to do.

Personally, I think they are right to feel that injustice is done under the circumstances. Buying clothes and shoes, milk, fresh vegetables, orange juice and all the needed things for growing children eats unconscionably into an average salary. By some self-appointed rule the average man is permitted the funds for his personal upkeep. Being the breadwinner, it is assumed, and correctly, that he must put up a good front in order to get on in business.

But I think women facing the problem above referred to, put too much stress on the reclaiming value of clothes and marcels. Not that I think a woman can afford to neglect herself. There is no reason for her doing so, either, with our modern advantages pertaining to complexion and nail and hair upkeep and the comparative inexpensiveness of charming little frocks for home wear. But there are other things more important. A sunny character is infinitely more important in the scheme of man holding than a Chanel frock or an Antoine haircut. So is a home in which the male is permitted the luxury of feeling it belongs to him as well as to his wife—one with the furnishings chosen for his comfort.

Perhaps more than any feature in a competitive race with another woman is playing her game of making the man feel that he is just about the most wonderful human that ever breathed. That's the trump card for a wife in any sprouting triangle situation; outdoing the other woman at her own game.

It Takes More Than Diet to Restore Trim Lines to Hips

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The lady with the large hips and thighs favors winter type sports more than aquatic. It's a bit hard on the vanity to unveil for public observation a too hefty pair of thighs and a wide, thick hipline. Bathing suits and the diaphanous summer frocks were not designed with this type figure in mind. Under other dress circumstances the thick hips and thighs may be concealed behind folds and drapes of stouter dress materials. But a bathing suit goes ahead and tells everything. A wispy chiffon is just about as mean minded.

So that the only way to beat the game is to get the hips lined up for a better showing and the thighs along with them.

Do you remember the rolling exercise offered here a week or so ago? Do it. It is wonderful for hips and thighs. Lie flat on the back; keep head and shoulder as close to the ground as possible, as you swing the left leg over the right, rolling on the left leg with the leg swing. Then swing hips with the leg swing. Then swing back with other leg. Do this ten times.

Then do the same leg and hip movement by bringing the leg up close to the abdomen first before you swing it over. With the leg that goes over the other, stretch from the hip to toes by aiming for a point on the floor a couple of inches out of seeming reach. This one exercise done regularly every morning and night twenty times would take several inches off the hips in a month, I'll guarantee.

When you're down on the floor there, you may as well take on a couple of other good hip and thigh reducers. Bring both legs up toward the chin and then kick them forward to original prone position. If you can't bring both up together at first, bring one and then the other shooting the leg forward with a good stretch on its downward mission.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

A. M. G.: STRENUOUS EXERCISE is necessary to reduce the bust. Furthermore, it must be done systematically and vigorously. Swinging Indian clubs, rowing and bag punching are recommended.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Child Has No Bed.

"We feel sure that some generous reader will gladly donate a child's bed or a double bed to a family we are interested in. The father died a few months ago and the widow is expecting another baby soon. There is a child of 4 years for whom she has no bed, and she will need clothing for the new baby. Any help will be greatly appreciated. F. D."

Here is a misfortune in a large measure with little or no relief in sight. Perhaps you can make things a bit more comfortable for the family by giving the bed and clothing needed for the expected baby.

Croquet Golf Tourney Now Vogue in East

BY THALIA ——.

The annual gathering of the croquet golf cronies of Mr. and Mrs. Kimball Salisbury for a house party and tournament at Pittsfield, Mass., is to take place this week-end. The Darrow Bruce Fultons have already arrived at Tor Court, the Berkshires estate of Mr. Salisbury's mother, Mrs. Warren Salisbury, and the rest of the party, including the Valentine Bartletts and the Charles Wimans, who are summering at Watch Hill, R. I.; Lawrence Callahan, Preston Boyden, and Dr. O. E. Van Alyea will get there the latter part of the week.

The tournament, started a few years ago by "Kim" Salisbury, is to be staged at the Pittsfield Country club. For the uninitiate, we might explain that croquet golf is played with croquet mallets and golf balls, and is considered quite an intricate sport by its devotees.

The party includes some of the players who star in the games at the Saddle and Cycle, where croquet golf is one of the most popular diversions.

Other news from the Berkshires includes the intelligence that Mrs. Delano De Windt gave a reception and tea at her place at Great Barrington for 125 members of the summer colony. Mrs. William Warren Tracy, formerly of Chicago, is to give a large reception at Ormeland at Williamstown today for Lady Richmond, wife of Admiral Sir Herbert Richmond of London.

Lady Richmond is to read letters written by her sister, Miss Gertrude Bell of London, written while she was in Persia during the world war. Miss Alice and Miss Eleanor Coonley have returned from a ranch near Cody, Wyo., and are with their parents, the Prentiss L. Coonleys at Great Barrington. The George Higginsons are among the contributors to a $6,000 fund raised to build a dam at the outlet of Mahkeenac lake at Stockbridge. This will raise the water to a new level designated by the state commission on inland waters.

The social pace of late summer is accelerated by the American Bar association's meeting and the air races, but the concerns of particular importance to some forty maidens who are to be launched formally on the social scene this coming winter are pleasant plottings relative to dates, parties, clothes and the charming fol-de-rol that goes with the "coming out" program. As usual, there will be a series of north shore debut teas in September before the youthful exodus for schools and colleges. The latest date to be added to the fall calendar is for Miss Mary MacCaughey's debut reception, to take place on Sept. 20, at the Exmoor Country club. The final plans and the marshaling of the group of assistants have not been completed, as Miss MacCaughey is visiting Miss Barbara Shaffer, one of her classmates at Ogontz, at Colorado Springs. Miss MacCaughey and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew B. MacCaughey, who have been spending most of their time in the past several years in Florida, are in Winnetka for the summer. As their apartment on Walton place is rented for another year, they will be at the Seneca hotel for the winter. They plan to come in town about Oct. 1 to remain in Chicago until they go to Winter Park after Christmas.

The latest of the young sportsmen pilots to receive his official license from the United States department of commerce is Gordon Kelley, the William V. Kelley's son. He was granted a private license last Friday at Pal-Waukee airport, where he keeps his new 300 horsepower Stearman plane.

Mrs. Hermon B. Butler, Mrs. William Gold Hibbard, and Mrs. James W. Morrisson are members of the Chicago world peace day committee which is to observe the second anniversary of the signing of the Briand-Kellogg peace pact with a luncheon next Wednesday at the Hotel La Salle.

Women's Facial Lift to Be Common in the Future, Doctor Says

Whether it is her figure or her face, many a woman to hold her husband must have one or the other, or both, lifted.

Such was the advice yesterday of Dr. G. Alexander Ward, dermatologist and medical adviser to the American Association of Cosmeticians and Hair Artists in annual convention at the Hotel Sherman.

"It will not be so very long before a woman will have her face lifted as casually as she goes to her dentist to have a tooth extracted," Dr. Ward declared. "I met a woman just today who had her face lifted ten years ago. She told me she had had four husbands since.

"Women of 40 are better looking today than the women of 30 years were a generation ago. They pay more attention to their skin. They have to, because if they don't men will pay attention to other more beautiful women.

"The same is true with the figure," Dr. Ward continued. "Years ago one didn't know whether a woman was going north or south. But now she is dieting in an effort to get that pleasing contour."

Mrs. M. B. McGavran of Kansas City, president, said the beauty industry should have friends in the medical profession, and advocated that it be governed by the state board of health rather than the board of registration.

Here Are the Other Attractions for Sally Brown's Crowd

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

So busy have I been all week telling you about Harpo, Groucho, Chico, and Zeppo, the four Marx brothers, whose picture, "Animal Crackers," will form the backbone of our party a week from tomorrow, I'm afraid I've neglected the rest of the cast, who contribute much toward making this talkie the splendid one it is.

Well, there's Lillian Roth, who plays Arabella Rittenhouse, the heroine. For the last five years she has been in variety and, with her sister, Ann, has charmed audiences all over the country with her singing and dancing. Margaret Dumont is Mrs. Rittenhouse, the society matron at whose house party most of the action of the picture takes place. "Hives," the butler, is portrayed by Robert Greig, who tips the scale at 250 pounds and provides much of the comedy. The remainder of the cast makes an imposing list and you'll enjoy each one of them.

Won't it be fun to see and hear this talkie, which is probably one of the most entertaining that has been in these parts for some time? It's full of things to enjoy, but these, I think, will be some of the high lights: Chico at the piano. His fingers trip and slide over the keys in the most amazing fashion and the result is positively astounding. . . . The silly bridge game in which Harpo, Chico, and two of the female guests are the players. Harpo has rules all his own and makes the game difficult and complicated for every one but himself. . . . Groucho's wit. . . . Harpo's pantomime.

You can share in the fun of seeing all this as one of the group of boys and girls who are to accompany me to McVicker's theater on Aug. 28 if you but assure me that it's the kind of picture you like and the kind of party at which you'll have a good time. I want you to do this by letter—a letter that will reach me not later than tomorrow morning. It should contain your name, address, and age.

Marilyn Miller Here; Says Avoid Hollywood

Marilyn Miller, the little blonde dancer and motion picture star, volunteered a little advice to would-be chorus girls during a short pause here yesterday on her way to New York from Hollywood.

"This is no time to crash the gate, and there isn't much call for choruses in most of the newer pictures, anyway," she said.

Miss Miller was less talkative in regard to the marriage of her former husband, Jack Pickford, to Mary Mulhern, except to "hope they are happily married."

The film star was on her way to work in earnest upon the new Ziegfeld production: "Tom, Dick and Harry," by Louis Bromfield, novelist. She has just finished a screen version of "Sonny."

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

What was the most embarrassing moment of your life? If you care to have it published, address Embarrassing Moments, Chicago Tribune. Please write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

Tough Luck.

As I am studying court reporting, I often attend court for practice and experience in actual trials, sitting in the rear and writing what I can get. I had been in the same court several times and had made the acquaintance of the judge, so one day when there was no regular reporter on the case he permitted me to sit at the reporting bench. Everything went fine until in a fast argument between the lawyers I got behind and began making meaningless scribbles. What was my embarrassment to have one of the lawyers refer to me for what the other had said about a certain point. Here was a chance to prove my ability, but as the coutroom waited I stumbled in my reading and could not give the information desired. It was certainly embarrassing to admit my failure to the court and I shall never forget how silent the room was as they waited for me to read.

To be a gourmet for vegetables is a different thing from being a vegetarian. The former always delights in his carrots and spinach. The latter may or may not. How much better vegetables are for us when we indulge in them with pleasure. And there is only one way for every one to learn how to enjoy all of them and that is to have them cooked and served in their most attractive ways.

From time to time in these columns we have discussed the best methods of cooking different vegetables. To summarize: All green vegetables are cooked in an open kettle as rapidly as possible. All strong juiced ones are cooked in like manner. All others are cooked in a covered vessel in a small amount of water. At the instant vegetables are done they should be drained of water to the last drop, then dressed in fresh sweet butter, cream or a white sauce of satiny smoothness.

Wise is the cook who serves vegetables the moment they are done, because there is nothing so sad and sodden as soggy vegetables and in just a few minutes they will get that way. The woman who does not permit a little ecstasy over her cooked vegetables has never tasted the real joys of cooking.

Does your family grow rapturous over your vegetable plates? They will, if you give them a chance. Care must be taken that the vegetable meal provides the same variety of flavors and textures as the more usual meal of vegetables and meat. One mild vegetable such as potatoes or lima beans, one of pronounced flavor like cauliflower or cabbage, and one sour like spinach or beets, which are ordinarily served with lemon juice or vinegar. A crisp one like corn fritters or escalloped tomatoes with a layer of well browned crumbs, another vegetable with white sauce, and a raw vegetable such as celery or radish supplies a variety of texture.

Protein must also be kept in mind, and beans or peas, escalloped vegetables with cheese or a poached egg on spinach supply this adequately. Be sure that you have a variety of color. Serve all the vegetables on one plate, arranging them in such a way as to produce the most beautiful effect.

FROZEN CHEESE SALAD.

2 tablespoons lemon juice
3 ounces cream cheese [1 small package]
¼ cup mayonnaise
½ cup chopped dates
½ cup crushed, drained pineapple

Chill cream and whip until stiff. Add lemon juice and fold in. Mash cheese and add mayonnaise. A combination of mayonnaise and cooked salad dressing gives a most excellent flavor. Blend until soft and smooth. Fold into whipped cream. Add fruit and mix lightly, but thoroughly. Turn into cold freezing pan and place in refrigerator.

About 3 hours are required for freezing. This salad should not remain in refrigerator long enough for ice crystals to form. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves without salad dressing.

Yield: Six servings. One serving: Total, 276 calories; protein, 32 calories; fat, 112 calories; carbohydrates, 82 calories.

Seashore Styles for the Little World.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Paris fashions do not neglect even the smallest members of smart society, for Paris creators realize that every single detail is important to the style picture. So the little world has its couturiers as well as the big one, with openings, fashion parades, tiny mannequins, and all.

Daughter's skirt lengths are just as important as mother's, and the fit of sonny's trousers as carefully planned as father's.

Little girls, like big ones, are wearing slightly longer skirts this season; they, too, have taken to cottons, linens, and tussors in preference to jerseys and smoother silks and the hand embroidered touches so popular in summer fashions add daintiness to the children's miniature chic.

Dorothy Dulin has sketched for you three chic children playing on the beach at Deauville. The little girl standing up is wearing a bolero suit in white linen, with a smartly flaring gored skirt that buttons at the natural waist with two buttons, front and back. The sleeveless inside blouse has its turn-down collar and plastron, hand embroidered in bright green. The little pockets in the bolero are embroidered to match.

The apron frock sketched below is of blue linen trimmed round neck hem and arm holes with white linen bands. The sunbonnet is in blue linen, hand embroidered in white. It has a plaited frill to protect the nape of the neck against dangerous rays of the sun.

The little boy's costume is all in tussor. His very short shorts are in red tussor and his sleeveless blouse is naturel, encrusted with motifs of navy blue and red tussor.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER.

What to Do Now

What to plant and when to plant are included in various topics discussed in the newly revised Chicago Tribune booklet on "Flower Gardening. Fall planting and the list that this includes for a good start in the flower garden next spring fill one of the pages of the 64 page booklet, which can be obtained by sending 13 cents in stamps to the Farm and Garden department of The Chicago Tribune, or the booklets can be purchased for 10 cents at any of The Tribune's public service offices.

September is the best time to seed the new lawn, but August is the month to prepare for the new seeding, Prof. Ralph W. Curtis of Cornell university says. Lawn grasses germinate and grow well in the moist days and cool nights of September and October, while most weeds and weedy grasses do not, he adds.

If the soil is poor, it should be improved by working in well rotted manure at the rate of one to two cubic yards to each 1,000 square feet. Then the lawn should be rolled to show irregularities in the surface and these filled to bring the lawn to the desired grade. This final surface should be cultivated lightly about every ten days until seeding time. An iron tooth rake is about the best hand tool to use, says Prof. Curtis. The young weeds are then starting from seed and the raking kills the weeds with little effort.

Old roots of the deep rooted weeds like dandelion, dock, and plantain will start new growth in August. These should be dug out entirely. This is the one time of year that the lawn can be torn up to eliminate weeds without any regrets, and all of the weeds, both deep and shallow, should be cleared out before money is spent for final seeding.

At the time of seeding the lawn surface should be firm below, but loose on top. A final raking will loosen the top soil and make ideal seed bed conditions. The seed should be sown thickly, about four pounds to 1,000 square feet. If no seeder is available it is best to divide the seed in half and broadcast one-half of the seed by hand in one direction and follow with the rest at right angles of the first sowing.

If the soil is light in texture, rake the seed in lightly and roll. If the soil is a heavy clay it is better just to roll the seed into the soil. Often a light covering over the seed, before rolling, of a good garden soil mixed three parts soil to one part well rotted manure and screened through a one-fourth inch mesh will both lessen drying and the subsequent baking and hardening of the soil.

Comfortable for hours
. . . that's why Kotex
is essential in summer

How comfortable is your sanitary protection after one . . . two . . . or three hours of wear? Read how Kotex' softness lasts.

IT is really amazing how Kotex stays soft, even when it must be worn for hours in warmest weather.

Other forms of sanitary protection may seem comfortable when first adjusted. But you know how quickly that surface-softness disappears . . . how soon the pad begins to pack . . . then how often chafing occurs.

All so unnecessary! . . . now that Kotex is sold everywhere, and at such a reasonable price.

Cellucotton explains softness

Kotex is made of Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding . . . the lightest, most absorbent substance which can be used. It absorbs 16 times its own weight in moisture—5 times more than cotton or any cotton material!

The Cellucotton is laid in many layers, each tissue-thin. This permits circulation of air, and keeps the pad soft and delicate.

The pads are rounded and tapered, so they really fit, and are never conspicuous. Kotex deodorizes, too. And it is so easily disposed of.

Hospitals use Kotex absorbent

A striking testimony to the superiority of the Kotex absorbent is the fact that 85% of the leading hospitals use it in preference to fine surgical cotton.

Please try Kotex. You'll see how no detail of comfort has been overlooked.

Kotex Company, Chicago, Illinois.

KOTEX IS SOFT...

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.

2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.

3—Deodorizes, safely, thoroughly by a special process.

4—Disposable, instantly, completely.

DIES CALLING FOR HIS SISTER, UNAWARE SHE IS IN SAME HOSPITAL

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—A youth yesterday lay dying at the county hospital in Wauwatosa, while in another room his sister, whom he had not seen in years, was dangerously ill, both unaware the other was nearby.

The brother, Dominick Reuzaglia, 17, of Chisholm, Minn., died last night calling for the sister.

Mrs. Ceccelia Pauline, 22, of 652 Marshall street, the sister, was reported recovering today, but not entirely out of danger. She does not know that her brother died.

The youth had ridden freight trains here to visit his sister. Unsuccessful in locating her after his arrival, he set out Sunday night for Chicago. In South Milwaukee he was fatally injured when boarding a North Western road freight.

Returning Chicagoans.

New York, Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Mrs. N. W. Forrester, Mr. and Mrs. George G. King, and Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Meloy of Chicago were among the arrivals on the White Star liner Olympic today.

MAN, GIRL SAIL FOR EUROPE BY MISTAKE—BACK

Return "Broke" Without Benefit of Romance.

New York, Aug. 19.—(AP)—No hint of romance was in the air as Joseph Whelan and Martha Burris came back from Italy today on the liner Augustus—traveling third class and both unmistakably annoyed.

"Just say we looked at each other and smiled," replied the man when someone asked when the engagement was going to be announced. Then they looked in opposite directions and frowned.

On their way to a week-end house party in the country, each carrying a bag filled with sports clothes, Whelan, a textile broker, and Miss Burris paused to dine in a Greenwich village restaurant the night of July 26 and met an old friend who was sailing for Italy on the liner Roma at midnight.

It was a grand sailing party, Whelan said, and while it was at its height the Roma slipped away from her wharf and down the bay. When Whelan and Miss Burris realized where they were, they were clear out on the Atlantic ocean.

They gave themselves up to the captain, who put them in second class quarters and radioed Miss Burris' relatives in New Rochelle, N. Y.

Miss Burris' relatives radioed back that they'd be glad to send money if he could assure them that Miss Burris wasn't married.

The captain seemed to think there wasn't anything he could do about that, so Whelan spent $60—all he had—sending desperate radiograms to friends. He didn't get a single answer.

For four days the steamship line held Whelan and Miss Burris aboard the Roma in Genoa harbor, waiting for somebody to send them passage money. Finally, they transferred them to third class quarters on the Augustus and shipped them back to New York.

They got home today—quite unimpressed by the broadening effects of travel, and surfeited especially with ocean voyages.

Plan to Aid New Zealand Jobless by Taxing Workers

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Aug. 19.—All of New Zealand's male workers are to be levied on at the rate of $7.50 each to assist the jobless, in accordance with the terms of a bill which Prime Minister Forbes has promised to rush through parliament before he starts for the London imperial conference on Monday. At least 10,000 out of the white population of 1,400,000 are jobless and there is much distress.

15 PRISONERS IN S. SIDE RAIDS ARE HELD BY U. S.

Fifteen defendants arrested in raids by prohibition agents on thirteen saloons in South Chicago on Monday night were held in bonds ranging from $3,000 to $5,000 when arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Walker. Hearings were set for Aug. 25, 26, 27 and 28.

The defendants were charged yesterday with individual offenses, but federal authorities are continuing their inquiry with a view of developing a conspiracy case for presentation to the grand jury. Some of the defendants admitted paying South Chicago police for protection, and it was reported that if these accusations are corroborated, action will be brought against the officials.

The maximum bond of $5,000 each was set for Leo and Walter Staniec, whose saloon at 8559 Burley avenue was alleged to have catered to high school boys and girls.

COURT ORDERS JUNK FIRM TO CLEAN STREETS

Judge Joseph L. McCarthy of the Municipal court yesterday ordered a cleanup of streets and alleys and open lots in the vicinity of 23d and Federal streets, which are now littered with wrecked automobiles and junk belonging to the Aetna Auto Parts company. It was said the company is owned by Oscar and Nathan Zimmerman and managed by Jacob Eller, a son of Morris Eller, city collector.

Three inspectors from the city's street and alley department testified the junk belongs to the Aetna company and that it overflows onto the street. McCarthy stated he would give the company ten days in which to cleanup. Twelve continuances marked the case.

CUBS TIE, 6-6, IN 16 INNINGS AFTER 9-8 DEFEAT

A NEW YORKER'S POINT OF VIEW ABOUT BOXING

Garden Controls All Big Bouts.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 19.—Not being a stockholder in the Chicago Stadium, the fortunes of that concern are no worry of mine, but if those who do own the stock will consider the facts of the prizefight situation they will decide to look to some other department of the sport business for their profits.

I understand that the altruistic civic leaders of Chicago who do own the stock are less altruistic today than they were when they subscribed for their shares during the stock market boom. This is easily understood and I would not seem to twit them for their change of heart. Altruism is not the first law of nature and in times like the present, business men naturally revert to the primitive.

Title Garden's Property.

The first fact that the Chicago stadium stockholders should understand is that the heavyweight championship of the world is now and has been since 1920 a house property of the Madison Square Garden corporation. All but two championship fights since then have been held under the Garden's auspices and by the operation of an ingenious monopoly devised by the late Tex Rickard, all but a few of the so-called elimination bouts have been Garden productions, too.

So strong is the influence of the Garden firm that when other promoters elsewhere do contrive to produce significant fights which the Garden firm has overlooked, the very fact that they are not Garden fights tends to minimize their importance. Of course, it will be understood, that no prize fight really is important, but I am discussing that synthetic importance which derives from newspaper emphasis and enthusiam.

At any rate, there is no doubt that the Garden firm dominates the prize fight business just as thoroughly as the major leagues dominate the baseball industry. Most of the publicity on prize fighting is concocted in the comfortable offices of the Garden, which are the headquarters of a group of boxing reporters representing not only the New York papers, but the Associated Press, the United Press, the International News and several of the feature news syndicates.

There's Always Copy.

Most of these reporters are expected to bring in more or less copy, but anyway some copy every day, and on days when there is no news they write copy from wraiths of ideas suggested by their gossip among themselves and with the Garden employes, including Frank Bruen the general manager, and Tom McArdle, the matchmaker.

When the Garden firm has a fight in preparation, parties of sport writers are organized to visit the training camps of the implicated athletes under the social auspices of the Garden. In the winter the Garden runs a special train from New York to Florida and return on which the boxing reporters are carried free amid the most beguiling hospitality.

Some papers accept this expensive favor quite frankly; reasoning, no doubt, that the Garden projects would command just as much publicity even if they paid their representatives expenses. Others, sensitive about their self-respect and editorial independence, insist upon reimbursing the Garden at a nominal rate.

Aside from any ethical considerations, the inevitable result of all this publicity for the Garden firm and even when the publicity seems to violate the common obligation of a guest to speak well of his host, the Garden still dominates the boxing news.

Notwithstanding this monopoly, business has not been good. The prize fighters, raised to wealth by the firm, have become indolent and independent and the exactions of the United States government are a difficult burden on the biggest house in the industry. The collectors of internal revenue now take just a little less than 25 per cent of the gross receipts of every big fight under a law which did not exist to embarrass Rickard's success in his most spectacular days.

Prefer to Deal with Garden.

Every ticket costing more than $5 nowadays is subject to a tax of 25 per cent and, appreciating the customers' strong aversion to taxation, the promoters actually pay the tax themselves. A $25 ticket is still a $25 ticket to the customer but it represents much less money on the books.

A recent financial report remarks of the Garden firm that "the failure of big outdoor boxing exhibitions since the Tunney-Dempsey fight has resulted in unfavorable recent earnings. Until such bouts can be placed on an earnings basis there can be expected little real income improvement. We therefore advise avoidance of this stock for the time being."

The Rickard monopoly has not been well maintained but nevertheless, the important fighters, when they feel inclined to fight, prefer to deal with the Garden on account of the advantages which the firm enjoys. Some of them talk and bluster through their managers but Jack Sharkey went back to the Garden last week, after promising to fight Primo Carnera for Mique Malloy in Chicago, and Max Schmeling undoubtedly will do the same next spring. As an example of the attitude of

HAGEN SHOOTS 66 IN DRILL FOR WESTERN OPEN

Qualifying Round Today on Michigan Course.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Walter Hagen, shorn of all his titles, served warning with a 66 in his practice round today, that he is definitely in the running for the western open championship, the qualifying round of which will be played tomorrow on the Indianwood golf course.

WALTER HAGEN.

His score, six under par, was lowest of the day's practice rounds, in which 51 entrants participated. He thereby won the first prize of the tournament, $100 offered by the host club for the best 18 holes practice score.

Kirk Second with 67.

A close second came Eddie Kirk, assistant pro at Dearborn, Mich., Country club, who shot a 67. Stanley Hancock of Detroit turned in a 32 for the first nine hole, winning the $25 offered for low score on the half round.

Those of the 175 entrants who went around today pronounced the course in perfect condition. They found green fairways, a phenomena not encountered by the stars of the golfing fraternity in two months of play through the drought areas.

The entry list of 175 furnishes 33 more players in the qualifying round tomorrow than started in the national open at Interlachen last month.

One English Contestant.

Europe's hope of winning the J. K. Wadley trophy, the western open championship cup, rests with John De Forest, pro from the Coombe Hill Golf club in Surrey, England.

WHITE SOX BUY FIRST BASEMAN AND SHORTSTOP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 19.—Two youths from the minor leagues have been added to Donie Bush's collection of White Sox talent. He was advised by Chicago headquarters today that a first baseman and a shortstop had been purchased. Both probably will report as soon as the Comiskey troops return to their own lot the end of the month.

The first baseman is a lad named Ray Radcliffe who was the property of the Dallas Texas league team.

The shortstop is Luke Appling, now with the Atlanta, Ga., Southern association team. He is a big fellow of 21 years and now boasts a batting mark in the neighborhood of .340.

JENNINGS GOES TO THIRD ROUND OF PARKS TENNIS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Favorites moved nearer the finals in the public parks tennis tournament today, although it took Delara of Los Angeles, runner-up last year, five hard sets to dispose of Robert Elliott, Baltimore, 5-7, 7-5, 3-6, 6-2, 6-1.

George Jennings of Chicago, defending champion, entered the third round of play with Delara by defeating Alan Staubley of Martinsburg, W. Va., in straight sets, 6-1, 6-2, 6-3.

Chicago placed two others in the third round as Leo and Charles Lejeck advanced by straight set victories. Louisville, Ky., was the only other city to finish the day with three players still in the running—Arnold Simmons, Robert Hall, and Monte Tiller.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

"LADIES' DAY."

THAT "Ladies' Day" at Cubs park be abolished was suggested in this column recently by "A Woman Cub Fan" for the greater convenience of regular patrons and because in her opinion a majority of those present did not attend for the pleasures of the sport itself but because it was free and a gala occasion.

That suggestion has brought a deluge of letters to The Wake, some almost abusive of that writer, and all protesting any such action. Here are a couple from the pile:

Dear Wake: A woman fan who has come to dread Fridays thinks Ladies' Day should be abolished because (of course) she can afford to pay her way in. She goes every day but wants the privilege taken from women who can't afford it. Her opinion that most women go because it is free is not true, for no woman would get as excited or cheer as loud as they do if they didn't understand baseball. If she can't stand to be rattled a little, won't she please stay home on Fridays and let women who can't afford regular attendance have just that one day? A REAL WOMAN CUB FAN.

Wake: "A Woman Cub Fan" need not come in contact with the "milling, pushing, crowding" women if it so displeases her. She does not even use the same gate. If she pays admission, she can go to her seat and not be bothered farther.

However, I am a Cub fan and a woman and enjoy every game I can see, some paid admissions, some "Ladies' Day" tickets, and those games I don't see I listen to by radio. I am happy the Cub management gives so much pleasure to so large a number of women, be they fans or not. G. E. S.

Helen Wills' Amateurism.

Soon will arise, no doubt, the question of whether Mrs. Helen Wills Moody may accept a bequest of $20,000 in the will of former Mayor Phelan of San Francisco and retain her amateur tennis status. The bequest frankly was because of the net honors Mrs. Moody had brought to California.

When the august officials of the U. S. L. T. A. rule on this subject they will have before them the rule prohibiting a tennis player from profiting, directly or indirectly, from his or her skill. Literally, that might be construed to bar this award.

In spirit, there is no argument. The bequest, made in all probability without Mrs. Moody's knowledge, was for something already happened, AFTER it had happened. If the bequest was contingent upon her accomplishing feats in the future, there might be a question. The U. S. L. T. A. sometimes has been inclined to split hairs. In this case, the hair should be parted right down the center.

Club House Loiters at Post but He's First to Finish

BY FRENCH LANE.

A crowd of 15,000 at Hawthorne yesterday watched a true demonstration of thoroughbred gameness.

The race was the Lake Shore drive purse at six furlongs. The winner was Club House, 4 year old son of Meridian-Superita, made favorite on a last minute plunge.

When the 10 sprinters left the gate after a six minute delay Club House was flatfooted. He was away some dozen lengths behind the field. He ran last, almost 10 lengths back of the others until the field hit the turn.

On the turn he lost many more lengths when Jockey Landolt found it necessary to go around the field in order to reach a contending position. Club House raced extremely wide. As it was run he probably ran about seven furlongs while those down next to the rail were reeling off the six furlongs.

Current Leads Field.

Current was flying along out in front while all this bad luck was happening to Club House. Silver Cord was running second, Cog Air was third and Ellice fourth. Club House in his overland journey was running seventh.

Heading into the stretch Club House moved into fourth place. Current, Cog Air and Silver Cord were the only ones in front of him. Then came one of the most bruising stretch runs ever staged over the ancient Hawthorne running strip.

Current began to bear out. As she continued to leave the rail Cog Air was pinched off. Club House, which had raced wide all the way, was forced out toward the center of the track. It wasn't until the last 20 strides that Club House got his nose in front. He kept it there despite the rough trip he had made. He was going gamest of all at the finish.

Club House ran his six furlongs over the wide trip in 1:12 2-5. Had he been away with the others without losing ground on the turn he would have neared the track record. His trying race won him an ovation from the crowd, even from those who did not wager on him at the rate of $9.64 for every two dollars invested.

Dark Entry Wins by Head.

Five route running 3 year olds were called into action in the Park Ridge purse and it brought a thrilling victory for Hal Price Headley's Dark Entry which won a Derby or something down in West Virginia last spring. He won by half a length from the fast running Calome, but couldn't have held Calome safe if the race had been three steps longer. Honey Locust, which had made all the pace, came home just a nose back of the leaders.

It was a fast run race, Honey Locust carrying the field to the six furlong mark in 1:13 and to the mile in 1:39 2-5. Then Dark Entry picked up the pace and finished out the mile and a sixteenth in 1:42 4-5. Dark Entry was heavily backed and paid $7.82.

The fleet Kentucky filly Martha Jones, which had five straight victories to her credit, was beaten in the Libertyville purse which was sort of a warm up for the Hawthorne Juvenile championship to be run Saturday. It was a dash at 5½ furlongs and on her great record Martha Jones was made the odds on favorite.

When she headed into the stretch two lengths in front it looked like her backers were going to collect. But Fair Missie headed Martha Jones a sixteenth out to get the decision by two lengths. Fair Missie was ridden by Jockey D. Bryant and paid $18.02.

For Illinois Horses

THE first stake race run in recent years, exclusively for horses owned by Illinois residents, will feature today's program at Hawthorne. It is a $5,000 added event fashioned for 3 year olds and upward at a mile and a sixteenth. In the overnight betting the entry of Brown Wisdom and My Dandy, owned by Reichert Brothers of Belleville, Ill., was the favorite. The field arranged in the order of post positions follows:

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 19.—Keeping Babe Ruth in his place is no job for the White Sox. If he doesn't hit devastating homers he does other things of equal importance. He did the other things today, thereby making himself the leader in a plot that sent the Chicagoans to another defeat by an old fashioned score of 3 to 0 in the series final. It was the Yankees' fourth triumph in five games.

Ruth not only took charge of the party with his bat but brought his fielding skill into play when greatly needed. His bat proved extremely discouraging for youthful Pat Caraway, who southpawed brilliantly. And what the Babe did afield not only saved Charles Ruffing from a bad afternoon but also robbed the Sox of a rally which might have meant enough runs for victory.

Cissell Only One on Base.

Because of Ruth's banditry in the outfield the Hose were able to gather only two hits off Ruffing. One of these was a double to right by Cissell with one out in the fourth. He went to third on a sacrifice fly and died there. Even that gave him some distinction. He was the only visitor to wander that far along the base lines. In fact he was the only one to get to first base.

In the seventh Cissell was up again, this time as lead off man. He rolled a ball slowly in front of the plate and beat the throw to first for a hit. This was where Ruth intervened in behalf of Ruffing. Reynolds sent a rakish drive toward the space between Ruth and the right field line. The Babe tore along the cinder path, reached out as far as to be almost doubled up and clamped his hands around what seemed to be a sure two bagger. That should have satisfied him, but it didn't. An instant later he repeated on a slam by Jolley. With these two catches and Cissell's two hits you have the entire story of the Sox attack.

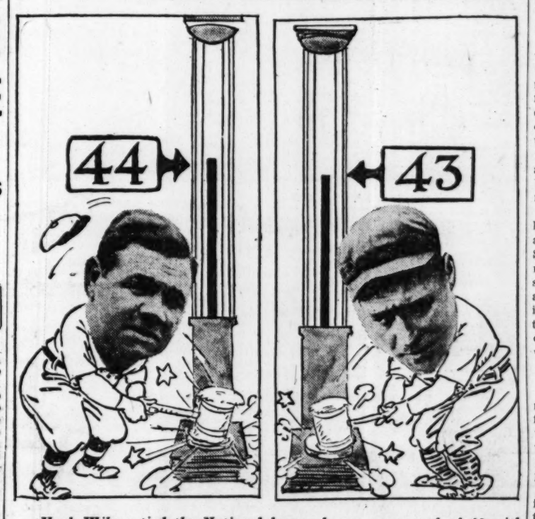
Caraway made an exceptional workman of himself by doing what other pitchers might regard as the impossible. He gave the Yanks only two hits in five innings.

Ruth Misses Homer; Hits Single.

Ruth's bat began to function in the sixth and the Yankees broke in with their first run. Lary singled with one out. The Babe sailed one far over the right field screen and stood nonchalantly at the plate as he watched the ball come down foul by inches. Undisturbed by this, he drove a single through short and Lary went to third. Lazzeri then bounced to Kerr and Lary could have been nipped at the plate, but Kerr fumbled momentarily, so had to make the play at first base. Caraway then fanned Gehrig.

Only for an error by Kerr the Yanks might not have taken the time to score their two other runs in the eighth. Byrd doubled with one out and Lary bounced one straight toward Kerr, but he let it seep through his hands and Byrd ran home. Lary went to second on the blunder and scored when Ruth rammed another single into left.

IT'S GETTING CLOSE, BABE



Hack Wilson tied the National league home run record of 43 with a circuit hit in the first game of yesterday's double header. Now he's heading for the high mark of 60 set in 1927 by Babe Ruth, who is only one ahead of Hack this morning.

Miss Marlowe Victor Over Eleanor Goss

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Eighteen year old Helen Marlowe of Los Angeles led the California delegation to a series of brilliant victories in the second round of the National Women's Tennis championship today.

BETTY NUTHALL.

Scoring the first upset of the tournament, this latest of the tennis playing Helens from the Golden state eliminated the veteran New York player, Eleanor Goss, 7-5, 8-6, to gain a place in the third round.

Despite the absence of their two leading players, Miss Helen Wills Moody and Helen Jacobs, the Californians captured most of the honors of the day, placing 7 of their number among the 16 survivors. Only two players from California met defeat in the course of the afternoon.

Foreign Players Win.

The foreign contingent, consisting of Betty Nuthall of England and the Baroness Georgio Glacomo Levi of Italy, came through with straight set victories. Miss Nuthall defeated Mrs. Ary J. Lamme of Rye, N. Y., 6-1, 6-1, and the baroness, who is the former Maude Rosenbaum of Chicago, chopstroked her way to a 6-0, 6-1 decision over Florence Le Boutilliere of Westbury, N. Y.

While most of the 700 spectators were intent upon less dramatic matches staged in the stadium, Miss Marlowe brought about the downfall of her famous opponent on one of the outside courts before a handful of onlookers. Miss Goss, the seventh ranking player in the country and the No. 3 seeded entrant in the tournament, had been expected to win from Miss Marlowe so easily that the match was not deemed worthy of a place on the stadium's center courts.

Comes from Behind.

But to the surprise of the few who watched, Miss Marlowe proceeded to give Miss Goss the worst of it in a long drawn out baseline driving match. She pulled up from 3-5 to win the first set with a burst of four straight games and fought off a great rally by Miss Goss to take the second set and match.

WILSON'S 43D HOMER EQUALS LEAGUE RECORD

Hornsby Returns as Pinch Hitter.

The Cubs now hold a lead of three games in the National league race over the Giants, who took second place yesterday by defeating the Cards while Brooklyn was losing to Pittsburgh.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

It was bad enough for the Phils to win the first game of yesterday's double header, 9 to 8, but it was downright vicious the way they refused to take a licking in the second encounter, which ended in a 6 to 6 tie after 16 innings of battling.

The outcome of this second game, which ended at 7:40 o'clock, probably was more devastating than a snappy nine inning defeat would have been, for it meant the playing of another contest today, the fourth time that a decision will be sought for this scheduled game. And this on a day when the Cubs expected to be lounging about, resting up for the big New York Giants series, which opens tomorrow.

As a result of the 16 inning deadlock yesterday, which was designed as a playoff of the 11 inning tie of Saturday, which also was a postponement, Manager McCarthy's pitching schedule is all awry and his players are weary from 27 absolutely futile innings played in what they expected to be little more than a limbering up exercise for the Giants. Sheriff Blake will probably get the assignment.

Wilson Ties Record.

It is not probable, however, that many of the 36,000 fans gave the future much thought as they lingered until dark. They were more concerned with reflection on what the day had produced in the matter of individual play.

There was Hack Wilson's 43d homer in the first game, which tied the National league record. There was the case of Gabby Hartnett, who knocked his 25th homer and a lusty double in the first game, but struck out three times in the extra innings of the second game. There was George Kelly, who joined the Cubs yesterday and in his first appearances in a Cub uniform made a triple and six singles.

These were not all the interesting events that made the afternoon as interesting as it was prolonged. Rogers Hornsby pinch batted in the second game, and, though his batting effort was a bit puny, the spectators seemed amazed at his dash for first base.

The first game revealed the talented Charles Root in one of his worst games of the year. Imagine Charley, who has been going great guns recently, walking the three men in the tailend of the tailenders' batting order to fill the bases with none out and then laying in one that sailed for a double that really broke up the ball game. This happened to Root in the sixth inning of the first game.

Bell Ties Score.

It remained, however, for Lester Bell to become, with Pitcher Phil Collins, the most discussed athlete in the ball park. Bell came up to bat for Beck with two on and two out in the eighth inning of the second game when the Cubs were trailing, 6 to 3, and knocked the first pitch into the right field stands for a homer which tied the count. Then the real battle began, Relief Pitcher Bush performing for the Cubs, and Collins, the visitors' starting pitcher, working straight through and apparently getting better as he went along.

Previous to Bell's stirring homer the Cubs had been behind throughout the second game, although they were pretty near at the end of the third. In the first of the third the Phils had made three runs on a homer by O'Doul, two walks and three singles off Osborn. These added to a run chased around in the first inning gave the invaders a 4 to 0 lead going into the Cub third. The Cubs then made three on a walk, Cuyler's triple, a single by D. Taylor and the second of the series of five hits that Kelly made during the game.

The Phils made two runs in the seventh, Bush's first inning on two singles and a double. This set the Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Mrs. K. E. Hitt's Sun Meadow, the heavily backed favorite, narrowly escaped being the victim of another upset in the Sanford memorial today. Three noses on the post gave the judges a hard task, but they separated the runners to the satisfaction of all concerned. Mrs. Payne Whitney's Surf Board was second and George D. Widener's Condescend third.

OFFER 20-1 ODDS AGAINST HORSE THAT BEAT FOX

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—Chaffee Earl's colt, Jim Dandy, the 100 to 1 shot which defeated Gallant Fox and Whichone in the Travers last Saturday, will fill his last Saratoga stake engagement when he runs in the American Legion handicap tomorrow. Despite the fact that he will have only 111 pounds to carry, he again is rated among the outsiders. His probable odds were quoted as high as 20 to 1, in the belief that he needs mud to show his best form and the outlook is for a fast track tomorrow. Fourteen are entered in the seven furlong race, and the G. A. Cochran pair of Flying Heels and Polygamous are expected to rule favorites.

The Giants piled up an early lead by scoring three runs in the second inning, then held off the Cardinal assaults by good fielding and some steady pitching in the late innings by Carl Hub

McCarthy Picks Cubs to Repeat as Champions if—

BY ARCH WARD.

It looks as if it's all over but the shouting. Connie Mack a month ago predicted the Cubs would win the National league pennant. Now Joe McCarthy has ventured the forecast that his club will repeat. That ought to make it unanimous.

McCarthy, however, qualifies his prediction.

"I believe we will come through if our pitching holds up," he said last night. "Of course, every manager relies heavily on his pitchers. But we need good hurling more than ever right now. Brooklyn and New York both are getting it.

"Our great opportunity lies just ahead. If we can take three out of four from the Giants in the series starting Thursday we will be well along the championship trail. The eastern invasion with which we wind up our schedule may not be as tough as many fear. We play only three games with Brooklyn and three with New York."

The Cubs will face the Giants in first place. Their success in keeping on top of the race is remarkable when you consider that every position on the infield is in the possession of a new guardian. When the club wound up the 1929 race Grimm was at first base, Hornsby at second, English at short, and McMillan at third.

The Cubs now are operating with Kelly at first base, Blair at second, Farrell at short, and English at third. Add to that the substitution of Taylor for Stephenson in left field and you hardly would recognize the old team.

Probably never before has a pennant winning combination played two-thirds of a season without a definite lineup. But then the Cubs in nowise are an ordinary ball club.

McCarthy looks for the Robins and probably the Giants to battle it out with the Cubs right up to the finish line.

"Glenn Wright is the player who has made Brooklyn a strong ball club," McCarthy said. "He is a fine fielder, a good hitter, and a steadying influence to the infield. If I were managing the club I would quit experimenting with second basemen and keep Finn on the job. He and Wright work well together. It's almost impossible to drive a ball through that pair.

"Robinson has been more fortunate than I have with his recruits. A major league manager seldom picks up a catcher like Lopez. Phelps has done great work on the mound."

McCarthy wants to go on record as a strong advocate of ladies' day.

"It's one of the best ideas introduced into baseball in years," he said. "If you think the only time they go to the park is when they are admitted free, you are mistaken. I noticed last Friday that nearly half the women passing through the gates had bought tickets. Many who held passes paid an additional 50 cents for box seats."

FOOTBALL VS. BASEBALL.

Which sport is more popular, football or baseball?

The argument has been carried on for years without either side making headway.

Recent figures add new interest. Last week the Cubs and Robins set a new league record for a four game series with a total paid attendance of 129,100.

Art Haley, business manager of the Notre Dame Athletic association, reports that he has had more than twice as many applications for tickets to the Army-Notre Dame game at Soldiers' field, Nov. 29, than for any game in the school's history. Last season Coach Rockne's eleven played Southern California before 122,500, a gridiron record. It is reported that 80,000 orders have been received for the Army game, which is more than three months away.

CARNERA ON THE SIDELINES.

Whether you like to believe it or not, there is not much use in denying that the New York boxing commission and the Garden corporation run boxing, inside and outside the state. It appears they have won their fight to keep Primo Carnera on the sidelines. Jack Sharkey's refusal to come to Chicago to fight a man outlawed by the New York commission is evidence. Our Mique Malloy found out to his sorrow that the New York ring board with its authority and the Garden with its money were a hard combination to oppose.

Sande to Fly to Springfield for Governor's Derby

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Earl Sande, America's leading jockey, will take his first airplane ride next Friday, from Saratoga Springs, N. Y., to Springfield, to ride in the Governor's Derby at the Illinois state fair on Saturday.

A telegram to Gov. L. L. Emmerson from Saratoga Springs brought the information here. It was from John Hertz of Chicago, in whose amphibian plane the trip will be made. The telegram was as follows:

"Earl Sande will ride in the Governor's Derby next Saturday. William Woodward, vice chairman of the Jockey club, has released him from his engagement here in order that he may be with you in Springfield. Sande and my own jockey, Eddie Steffen, will fly from Saratoga to Springfield Friday. It will be Sande's first flight."

Nineteen horses will run the Governor's Derby. Sande will ride Reveille Boy, it is expected, and Steffen will ride Valencennies, which recently won the matron stakes at Arlington Park.

Becker Finds Spoon Canada Anglers' Best

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lake of the Woods, Kenora, Ont., Aug. 19.—If you peek into the tackle boxes up here you get a pretty good idea of what the fishermen in this neck of the woods pin their faith on when it's a question of fooling the muskies or the small mouth bass.

Before going down the lake to look over some of the bays, pockets, reefs, and weed beds where a fellow can do some sharp shooting with his rods and lures we decided to do a little "under cover" work. Pecking beneath the covers of the tackle boxes of the boys up here we find that they have more villainous looking spoon and fly combinations per square inch than any other type.

This is without doubt a spoon country. The muskies get spoons and then more spoons. If they don't like spoons they can keep their mouths shut and stay in the water. The same bear market on flashing metal blades is noticed in the tackle stores. Of course, most of the lures shown are Canadian made and different from ours in the United States of America. Whereas the American made spoons on sale in this territory are singles running from 7 to 12.

One of the popular of the Canadian models is a double spoon, one-half of which is nickle and othe other half with a brass finish. This twin combination finishes with a red and white gang hook. It's a neat piece of hardware and probably very effective for trolling, but we prefer to stick to a good sized single spoon for casting. There's less work in retrieving it and also in casting it.

INHALE?

WE ASKED 117 BANKERS

...and here's what they told us about an AIR-COOLED smoke:

SOME of them were fresh from college. Some of them were seasoned financiers. We popped the question: "Do you inhale when you smoke?"

All but twelve answered "Yes—you can't help inhaling a little. I practically always inhale a cigarette."

And many of them added: "That's why I've switched to WINGS. They seem cooler and cleaner."

They're right! Only there's no "seeming" about it. WINGS are AIR-COOLED.

The tobacco is thoroughly washed by air before it goes into WINGS. "Air-washing" removes all dirt and dust—all those tiny, irritating particles that scratch and make a cigarette "hot."

Take WINGS today! They're smooth as cream! Clean and cool as spring water!

"Inhale cigarettes?" said this banker, "of course I do. I never have known a steady cigarette smoker who doesn't. And I predict a lot of smokers will switch to WINGS for their coolness."

KILLS EMPLOYER, HER SISTER, SON, AND HIMSELF

Gardener Is Deranged by Fear of Losing Legacy.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Deranged by fear of losing his home and a legacy he had counted upon, Bernard J. Rutort, 45 year old gardener, today shot and killed his elderly employer, her sister and her nephew and then took his own life.

Mrs. Mary Parr, 75 year old widow, for whom Rutort had worked 15 years, Mrs. Anna M. Collins, 77, of Philadelphia, and Leo Collins, Mrs. Collins' son, a Philadelphia church sexton, were found dead in Mrs. Parr's home at Pleasantville, near here. Rutort died in a hospital here after admitting the slayings.

Tragedy Follows Quarrel.

The tragedy occurred shortly after Mrs. Collins and her son arrived at the Parr home for a visit. Police said a quarrel began over Rutort's residence in the home and his right to share in the estate. Collins was said to have attempted to eject the gardener from the house.

Mrs. Mae Walters, a neighbor, told police she heard sounds of an argument in the house and was startled by a succession of shots.

Find Mrs. Parr's Will.

She saw Rutort stagger from the doorway followed by Mrs. Parr. A woman passerby called the police and they found the mother and son dead in the kitchen and Mrs. Parr dead in the garden. An automatic lay on the floor. Rutort was found mortally wounded.

Later police found Mrs. Parr's will in her room. It stipulated the estate should be divided equally among Rutort, Mrs. Collins and her son.

A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
This world can never fill.
He bade no one a last farewell,
He said good-by to none;
He did not fail to do his best.
His heart was true and tender.
He worked hard for those he left
And will ever be remembered.

STEEL NEWS IS DISHEARTENING, BUT OIL CHEERY

Ingot Output Fails to Hold Steady.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Such news of business and industry as came to light yesterday was about an even mixture of good and bad. Reports of some further curtailment in the steel industry came as a disappointment in view of predictions that production would at least hold steady. On the other hand, another reduction in petroleum production and a further shrinkage in storage stocks of refined products was heartening.

Output of steel ingots during the last week was reported at 54½ per cent of plant capacity, compared with nearly 56 per cent in the previous week and 58 per cent a fortnight ago. A year ago the industry was operating around 90 per cent and two years ago the average was about 76 per cent. The United States Steel corporation now is running at 62 per cent of capacity, compared with nearly 63 per cent a week ago, over 64 per cent two weeks ago, and 95 per cent a year ago. Independents are just above 49 per cent, against 51 per cent a week ago, 53 per cent a fortnight ago, and 86½ per cent a year ago.

Flat Rolled Demand.

"Resumption of operations at idle plants of the American Sheet and Tin Plate company is taken as a reflection of improving demand for flat rolled products," the Daily Metal Trade says. "Independent sheetmakers last month boosted their sales 10 per cent while cutting production. This new business should result in a heavier movement to the consuming trade this month."

Curtailment of oil production and reduction of storage stocks at the height of the motoring season is hailed as a sign that the petroleum industry has at last got its house in order. The daily average gross crude oil output last week totaled 2,462,550 barrels, a decline of 16,800 barrels a day from the previous week, according to the American Petroleum Institute. Oklahoma again led with a reduction of 22,550 barrels a day, while California made an increase of 4,200 barrels a day.

Refiners increased their takings of crude oil slightly and operated last week at 72.6 per cent of capacity, compared with 69.1 per cent in the preceding week. However, stocks of gasoline were reduced 1,477,000 barrels, now standing at 41,252,000 barrels. Gas and fuel oil stocks also were reduced.

Unbalanced Gold Distribution.

An unbalanced distribution of gold throughout the world must share to no small extent the responsibility for price decline and business depression, according to the current issue of the Business Observer, published by the Foreman State National bank.

"Overproduction is not to blame for all of the recent price decline and business depression," the review says. "A planless administration of the world's monetary gold must share the responsibility. Billions of excess reserves in the United States and France and reciprocal billions of capital shortage in certain other countries have established diseconomy in the world use of gold, with inevitable contraction of price levels.

"If by some concerf of policy the United States and France now could sponsor a gradual movement of excess gold into the countries of shortest currency supply, it would make for a healthier state of world finance and should prove a strong deterrent to further decline of raw material prices."

Building construction in the United States as a whole made the poorest showing in July of any month in seven years, when adjustment is made for seasonal variations, the Foreman-State review also says. The large cities and industrial sections showed the greatest recession. On the other hand, the area between the Mississippi river and the Rocky mountains is having a reasonably good building year, and this situation, if it continues, may result in drawing off from the cities some of the excess construction workers.

Chicago Yellow Cab Net Earnings Decline Sharply

The Chicago Yellow Cab company reports net earnings for the six months ended June 30 of $952,854 as compared with $1,196,691 in the same period last year. Second quarter net totaled $420,475 as against $532,672 in the corresponding 1929 quarter.

Significant Movements In Bond Values

Always in the past, active markets for virtually all grades of bonds have been presaged by a gradual increase in the price of the highest grade bonds. This has already taken place, and an increase in the price of other sound issues seems certain to follow. We are therefore recommending to investors a carefully selected list of 6 strong issues—mostly utilities—now yielding from 5½% to 7¼%, but which, we believe, will not much longer be available at their present prices.

Steel Chiefs in Wrangle Over Bonuses

Youngstown, O., Aug. 19.— (AP) — Bethlehem's Steel corporation's system of paying large bonuses to its executives—the target of an attack by the forces opposing the merger of Youngstown Sheet and Tube with that concern—has served its purpose but now should be revised, Henry G. Dalton of Cleveland, director of both companies, testified today.

Dalton, who previously has testified under cross-examination in the suit to enjoin the merger, was called to the stand this afternoon for further cross questioning by plaintiff's counsel.

He followed the plaintiff's witness, Hassell Tippit, an auditor, during whose cross-examination the defense sought to prove that the Cyrus S. Eaton interests had submitted a biased audit to discredit the terms of the Bethlehem-Youngstown agreement.

As soon as Dalton took the stand Attorney Luther Day of the plaintiff's counsel brought up the Bethlehem bonus plan. Dalton said he had heard rumors as to the amount of bonuses Bethlehem paid, shown by previous testimony to have been approximately $3,200,000 in 1929, of which Eugene Grace, president, received $1,600,000.

Did Not Vote.

The witness said he did not call it to the attention of other Sheet and Tube directors when they ratified the merger at a meeting March 12 because he did not think about it. After questioning he admitted that if present circumstances had prevailed March 12, he probably would have called the matter up for consideration. Dalton spoke for the merger but did not vote because he was a director of both companies.

Dalton emphasized, however, that the 1929 Bethlehem bonuses had been deducted from the figures considered in the merger agreement. Then common Pleas Judge David Jenkins interposed a question to learn whether the bonus plan would have materially affected earnings on the converted stock. Youngstown having agreed to exchange each share of its own common stock for one and a third shares of Eethlehem.

"It would have affected the converted stock to some extent, but not materially," Dalton answered.

"It would be a couple of dollars a share, wouldn't it?" said Attorney Day.

Each Gives Figure.

"No. I'd say about a dollar a share," the witness answered.

When Day and his colleagues sought later to prove that the amount per share would be about $2 figures flew so fast between the bench and the two counsel tables that the judge decided to call a recess.

Newton D. Baker of defense counsel contended that by the ratio of the exchange Bethlehem stockholders were shouldering two-thirds of the cost of the bonuses, leaving the Youngstown stockholders to pay only one-third or 62 cents a share instead of $1.93.

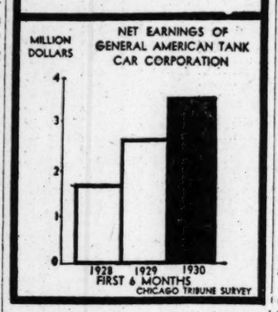
ANOTHER BIG CHICAGO COMPANY REPORTS INCREASED EARNINGS



GRAIN EXPORTS FROM U. S. LAST WEEK WERE 3,136,000 BUSHELS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Grain exports last week from the United States were 3,136,000 bushels as compared with 2,112,000 bushels the previous week and 5,296,000 bushels the corresponding week last year.

Commerce department figures today gave the following comparisons between last week's exports and those of the previous week: Wheat, 2,704,000, against 1,888,000 bushels; rye, none, against 17,000 bushels; oats, 14,000, against 38,000; corn, 24,000, against 41,000; barley, 394,000 bushels, against 128,000.

Canadian grains shipped last week from United States ports amount to 1,882,000 bushels against 1,371,000 bushels the previous week, while last week's exports of North American wheat flour were 264,000 barrels against 168,000 barrels the previous week.

MELLON DENIES SAYING ANYTHING ABOUT BUSINESS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon today denied stories crediting statements to him in Pittsburgh yesterday on the general business situation. Mr. Mellon said: "I made no statement whatever on business conditions, optimistic or otherwise."

The secretary issued the denial after his attention had been called to published reports which said the stock markets had gained strength today on the basis of the alleged Mellon statement.

While issuing the denial, Mr. Mellon was anxious that no interpretation be put on it. He said he simply wanted it understood he had not commented on the business situation and that he was not commenting on it.

Council Finds World Trade Signs Better

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 19.—"The world trade outlook is improving and we may look forward to an increasing volume as the year progresses," asserts the report of the National Foreign Trade convention, just issued by the National Foreign Trade council.

"American foreign trade is no longer susceptible to the drastic rises and falls of former years, but has reached the point where more than three-quarters of our exports are products wholly or partly manufactured," the report continued.

These foregoing assurances are being forwarded to nearly 2,200 delegates who attended the convention at Los Angeles.

A further note of assurance is the expectation expressed in the report that renewed activity in American investments abroad may be expected in the near future "tending to restore our normal foreign trade by increasing the supply of dollar exchange available in the world's markets."

What Is Drought Effect?

The drought will not necessarily retard business recovery in the opinion of some observers who have studied its disturbing effect, while others believe the pace of the rebound from the depression will be slowed down, although the final date of full recovery may not be delayed.

Argument of those who minimize the depressing effect of the big dry spell is based in part on the occurrences in 1924. Grayson M. Murphy & Co. points out:

"The small corn crop in 1924 did not prevent a sharp increase in industrial activity in the fall. Hog prices improved in the fall and the wheat grower in the United States benefited at the expense of his Canadian neighbor. The stock market index did not display a confident advance for some time after the index of industrial activity had moved upward from its July low.

"Two other important similarities between August of 1924 and the present time are the low rate of industrial activity and the prevalence of extraordinarily easy money. An extremely important difference is that in 1924 the wheat crop in Canada was only 262 million bushels, compared with a five year average of about 450 million bushels."

Hopes for Machine Trade.

Another fortnight probably will disclose the extent to which the recovery of business has been retarded by the drought, in the opinion of the Harvard Economic society, which believes the pace of the business rebound has been slowed up. Since weather conditions have improved recently, the date of recovery may not be postponed, the society asserts.

Dawn seems to be about to break after a long night in the country's machinery and machine tool markets, reports American Machinist. Reports indicate a continually increasing wave of optimism which now bears in its wake the first of a flood of inquiries that really mean business in the not-too-far-distant future.

WHEAT TRIPS UP CORN AND AGAIN IS KING OF PIT

Prices Erratic, but Edge Upward.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The wheat market seems to be regaining the leadership which it lost to corn several weeks ago, and, while fluctuating in a most erratic manner within a range of 2⅛@2¾c, sufficient support was in evidence on the breaks to cause a strong rally from the inside figures. Prices were ½c higher to ¼c lower, September showing the most strength. The nearby future finished at 87⅛@87⅝c, with December 91⅞@92c; March, 96½c, and May, 99½@99⅝c.

Weakness in corn had some effect on the wheat market at times as did selling by houses with eastern connections. At one time December was down to 90¾c, or within ½c of the lowest figure of the season. Reports that export sales for the day aggregated 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 bu helped to sustain values, although the bulk of the business was in Manitobas.

Europe Needs Dry Wheat.

Winnipeg wheat was unsettled, and closed ¼c higher to ⅜c lower, the former on October. The trade had reports that the pool was selling the nearby month on a scale up on bulges, and there were also intimations that the pool would only pay an advance of 60c per bu to its members, basis No. 1 northern delivered at Fort William.

There are two opposing factors in the wheat market at the present time that furnish considerable ammunition for believers in either higher or lower prices. Cables from abroad told of wet weather delaying harvest in parts of Europe, with poor quality of the new French, Italian, German and Netherlands crops. As a result it is expected that considerable dry North American wheat will have to be secured. Broomhall in his international review expressed the belief that it would be almost impossible to maintain present milling regulations in Germany.

Against the prospective good foreign demand is the heavy movement of spring wheat in the American northwest with the resultant hedging pressure, while harvesting is progressing rapidly in Canada, and hedging sales are also a factor at Winnipeg. With a light speculative trade the market is rather easily affected.

Liberal Charters for Corn.

Liverpool showed surprising strength and closed ⅝@1¼d higher for the day, with the October future in that market closing around 17¼c over Chicago September against 16½c on Monday. A better demand for spot wheat and short covering was responsible for the upturn in Liverpool. Russia

Radio Corp. Steps Up Its Production

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 19.—The Radio corporation of America has started on its fall production schedule and is turning out new sets by the thousand every day. While officials of the company are reticent regarding the rate of operations of the various plants of the company, it is certain that those operations are on the heaviest scale since the company took over the manufacturing rights of the General Electric company, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, and the Graybar Electric company.

Some time ago E. E. Shumaker, president of the R. C. A. Victor corporation, the principal manufacturing unit of the Radio corporation, which makes the radio sets of the Radio corporation and its affiliated companies, made the prediction that the company would attain a maximum output of 9,000 sets a day. In order to attain that rate of output, he said, 20,000 additional employés would be added to the pay rolls.

Adds to Pay Roll.

The R. C. A. Victor corporation now is in a fair way to make good those predictions. It is adding new employés to its rolls every day and, while not yet turning out 9,000 sets a day, is gradually approaching that schedule, it is learned.

The new fall models already are on exhibition before dealers, but have not yet actually reached the market. Heretofore, the Radio Corporation's efforts were mainly concentrated in getting rid of the old models. Liquidation of those models has been virtually completed.

Now Makes Own Sets.

A fact perhaps not generally understood by the public is that the Radio Corporation of America is now operating for the first time as a manufacturing as well as a distributing organization.

Prior to acquisition of the manufacturing rights of the General Electric, Westinghouse, and affiliated companies, the Radio Corporation made no radio sets. Its own branded sets were manufactured for it by the General Electric and Westinghouse companies, so far as radio sets were concerned the Radio Corporation was merely a selling organization. It also, of course, was in the radio communications business, an entirely distinct line of activity.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 19.—They polished up some more sure fire argument for the bull cause today and it went over big. The boys pitched in and bought shares of every description—utilities, tobaccos, amusements, specialties, even the rails. Values bubbled up right smartly in places and numerous gains of from 1 to 3 and even 5 points were chalked up on the final scoreboard.

Trading hit a pert gait at times and made a somewhat better showing on the day as a whole amounting to some 1,861,790 shares, compared with yesterday's total of 1,413,610.

Sentiment More Cheerful.

Speculative sentiment was generally more cheerful than it has been for some time. Harvey S. Firestone, the big tire and prosperity man, set the example by having some nice things to say about the country's future. One or two other big business heads chimed in via their periodic reports with optimistic views of the outlook for their particular charges. Then, to top it in fitting fashion, word was passed around that a number of big bull operators who took to cover when the drought situation became acute a few weeks ago had gotten back into harness and that still others were girding for reentry into the fray.

Good reports continued to come in from the drought areas and the credit situation was still easier, accommodations being available in plentiful supply for as little as 2 per cent outside the stock exchange, with the official call rate remaining at 2½ per cent.

It all made a very good showing in favor of the so-called constructive element and they took good advantage of it. Good buying developed in various quarters during the morning and by the early afternoon the price list showed gains of from 5 to 8 points in a number of high price volatile stocks with the whole list surging ahead in impressive fashion.

Runs Into Realizing.

Near the beginning of the final hour, however, the market ran into some

This Handy Pocket Record of Your Investments

MANY investors want to keep the record of their securities as simple as possible. They may not consider elaborate detail necessary. Yet some record of purchase and sale price, maturity and income, is indispensable, even if one has only a small list.

For such investors, this handy booklet, three by five inches when folded—small enough to be slipped into a vest pocket or hand bag—has many advantages. Memoranda can be made at the time of a transaction; data is available at any time. This book is patterned after a larger security record book which we have published for many years and distributed to investors.

Besides the name of the security, there are columns for the rate of interest, maturity, par value, date and price of purchase and sale, and semi-annual interest receipts. The reverse of the sheet provides space for remarks and other pertinent data. It is loose-leaf in form so that additional sheets may be inserted at any time.

You will find this book a convenient and easy way of keeping information on your investments up to date. A binder with a supply of fillers will be sent on request.

STOCK VALUES BUBBLE PERTLY HIGHER IN SPOTS

realizing and renewed speculative offerings as a result of reports from the leading steel centers indicating that mill production has fallen slightly again during the week. The selling was pretty well absorbed for the most part, but it had the effect of causing most of the more active issues to sag below their high levels of the day.

As on other days of the oft interrupted recovery movement the market leaders played the part some of them scoring substantial advances. United States Steel edged ahead slowly but steadily throughout the forenoon, but sold off toward the last closing with a net gain of less than a point. American Can fared likewise. New York Central was up about 2 points at the close. General Electric, General Motors and Public Service of New Jersey managed to keep a fraction on the better side of things after earlier spurts. It was the same with most of the pacemakers of the list.

Radio Improves.

Radio was turned over in fairly heavy volume and bettered its position with the rest. The street heard that an unusually large pool had been formed in this old line favorite and that big doings might be afoot. Interests identified with several other prominent issues were likewise reported to be about ready to start something market wise on the upside of things.

Covering operations by interests short of Fox Film A made that issue one of the most active on the board in the early hours of the session. Within a comparative short time the stock was bid up and enough buying appeared in the later dealings to hold the price within striking distance of top level to the finish. Other amusement shares firmed up in sympathy.

The tobacco issues gave an impressive show of strength with American Tobacco common in the van with an advance of 5 points. Some of the utilities were in good demand.

WHEAT TRIPS UP CORN AND AGAIN IS KING OF PIT

Prices Fluctuate Sharply, but Edge Upward.

continues to offer wheat freely for shipment as far ahead as December.

Local operators who sold out their lines of corn on Monday were active in reinstating them yesterday on reports that charters had been made for 450,000 bu to go to Buffalo and Georgian bay ports. It is claimed in some quarters that the bulk of the local stock of corn has been sold for shipment, and receivers are inclined to look for the cash grain to gain on the September.

Scattered longs and commission houses were sellers of corn futures and the finish was at net losses of ⅝@1⅛c with September finishing at 84⅝c, while December was 89⅛@89¼c; March, 91c, and May, 93¼c. A late rally in wheat had some effect on the market. Rains were reported in parts of Nebraska and Iowa and the general run of crop reports were somewhat more favorable, although field examination shows that there are many barron stalks and also many ears that were poorly pollinized with the result that the cob has very little grain.

Le Count, the Stein, Alstrin & Co. crop observer, after a 150 mile trip from Marshalltown to Denison, Ia., reported that the territory covered might secure half an average yield of corn, and that soaking rains would have little effect. An examination of 1,900 stalks of corn in average field in southern South Dakota and Minnesota made by representatives of J. E. Bennett & Co., showed about one ear to every two stalks, and reports from all sections showed an unusually large percentage of nubbins.

Cash Interests Take Oats.

Cash and commision houses were fair buyers of oats futures, but the market was erratic in sympathy with other grains and the close was ½@⅞c lower, with locals on the selling side toward the last. September was 38⅛c, and December 41@41⅛c at the last. Charters were made for 100,000 bu to Georgian bay. Reports from various parts of the belt indicate heavy farm feeding in connection with wheat, the general practice being to use about 50 per cent oats with a like amount of wheat.

Rye closed ⅛@⅞c lower, being affected by the action of wheat to a large extent. September closed at 55¼c, and December at 60¾c. Shippers and mills were after cash rye with the basis 1@3c higher as compared with September. There were indications of rye being wanted for feed, presumably from the southeastern dry area.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Spot butter showed an easier undertone, but prices were unchanged. Fresh eggs sold at former prices. Live heavy hens declined 1c, with the general run ½c lower. Receipts by freight, 5 cars. Potatoes, steady to a shade easier, with demand slow. Receipts 50 cars, with 221 cars on team track.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Wet weather in Europe brought foreigners into the market as free buyers of dry North American wheat, and while the bulk of the demand was for Manitobas sales were placed at 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 bu in all positions. No. 1 hard winter at the Gulf sold early at 6¾c over Chicago September for first half September loading with sellers asking 7c over at the close.

Country offerings of winter wheat to arrive were small. Reports from the southwest indicate extremely heavy feeding of wheat in some sections. Local handlers bought only 5,000 bu wheat during the day from the country. Basis in the sample market was firm with No. 1, No. 1 hard and No. 1 northern, September price to ¼c over; No. 2 red or hard, September price to ¼c under and No. 2 northern, ¼@½c under.

Offerings of cash corn in the sample market were steady to 1c higher as compared with September. Premiums as compared with the future movement follow: No. 1 and No. 2 mixed, 3¼c; yellow, 3¼@3¾c; white, 5¼@6c. No. 3 yellow sold at the same basis as higher grades, and No. 4 yellow at 3@3¼c over the September.

Official receipts of grain Tuesday: Wheat, 62 cars; cor, 128 cars; oats, 65 cars; rye, 4 cars; barley, 10 cars.

Range of cash grain prices in leading markets follow:

BAR CONVENTION BACKS DRY TEST BY LARGE VOT

Prohibition Is Issu as Sessions Open.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Prohibition and crime were twin problems that arose for disc sion and action at the opening sess of the 53d annual meeting of American Bar association at the S vens hotel yesterday.

The chief action at the first sess was the decision of the 2,000 delega present to support their execut committee in ordering a referend vote on the 18th amendment. An fort to halt this referendum, wh has already been voted on by 15 members, was defeated on the fl by an overwhelming vote. It rema the livest topic of discussion am the lawyers. Results of this refer dum will be known about Nov. 10.

The convention refused to acc the report of the American citizens committee, in which prohibition touched upon and the federal f board condemned as a first step ward state Socialism. The section criminal law and criminology also fused to adopt a report on "law enforcement of law" and ordered committee to continue work for other year.

Wickersham Demands Obedience

George W. Wickersham, the sp er at the afternoon session, told the aims and some of the work of commission on law enforcement law observance, of which he is ch man. He dealt gingerly with pro tion, taking the thesis that citi could not choose which laws would obey, and that in our civi tion regulatory measures of this are necessary for the public wel "We cannot wait," he said, "for sanction of custom and usage, they have done in the older c tries." He explained some of measures which the committee brought before congress, particu the one in which juries would avoided.

"Good citizenship," he said, " acquiesce in the law as it is, fo time being."

He denounced federal laws make felonies of petty violations, said the federal courts are equipped as police courts.

His reasoning on the relatio tween the law and good citize was close in several ways to th President Henry U. Sims, who his annual address at the openi the session.

Opening Is Impressive.

It was an impressive scene a gavel rapped for order in the ballroom, filled with delegates an itors, many in the balconies, were decorated with state stan Over the heads of the speakers form were the flags of variou tions which will be represented by delegations of prominent la Frank B. Kellogg, former sec of state and John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for Pre were two of the notables in th line of gray haired, distinguishe ers of the bar that faced the ence.

Mr. Sims, who presided, sai he had been preaching all ov country that it was the duty American bar to take charge study and reform of the adm tion of justice in this country.

"Law Is Local Matter."

"It is not the social impul the social need, which must into law," he said. "Law is main a local matter, and the and industrial development state or group of states may quite different types of law fro suitable to the development o in another part of the countr

He discussed the limitations federal constitution, particula 14th amendment, and said tha legislation within the app sphere of its operation is tional if reasonable under th tions of time and place to is made applicable and con directed to advance the publi

He declared that constituti arty in this country is in no whatever, "and that the vi social strife supposed to be im are but phantasmagoria of brains."

Reports on Referendu
